The SNAPSHOT GUILD
PICTURES ON THE FARM

Everywhere on a farm there are pictures—simple, pleasing snapshots that will give your albums new appeal.

THE man who says "nothing ever happens on a farm" certainly isn't talking about pictures. On almost any farm, if you keep your eyes open, you will find enough snapshot material to keep the camera busy from early morning to late at night—and still not exhaust the supply.

Farm animals offer scores of picture chances—woolly lambs in the sun, a hen fussing over her brood of chicks, cows being driven in for milking, pigs at the trough (or their owner summoning them with a lusty shout), horses drinking, ducks waddling in a line about the yard or taking an afternoon "cruise" in the pond.

Work scenes in the field make excellent pictures, and fresh-plowed land with long deep furrows is good for pattern snapshots. The orchard in bloom is a scene of beauty, and all around the house and barn lot there are details which make pictures. Get a snap of Grandfather whitening, mending a single-tree, or busy at a whirling grindstone. Picture shady fence corners, old-time zigzag fences of laid rails, the battered wooden bucket at the well and the worn saw-horse or chopping block in the woodlot. Look for snapshots by the shady spring-house and brook. And watch the special seasons—such as hog-killing time later on—when there is some unusual activity to picture.

Yes, there are plenty of farm snapshots—everything from a calf being fed from a bottle to corn-husking shots at harvest time and foot-prints in the snow in winter. You can point your camera in almost any direction, and find something. Try it, every chance you get, and watch your picture albums grow!

Green Fruit Not Cause of Your Stomach Pains

Do you believe that eating green fruit causes tummy-ache? Do you imagine that an ostrich, when frightened, buries his head in the sand? Would you say that one must feed a cold and starve a fever—or that beef tea is nourishing?

If you do, declares a writer in London Answers Magazine, you're wrong.

It's swallowing fruit in chunks that causes pain, and there's actually less nourishment in six large cups of beef-tea than in one slice of bread.

As for feeding colds—the familiar saying is a misquotation of the famous Dr. Abernethy, who declared: "If you feed a cold you shall have to starve a fever," meaning that stuffing a person laid up with a cold would soon bring on a fever.

Then there's the idea that cats see better in the dark. Actually, the time when cats see at their best is twilight, because their pupils expand far more than ours and are sensitive to the ultra-violet rays of the spectrum. But after dark they're just as blind as we are.

If you think your heart is on the left side, you're entertaining another fallacy. It happens to be neither left nor right, but almost in the middle.

Shaving doesn't make hair grow faster. Experts have measured under a microscope the length of hair that grows, day by day, between shaves, and have compared this rate with the daily growth in people who don't shave. The average is exactly the same.

"Fenianism," Scheme of Irish, Irish-Americans

"Fenianism" was a movement of Irish and Irish-Americans to separate Ireland from Great Britain and form it into an independent republic. The first of the Fenian leaders, James Stephens, failing to create an uprising in Munster, came to the United States to form a union of Irish who had left their country following the famine of 1847, and with John O'Mahoney, organized the movement on this side of the Atlantic.

After the close of the Civil war, which cast thousands of Irishmen adrift, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News, Fenian societies—so-named from a Gaelic title—were formed rapidly in many cities in the United States, and an invasion of Canada, known as the "Fenian raid," was planned and partially carried out in 1866. Between 500 and 600 men crossed the Niagara river on June 1, but were driven back, many of them being arrested by the United States authorities. Other attempts which were made during the year were checked before the men could leave the American side of the boundary line. On May 25, 1870, however, a small Fenian force crossed the frontier at Trout river, in the province of Quebec, only to be driven back by Canadian volunteers. Effective measures later were taken to quell the activities of the Fenians, because of the accompanying threat to American-British relations, and the movement passed into obscurity.

While the Chief Slept

That tragical Black Hole affair of Calcutta, enshrined in English history, would probably never have occurred if the Subah of the country had not fallen asleep. For, as history tells the story, the cries of the 150 miserable Englishmen, crowded into a narrow space without ventilation and in danger of suffocation, touched the hearts of the Hindus who were guarding them, but their chief, the Subah, was asleep, and no one in Bengal dared to disturb his slumbers and request an order for the relief of the sufferers!

Famed Tower of London

Not one, but many towers compose the famed Tower of London. Normans built the fortress on the ruins of another fort constructed by Julius Caesar's legions. It has served since as the royal palace, a prison, and, finally, as sort of an historical museum and resting place for the crown jewels. Until 1831 it also housed the royal menagerie. Though many persons believe it still is an impregnable fort guarding London, its chief weapons are ancient swords and armor of historical value.

Dolls of the Ancients

"All the world loves a doll"—though what passes for a doll in some places wouldn't be recognized as such elsewhere. In parts of South America it's a bone, wrapped in a blanket if a boy, and in a petticoat if a girl. Boys and girls in Asia Minor play with willows as "dolls." Ancient Greek dolls were sometimes made of wax. Those of old Egypt had clay beads for hair. Cortes, on his first conquest trip into Mexico, found the Aztecs playing with dolls made of mud.

Co-operative Banking

The idea of co-operative banking was conceived by Herman Schulze-Delitzsch and was first put into practice in 1849 at Eilenburg, Prussia. It grew out of his efforts to rescue a number of carpenters and shoemakers from usury and to obtain money for them at fair terms upon their joint liability.

Our forefathers were those quaint, old-fashioned people who, if they couldn't earn enough to get along on, got along on what they earned.

According to the Hamilton Spectator the C.P.R.'s loss resulting from the wreck east of Milton last week is believed to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

In an account of a wedding last week we saw where the bride wore an Oxford grey suit, roman stripe blouse and black cat. Nothing like taking the family pet along.—Winston Echo.

A deer making its appearance near Noleton on the Bolton coast gave some American visitors the impression they were in Northern Canada. However, when they threw stones at the same young fellow, it was still some time before he scampered off, and they were then convinced that the wild life exists in this area only because the laws protect it.—Bolton Enterprise.

Sunday Law Enforcement Requested by Deputation to Ontario Government

Practical enforcement of Sunday laws depends upon public opinion. Attorney-General Gordon Conant recently told representatives of the Lord's Day Alliance, the various churches, the National Labor-council and the Retail Merchants' Association.

Mr. Conant promised that his department would distribute to law enforcement officers throughout the province, and to the public generally, a clear and concise summary of the Sunday law.

The Attorney-General emphasized that the Sunday law was not entirely clear or satisfactory, and added that penalties were nominal. Furthermore, he stated, it had been held by the Court that Sunday laws came within Federal jurisdiction.

The delegation appealed to Mr. Conant for full recognition of a policy of Province-wide enforcement of the Sunday law.

Enforcement of the Sunday law in many cases will be a hard job. The rising generation love their golf, tennis and softball on Sundays, and it will take drastic steps to stop it. Many claim there is no harm participating in other outdoor sports than golf, which is legalized in Canada.

SUGGESTS POULTRYMEN PRODUCE CHICKENS FOR EXPORT MARKET

Faunty Industries Committee Point to British Market Outlet for all Well Finished Canadian Chickens—Higher Prices for Quality Birds Than for Many Years.

"To avoid possible congestion on poultry market during the present year it is advisable that poultry producers should market a portion of their chickens at between three and five pounds dressed weight and take particular care to see that they are fattened before sale so that they can be exported if necessary."

This was the conclusion arrived at by a widely representative meeting convened under the auspices of the Poultry Industries Committee of Ontario to consider steps to be taken to handle the 1938 crop of dressed poultry. Last year the American market took upwards of six million pounds of Canadian poultry. This year it appears that this amount will be very materially curtailed on account of lower prices.

Notwithstanding the lower prices on the American market this year, a good deal of confidence was expressed that, with small stocks of poultry in storage this year and the favorable outlook on the British market, there is an outlet to take care of all the well finished poultry Canada's producers have to offer. Canadian chicken, as a result of previous exports, is in good demand on the British market and prices there are higher than they have been for many years.

To bring the best prices export poultry has to be well fleshed and fattened to the point of grading Milked A or Milked B. It was pointed out that a substantial premium is offered by the trade for well finished chickens. With feed costing less this season it appears that it will be more profitable than ever for producers to properly finish their chickens.

The best demand on the export market is for a medium weight chicken. It was felt that it would be advisable to market as many cockerels as possible at a dressed weight of three to five pounds. Producers present at the meeting said this could be done with good finish on the birds, by keeping them on full feed until they reached the desired weight.

Translated in terms of the individual producer's operations, the marketing of a certain percentage of his chickens at export weights is a form of insurance on the balance of his crop.

200 Attend Jersey Breeders' Picnic

ADDRESS GIVEN BY CHARLES MECK, ONTARIO MILK CONTROL BOARD

(Crowded out last week)

Two hundred Jersey cattle enthusiasts attended the annual picnic of Peel and Halton Jersey Breeders' Association, held at Lindsay Brothers' farm, near Hornby on Saturday last. York and Ontario counties were also represented.

The day's program was directed by Mr. Ward Riddell, of Georgetown, president of the Association, and Agricultural Representative, J. E. Whitlock of Milton. Messrs M. Cockburn and C. D. Graham, agricultural representatives of York and Peel also assisted.

On the program was a cattle grading competition at which Mr. James Bremner of Toronto, secretary Canadian Jersey Cattle Club, acted as Judge. Sports and speaking also had their part on the afternoon's program. During his address, Charles Meek, Toronto, chairman Ontario Milk Control Board, said: "Between what milk people are drinking and what they should drink, there is a great difference, milk producers should co-operate to ease the 'surplus milk problem' and to increase consumption."

"The Milk Control Board asks the co-operation of distributors and producers toward stabilizing the milk industry," the speaker stated. "The milk industry is a big employer—a bigger employer of men than the automobile industry."

"From the production standpoint, the milk supply today is good," he said. "We now have sanitary dairies and methods. But surveys show clearly there is not nearly the amount of milk consumed that nutrition experts advise. Something must be done to interest people more in milk. The tea industry has increased consumption millions of pounds a year, because of wide advertising."

OMAGH

(Crowded out last week)

The July meeting of the Omagh W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Robins on Tuesday, July 5th. The president, Mrs. C. K. McDougall, conducted the business of the meeting. Plans were made for the picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. B. J. Arrangements were discussed for the annual exhibit at Milton Fair. A report of the District Annual, prepared by Mrs. Bayly, was read by Mrs. Tasker. Mrs. Merry was present and gave words of encouragement and advice. A paper on Mental Health was read by Mrs. G. Dolty, convener of the Health W. I. Pleasing musical numbers by Mrs. Emerson Downs and Miss Lois Merry were much appreciated. A demonstration of a novel decoration for an afternoon tea table was conducted by Mrs. Hamilton. The roll call was answered by suggestions for First Aid. A bountiful lunch was served by the hostess and a social half-hour enjoyed.

DRUMQUIN

(Crowded out last week)

The ladies of Bethel W.M.S. entertained the Mission Circle, on Wednesday afternoon, July 6th, at the home of Mrs. Emerson Ford. The program was given by the Circle. Miss Dorothy Ball presiding in the absence of the president and vice-president. Miss Abbie Turner led the responsive reading of the scripture story, "The Courage of Esther," and Miss Merle Robinson read an article on the same theme. The roll call was answered by the word "Courage." A picture study of the 8th commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," was in charge of Miss Lela Featherstone. Miss Dorothy Ball read an article giving valuable information on Temperance. A piano solo, rendered by Miss Margaret Ford, was much enjoyed. The missionary topic, the story of David, a Jewish boy, was ably taken by Mrs. Emerson Ford. A very happy feature of the gathering was the presence of a former pastor and his wife, Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Kitching. A bountiful luncheon was served by the W.M.S.

George Kelly Goes to Jail For Creamery Theft Here

Sentenced at Milton on Monday by Judge W. N. Munro

CHARGE AGAINST SLATER IS DISMISSED

(Georgetown Herald)

"This has been one of the most difficult cases over which I've had to make up my mind," Judge W. N. Munro remarked in county criminal court at Milton on Monday. He sentenced George Kelly, 24, of North Bay, to 18 months determinate and six months indeterminate in the Ontario reformatory on charges of car theft and breaking and entering with theft, and acquitted Vernon Slater, 25 of Vancouver. Slater was charged as an accessory on both counts.

"I must admit," said Crown Attorney W. I. Dick, "that this is the first case in my experience where accused have made up their 'snowballs' before being charged. It's unique so far as I'm concerned."

Kelly pleaded guilty to both counts. Slater pleaded guilty to both counts. Kelly admitted breaking and entering the Georgetown Creamery owned by M. Saxe, and stealing $28 worth of cigarettes and tobacco. He also admitted theft of the car of Albert Livingstone, Georgetown, in which the crown alleged the two made their "getaway."

Slater claimed he was hitch-hiking from Barrie to Alliston on the day of the robbery, arriving at Alliston early in the evening. "I wandered the streets until 10 o'clock," he said. "I walked to the railroad track but didn't see a bus car. I decided to stay overnight in the shed."

"Early in the morning," he testified, "someone woke me up. It was George Kelly whom I hadn't seen since 1935. Kelly told me he had been mixed up in a street fight in Alliston and said that if anyone asked me about him, he had travelled from Barrie with me. I didn't want to do it, but he mentioned he had helped me in 1935 and I couldn't refuse."

"When police arrested me," Slater said, "I lied to them about Kelly. I knew they suspected Kelly of stealing a car but I didn't think he had done a thing like that." Accused told the crown that his previous statement to the effect that Kelly had accompanied him to Barrie was not true. He had hitch-hiked alone.

"I told you I was in a street fight in Alliston when I woke you in the lumber shed and I asked you to stand by me, which you did," Kelly explained on behalf of Slater, who was without counsel.

"I gave Slater two weeks' board in North Bay three years ago—that's why he helped me," Kelly explained to the court. "He's not a criminal, he's just a working man."

County Councillors Guests of Regiment

(Crowded out last week)

Members of the county councils of Halton, Peel and Dufferin were guests of the Lorne Scots (Peel, Dufferin and Halton regiments) at the annual camp mass dinner at Niagara camp last Wednesday evening.

The councillors, who arrived early in the afternoon, watched the various activities of the regiment and were greatly impressed with the scrupulous cleanliness of the camp and the smart precision with which the various operations were carried out.

Officers and men were unanimously of the opinion that the camp was accomplishing much more than previous training periods and there was an atmosphere of enthusiasm in all ranks.

Col. G. M. Fitzgerald, E.D., O.C. of the regiment, was congratulated by representatives of the counties and municipalities on the efficiency of the camp and the high calibre of the men attending.

ESCAPED PRISONER FOUND NEAR OTTAWA

(Crowded out last week)

Word was received here late Saturday that Wm. Moore, who escaped from Halton county jail here six weeks ago, has been arrested near Ottawa.

According to Provincial Constable George Cookman and A. J. Oliver, of Milton, Moore was arrested as "Wm. George Munden" by police in Carleton county, on a charge of robbery with violence. The alleged robbery took place near Ottawa, and police state Moore will be held in Carleton indefinitely, pending trial.

Moore, alias Bruce Marshall, broke jail here two days before his trial on three fraud charges and one of skipping bail. He was recently convicted in a Toronto supreme court on six charges of fraud and one of theft and given three years in Kingston penitentiary. The sentence was commenced upon completion of his trial here, where he is charged with passing worthless cheques in Halton county.
