Four years ago the Board of Education reported that there were a million fewer children in our elementary schools than there were before the war, and since then the decrease has gone on steadily at the rate of 100,000 a year. Yet with the heavy fall in the number of children there has been a great increase in the number of twins and triplets born. Till a few years ago multiple births were curiously localized. A certain street in Deptford used to claim the distinction of being the quarter in which most twins were born, and not long ago there were in Cherry Grove, on the outskirts Lincoln, a pair of twins to every third

The same peculiarity extended to counties. Lancashire came first for twins, Liverpool making the largest contribution, and then followed London, with Yorkshire a poor third.
