The Public School.

J. A. Ellis, architect, of Toronto, sub nutted plans for the proposed remodeling of the public school buildings to the members of the school board on Presday They showed twelve class rooms of the regulation size, with a heated, ventilated and lighted. the same accommodation, would cost prices, or about $15,000 at Milton rates The board will hold another meeting next Tuesday. Its members agree that something must be done, that to continue in the old buildings as they are is brought together out of the question and even if this were done, a good de il of money would have to be expended in temporary repairs. The ten-class-room idea, with laborators, meets with a good deal of favor, as it would be sufficient for presadded later, when necessary plan to be adopted a by-law will be submitted to the ratepayers.
