Almost without exception these fine atbletes fell into illness or utter collapse with the first hard strain put upon them. They made worse fever cases and dysentery cases than the others, and it appears to nurses and doctors as beyond question that the thorough physical training which these men had completed just before the war, in anticipation of the spring athletic games, was a serious impair disease. It is worthy of note, also, that most of these athletes indulged neither drink nor tobacco.-Cleveland Moffett's Camp Stories in Leslie's

Vested Methodist Choirs.

A significant event of Christmas Day. 1898, was the introduction of a vested choir in a Methodist church in Chicago The service was sung by the choir, vested in the regulation cassock and cotta as worn by similar choirs in Episcopal churches. This has been spoken of as marking an era in Method. ism in the West. As a matter of fact it marks or calls attention to a change going on in the ultra-Protestant denominations, which are fast losing their time honored prejudices against liturgical services and an ornate order of worship and are adopting many things which a generation or two ago members of these same denominations would have looked upon as out and out 'popery," and as such been terribly shocked at their introduction.

The disappearance of these prejudices and the approach of the various churches to one another in the matter of ritual and worship ought to make it easier for them to get together, should hasten, in brief, the era of Christian unity.-Buffalo Times. ----
