

THE FALL FAIR

One of the many fine institutions that have come down to us since pioneer times is the annual fall fair. The first show, however, reported, took place at Niagara-on-the-Lake over a century ago, and the prize list was almost entirely founded upon a $25 grant from Governor Simcoe. The first fall fair was held in 1840, and so most of the institutions under the big bigs remain to-day. They act as an ideal link between town and country.

At the coming Fall Fair in Milton on Friday and Saturday, September 20 and 21, which is being held under the auspices of the Halton Agricultural Society, farmers from all parts of the four townships will exhibit their best produce. The citizens of Milton and surrounding towns and villages will come out to admire, and the farmers themselves will be there to compare.

Farming in Canada is still pretty much a job for individuals. Most farmers work alone, plow alone, their chow alone, reported, took great deal of chance for team work. Under such conditions one is liable to become too conservative, to go backward as much as forward. One sees one's own cattle, one's own crops. On the farm itself there is little chance to make comparison.

It is here that the country fair performs its most valuable service, because it offers an opportunity each fall for careful comparison. John Jones brings what in his opinion are his best cattle or hogs, to the show. If the judge gives him a prize, then Jones knows he is doing better than his cattle along the right line. If he loses out he can look at the prize winners in the next stall and see where his own animals are falling down. It is the same of course with fruits, vegetables, handicrafts.

The social mingling, too, of town and country folk is a fine thing, and does much to smooth out any differences of opinion, to check any gulf between two classes of people who are utterly dependent upon one another for their own living.

Charge Hamilton Men With Passing Counterfeit Bill

Cesidio Petrello, Burlington Street, and John Rowatt, Beach Road, Hamilton, are in custody in the county jail with more than a dozen other men of uttering counterfeit American bank notes against them. They were arrested following an interesting chase through Milton last Thursday night by provincial and local police. The local merchant who was one of his seven Milton merchants who claim to have been victimized.

Suspicious of a group of men led to the apprehension of the two by Provincial Constable A. J. Oliver and Chief M. Hadfield, of Milton. Police said they halted Petrello on the outskirts of the town as the latter was driving away. A chase on foot through the town's residential district just south of Main Street by Provincial Constable Oliver and R. C. Cunningham, one of the victimized merchants, resulted in the arrest of Rowatt, who, police said, was found hiding behind a grapevine near the local Canadian League headquarters. Less than an hour after the spurious bills were passed both men were in custody and the bills recovered.

Police investigations on Friday morning revealed that six counterfeit bills were passed in Nelson township and Burlington on Thursday. Police recovered the bills and state six charges were added to the seven already against the men in Milton. In each of the charges police said small purchases of groceries or tobacco were made and a counterfeit $5 bill given the merchant.

Accompanied by Provincial Constable A. J. Oliver, of Milton, Detectives Albert Speakman and Walter Hagan, Hamilton, and David Green, high constable, searched vainly in three east-end residences in Hamilton for counterfeit United States currency. Both men appeared before Magistrate Woodliffe here yesterday and were found guilty. They were remanded one week for sentence.

Appointed Voluntary Registrar for Halton

Mrs. Elsie Bell Gardner has been appointed by the Provincial Committee for the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women, chairman for the county of Halton, and will supervise the registration booths in different parts of the county. Registration week, now a nation-wide patriotic undertaking, will open in Halton county early next week, and a number of volunteer workers will be needed to help with the registration. Mrs. Edmund Hallett, of Oakville, expressed her willingness to be responsible for the work in Oakville, and her offer was gladly accepted. Mrs. Gardner is hoping that women in other parts of the county will offer their assistance, and is delighted with the offers of assistance she has had from Burlington girls and women, and will meet with them in a day or two to explain the work of registering.

Lorne Scots Recruiting.

Now that Canada is at war with Germany in earnest, Brampton has been made the military and recruiting headquarters for three courses as the Lorne Scots regiment is put on an active service basis. Outside, the armories look peaceful. Inside, things are humming with activity. "There is an abundance of men eager to serve. The great trouble is picking those required for immediate service," said Col. Louis Keene, of Oakville, commanding officer. Present orders from Ottawa only call for two units of men for service in Canada, but machinery is being set up to carry through complete mobilization and expansion when required.

Medical examining officers have found the applicants from Peel, Halton and Dufferin in better physical condition than city recruits. Only about six per cent, have to be rejected. With traditions running back to the war of 1812, the Lorne Scots regiment includes the famous Lorne Rifles and Peel and Dufferin regiments, reorganized in 1860 at the time of the Crimean war. It is responsible for armories at Oakville, Milton, Georgetown, Acton, Orangeville and Shelburne besides headquarters in Brampton.

Major Roy W. Lent of Brampton, solicitor of the municipality for the past 19 years, is second in command of the Lorne Scots.

While a number of young men from this district have signed up in Brampton, others have recruited in Hamilton.

The only happy marriages are those in which husbands and wives have the same tastes and like to do the same things.

Halton Juniors Take High Standing

Halton Juniors were again well to the fore in inter-club contests held recently at Brampton class B fair and the Canadian National exhibition. At the former show, which was open to juniors from the counties of Dufferin, Halton, Peel and York, Halton girls repeated their triumph of a year ago by winning first honors in the inter-club demonstrations. The team was from the Scotch Block group, of which Miss Peggy Marsh, of Milton, is the leader, and the team members were: Misses Charlotte McCullough, Reta Fisher and Dorothy Cleve. A second team from the same club placed third, and the Appleby team composed of Misses Mary Breckon, Florence Wilkerson and Florence Reid, was fourth. Halton girls were also prominent winners in the classes open to individual club members.

In the Junior Farmer division, a team from the Milton Holstein Calf club, composed of Bruce and Herb Reid and trained by Craig Reid, all of Georgetown, repeated their win of a year ago in the inter-club demonstration, while in the livestock judging competition Bruce Reid, of Georgetown, was the senior champion, with Herb Reid fourth in the junior section. Craig Reid, the third member of this winning family group, placed second in the grain and seed division for scores.

At the Canadian National exhibition where the competitions are open to the province, the Halton team from the Scotch Block group, composed of Misses Helen McGibbon, Christie Wilson and Marion Leslie, were champions in the clothing division, while the Halton team in the nutrition section placed fourth. This team was from the Appleby group, and was composed of the following young ladies: Mary Breckon, Florence Wilkerson and Florence Reid.

In the Junior Farmer activities, Halton's greatest triumph was the gold medal awarded to Donald Peor, of the Milton Holstein Calf club. This was emblematic of the grand champion showman over all breeds, which brought out 100 entries. In the inter-club club competitions, Halton representatives placed second in both Holstein and Jersey sections. The animals in the Holstein group were exhibited by Ward Brownridge, Ross Maxwell, Donald Peor and Bruce Reid, while in the Jersey group the Halton representatives were Ken and Bev Ella, Frank Millar and Fred Ruddle. The Junior Farmer livestock judging competitions brought out 335 competitors, and here Halton winners were as follows: Dairy cattle, Craig Reid 3rd, Jack Taylor 4th; beef cattle, Alton Breckon 7th, Walter Reid 11th; heavy horses, John McNabb 7th; swine, Bruce Reid 7th; poultry, Ernest Davies 4th, George Young 7th.

Our congratulations are extended to the young people mentioned and also to the many others engaged in the very excellent Junior Farmer and Junior Homemaker programs being conducted throughout the county, not only for the honors they continue to bring to Halton, but more particularly for their initiative and energy in thus equipping themselves for the future.

Our congratulations are extended to the young people mentioned and also to the many others engaged in the very excellent Junior Farmer and Junior Homemaker programs being conducted throughout the county, not only for the honors they continue to bring to Halton, but more particularly for their initiative and energy in thus equipping themselves for the future.

HOARDING

Foodstuffs, fuel or any other necessity of life for hoarding will be seized by the war-time prices and trade board. This provision was clearly defined in the order-in-council tabled in parliament at Ottawa last Friday, which gave the board power to establish regulations for the sale, supplies and distribution of the necessities of life.

A penalty of up to $5,000 or up to two years imprisonment is provided for offenders. The order gives the board authority to seize any hoarded supply and reimburse the owners through a price fixed by a superior court judge after arbitration. The board will have wide powers to fix maximum prices or margins of profit, to fix the amount that may be sold or purchased and to itself buy and sell supplies through agencies designated by the board.

Anti-hoarding regulations will affect the ordinary householder, as well as his merchant, wholesaler and manufacturer. The order-in-council makes it clear:

"No person shall accumulate or withhold from sale any necessary of life beyond an amount thereof reasonably required for the use or consumption of his household or for the ordinary purposes of his business," the regulation declares.

1939 Fair at Acton Is Biggest Yet

The secretary of Acton fair, announced for next Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 19 and 20th, has intimated that the attractions for this year eclipse those of former years. For instance, at the first night arena show, Russ Creighton and his Canadian Mountaineers, Norm Harper, we Clara Pelly, Lorraine Hills and Gary Anderson will be added to the usual contests, jumpers and horse show features. A bigger prize list, attracting exhibitors, and the races, livestock parade and grand stand events will make it a lively afternoon. More midway features have been booked, and Rex Slocombe, variety entertainer, will see that there is not a dull moment.

BASEBALL

GALT PACKARDS WIN. Galt Packards won the first round O. B.A. intermediate "B" with a 10 to 2 verdict over Acton Tamers in the second game of the series at Acton on Saturday last.

BATTERIES—Charlton and Murray; Morton and Ryder and Anderson.

BOWMANVILLE DEFEATS OAKVILLE. Banging out twenty solid hits of every description and dimensions, Bowmanville Royals smothered Oakville under a 14 to 2 defeat at Bowmanville on Saturday last in the third and deciding game of their O.B.A. intermediate "A" playoff series. Starting off with Boyd Stemon's three-run homer in the first inning, the Royals continued the assault on the three members of the Villains' staff. Gus Fielder Post was the only visitor able to solve the mystery of Osborne with any success. That worthy pounded out four straight hits, including two doubles, while the whole Oakville team collected only ten bingles.

Bowmanville... 301 401 401 20 3 Oakville... 100 100 002 5 10 3 Batteries—Osborne and Rickard; Gibb, D. Galbraith, Havel and Lyon and Markey.

The meeting was largely attended. The W.M. Bro. Vernon Barker presided. It was decided to hold the next meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 6th. Officers and members please note change of date.

The regular meeting of Jean Gordon Ladies' L.O.B.A. No. 464 was held on Wednesday evening, Sept. 6th. The attendance was fairly large. Some very important business was transacted in the interests of Orange order in general. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, Oct. 11th, instead of Oct. 4th.

Two Orange lodges are doing good work in the interest of our beloved order. In denying responsibility for the sinking of the Athena, Germany must wish that she had a reputation for telling the truth. There will be some raised eyebrows in Germany when it is learned that the first profiteers in the war are none other than the Italians. It has been the custom to speak of Britain muddling through. This time it will be different, and her methods will be model, not muddle.

The people are told they should not let their minds wander. It is still more harmful to let their feet wander into the places where they get into trouble. Some people don't see why a few days in summer are called dog days, when the bones left around on the lawn are a sign that every day is dog day in most towns.

Marriage Licenses Reach Record High

A rumor that no more marriage licenses would be issued because of the war caused a run on the marriage license bureau at the city hall, Toronto, last week. Officials at the bureau branded this rumor as "absolutely false."

Even before the license bureau opened at 9 a.m., 30 couples were impatiently lined up in front of the door. Inside a telephone was constantly ringing. "I don't know how this fool rumor started, but they can't do anything in the license bureau except answer telephones. The whole story is absurd," City Clerk Somers said.

At 10.15 Frank Dunlop, issuer of marriage licenses reported the rush to be "under control." "We take their names and money, and then send them away for the time being. The telephones are still going strong, and every call means a considerable delay to some waiting couple. It is by far the worst run I have ever seen," Mr. Dunlop said.

Italy is remaining neutral for the present, we are told. What will Hitler think if Mussolini gets the habit?

ONE OF THE WORRIES OF BUSINESS

Under the heading "What's Wrong With Business" the Gumbly Independent tells a story which has an excellent moral for all. The Independent says: "The difficulties the small business man has in financing is evidenced by the following story related to us by a bank official not so very far from this town."

He stated that a certain merchant in the town was overdrawn and that it was his duty to check on him each day regarding deposits. In the course of his work he noticed an order amounting to $32.00, which had been charged on a certain morning. During the same afternoon, however, this man did not see fit to pay the account to the merchant, made a deposit in the bank of over $250.00, his account at that time amounting to over $500.00. Thus, the man who could pay a note of $32.00 and one-half per cent. interest on his deposit and forcing the merchant to pay six per cent. on borrowed money.

This seems an example of "What's Wrong With Business." If people who can, would pay their bills promptly, it would greatly assist the smaller business man.

WHAT TOWN EXPECTS FROM THE COUNTRY

(High River Times) A few weeks ago this paper had an editorial on what the farmer expects from his district town. This was widely reproduced in other papers, giving the farm viewpoint quite an amount of publicity. It has been suggested that in order to make the perfect whole, we should discuss what the town desires or expects from the surrounding countryside.

In order to provide the facilities and services which farm people appreciate, the town must have reasonable security of the country trade. It has a right to expect patronage, if for no other reason than that farm values are enhanced by proximity to a good town. It makes the rural area more desirable and becomes a financial asset. An instance in this district illustrates the points. A farmer, desiring to sell his land, advertised it, placing great emphasis on the town near which the land was located, and playing up the facilities of the town. As a direct result of the services the town provided, he sold his land for $10 an acre more than he would otherwise have obtained. Yet ironically, this man never patronized the town which he used for reference and "boost" in his ad. He did all his buying in the city, but brazenly took advantage in his ad of the business centre which other loyal farmers and townspeople had created. Considering that he had made no contribution to the upkeep of the town, he must surely have felt some guilt if other residents had followed his practice there would have been no town.

One often hears the argument, "I owe nothing to local dealers. I buy where I like." This is a false and short-sighted view. We all are interdependent, as individuals and as groups of a community. The more patronage a town enjoys from the surrounding district, the better facilities it can provide. It will have better schools, better churches, better professional services of every type. The stores will be able to increase stock and carry better stock. More expert mechanics will be available. Sports and recreational outlets will flourish, and the town in its material aspect, its streets and homes will be more attractive.

In these days of easy travel, when education, hospitalization and so on are becoming increasingly centralized, it is very important to the farm population that they have a good town near at hand. When children reach high school age and must leave home, it is a great advantage to have them within easy reach where they can have a fair measure of home oversight. If it is not out of place, one might mention also a town facility very greatly appreciated by rural residents, the cemetery. This last resting place is kept beautiful, largely by town taxation. There are few people either in town or country who have not some link with the local cemetery, and value the care which is being given.

When people who believe they owe the home town nothing, make out a substantial money order to some mail order house with which they deal, they should ask themselves, "What do these dealers mean by this commensality? Do they help in paying the taxes which keep schools and hospitals functioning? Do they help support our church, build up our sports, assist in our charities, contribute to our community halls or other rural projects? Are they people with whom I am likely to have any social relationship, or on whom I could depend for one kindly gesture in time of misfortune?" More than that, they can ask themselves if they would ever expect to get the credit, which they have asked for and received, from the home dealer.

It is obvious that the farmer who does most of his dealing in a town gets most out of the town. Not only through the consideration given to a steady customer, but in more intangible ways. His loyalty is appreciated by townspeople, and he feels at home. He feels that the streets and the parks and all the facilities are partly his, because he has helped to make them possible. It is in very fact "his town." This is all that should be. Country people have a many-sided investment in their home town. Its prosperity and progressiveness is merely a reflection of the good-will, loyalty and progressiveness of the farm people around it.
