Last March figures were compiled at Toronto showing the number of exportable cattle that came into that market. 7 p.c. of the total were exportable. Many counties had no exportable beef, but Halton came second with 15 p.c. exportable, During the past two weeks the Department of Agriculture, Burlington, made, a census of the scrub bulls being used throughout the county and the percentage is very small, being about 6 p.c. Some counties of the Province were estimated to have 60 to 90 p.c. cerub bulls in use. Does there not seem to be some indication here that our comparative high standard of breeding is having its influence on our county exports of cuttle? Britain herself sought no territorial aggrandizements beyond the natural boundaries of India, and her chief purpose was to preserve intact sia, which covered them where they attack, says Sir Valentine Chirol, in the many blunders committed, often with the best intentions, was unquestionably the first Afghan war of 1841-42. The fanatical Mohammedan tribes of the wild Afghan highlands were ready eough to fly at each other's throats, but they sank their differences to fly at the throats of the British infidels who ventured to interfere in their affairs. For many years afterwards the British refrained from plunging their hand again into that hornet's nest and Anglo-Afghan relations were gradually restored to such a tolerable footing that in 1869 the Amir Shere Ali himself paid a friendly visit to the Viceroy of India, and in return for an annual subsidy, pledged himself to have no dealings with any other European power.
