Ancient Mode of Torture. Breaking on the wheel was a horrible mode of putting to death by torture formerly in use in Europe. The condemned criminal was first fastened to two pieces of wood in the form of a St. Andrew's cross, with his legs and arms extended, and had the bones of his shins and thighs and of the fore and upper arms broken with blows with a bar of iron. After that he was attached to a small carriage wheel balanced on a stake, and allowed to suffer in this position till he died, sometimes several days after the breaking of his limbs. Later the punishment was of farm stock and implements, the property of Wm. Frazer, at lot 5, con. which all Justices of the Peace, Corbe was strangled before even the oners, Constables, Gaolers, and all breaking of his limbs took place. The others concerned are requested to take torture, was last used in notice and attend, to do and perform about 1811.
