CLAY PIPES.

The Largest Factory In the World-L It Was Started. The largest tobacco pipe factory in th world is located in Appomattox county, near Pamplin City. It had been known the states that there existed clay in tobacco pipes, but the industry was co on in the most desultory way. Sor a negro at odd times would fashion a rude pipes and sell them in the neigh hood, generally at the country store. But at the close of the war the whi turned their attention to the clay depos

It was a necessity, and not a matter o

The war had swept away everything.
The implements with which the pipes wer manufactured were simple and rude, a It must be confessed that the article wh they fabricated did not bear the clo possible resemblance to those turned by the thousand today.

The pipes were sold to local merchant who shipped them to wholesale dealers in northern cities, who sold them to retailer throughout the country. And now comes the part of the story that sounds rather romantic, though it i every word true. Among the retail dealers who purchased a lot of these poor men's pipes was a gro cery man in a little town in Ohio. He sold them at from 2 to 5 cents apiece and found them very popular. Among those who purchased one was a wealthy citizen of the town, who was led to do so by a less wealthy neighbor, wh had found them sweet smokers. The car italist was delighted. He smoked nothing else for some time and finally inquired the grocery man as to where the pipes wer made. The latter could only give the name of the wholesale dealer from who he had purchased, but from him the gen tleman learned that the pipes were mad from a clay bank in the county of Appomattox, in Virginia. The gentleman saw that the pipes were of very rude construction. He saw als and that a profit could be made at selling them at a penny apiece. He was growing interested, and finally his mind dwelt so much upon the subject that he came over to Virginia and to the little town of Ap pomattox. He went at once to the store of the dealer in pipes and was not long in finding that the best were made at a bank

The rest is soon told. The land was purchased for a small sum, buildings erect-

Is Probably the Oldest Bank Check I

In the Marion National bank, in this city, the following check is on exhibition Cashier of the Bank: Pay to Mr. John Nielson or bearer one hun dred and fifty pounds in paper. New York, the second day of June, 1798

During the war Colonel H. C. Town tery near Lebanon, held a command herman's army. When the army was Allatoona Pass, Colonel Towne sent a tail of Union soldiers under the comp of a lieutenant to the Etowah river on foraging expedition. Among other places visited by the detachment of soldiers was the plantation of Governor Brown. the house one of the soldiers found the original of the above check in Governo Brown's library. He took it with hin and on his return to camp presented it to Colonel Towne, who carried it on his person during the rest of the war. When peace was proclaimed and Colonel Town returned to Wisconsin, he presented the Burr check to the cashier of the bank in his native town, who had it framed and hung in the bank as a valuable relic. Su We sequently photographic copies of the chec were taken. Colonel Towne was given one of those copies, and he presented it to Cashier J. M. Knott of the Marion National bank. The original is still on exhibition in the Wisconsin bank. Doubtless it is the oldest bank check in existence, and the fact that the drawer was a national celebrity during his life makes it a very rare and valuable relic. -

An amusing story is told of Sir Ell Ashmead-Bartlett, the American born knight. Sir Ellis, who is a brother o Baron Burdett-Coutts, whose aged brid on their marriage gave him her name and $250,000 a year for life, owes his knight hood to the fact that when Lord Salisbury formed his third ministry Mr. Ashmead Bartlett was left out of the calculations In the first two ministries he had figure as a lord of the admiralty. At the same time he was knighted to salve his feeling he same dignity was conferred on Blun Tell Maple, a millionaire furniture dealer in Tottenham Court road, a shabby sort of district in London. Immediately Lord Salisbury received from each of the prospective knights a letter protesting in the strongest terms against the knighting of the other as tending to cheapen the honor

Tactics of Pursued Deer. An Oxford county sportsman who is much interested in the habits of wild game reports seeing three deer chased by dogs in the deep snow. It was impossible for them to run fast, and they adopted tactics that were at once novel and practical They were running single file. The first thing that attracted attention as uni was the action of the leader, which stopp suddenly, jumped to one side, and let t other two deer run by in the path he ha made. Very soon the new leader jun out and let his followers run ahead as lo as the leader could stand it to make the path in the deep snow. This was kept up until they went out of sight, and the sportsman had learned something new .-Kennebec Journal
