The agricultural interest represents about nine-tenths of the capital cate that the eggs are cooked. All of the civilized world, and about nine-tenths of the people of the world are en these things are sold at prices "within gaged in it. Taking this fact into consideration the agriculturist is not a side issue as many look upon them; they represent the largest business in the word and upon their business rests all other business. No workingman, business man or professional man is entitled to any better pay for his services than the farm er is. A farmer is not as well paid for his services as business men and profeional men are, if he was he could spend his summer at watering places and his winters in Southern countries, as many business men and professional men de The farmer cannot afford to do this. The farmers, as a body, could dictate all others if they would assert their rights in the proper way instead of all othe dictating to them as they do now. The farmers have to pay many professiona men for their services more than ten times what they pay him for his service-As a body you could remedy many such wrongs; as individuals wou can't sympathy is with the farmer or with any other class who are not getting a ta proportion of this world's goods for the services they render and opposed hall others, who, with the same capital and effort, are making more than the farmer on the same basis can make.
