Twenty-Eight Days
Would you believe there are only 28 shopping days before Christmas? With the local merchants unpacking their merchandise, decorating their stores and windows for this festive occasion the fact must be borne in mind the service they present to the community. If one could only imagine the enormous outlay the local merchants have made to help the people who work one and all, give them the hearty support they deserve. Since the first snow has fallen and boys skating on the icy streets, the time is drawing mightily close to that great day when we will each have every child and adult, who are children at heart, look forward. Let us make it one, which in spite of world conflict, pray for "Peace on Earth good will toward men."

St. Paul's Church W.M.S.
The November meeting of St. Paul's Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Galbraith. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Galbraith, and opened by singing "God Save the King" and was followed by prayer in unison from the W.M.S. prayer card. The minutes of the October meeting were read by the Rec. Sec., Mrs. T. Brown. Miss Bowes, treasurer, gave the financial report. Reports from the secretarial officers were given. The roll call was answered by quotations containing the word "peace." The worship service was conducted by Miss Wilford, assisted by Mrs. P. Lamb. Mrs. R. M. Clements had charge of the topic, which was a tribute to the memory of Miss Shipley, a most devoted and active missionary in Honan, China. She was born near Carlisle, Ont., and early in life dedicated herself to missionary work. She saw the great need of harmonizing the Chinese and English languages in order to obtain the best results to impress the teaching of the gospel upon the foreign mind, and spent much time in the work. Her work in teaching, and Christian leadership, especially amongst the Chinese women and children, was outstanding and she endeavored to do all with whom she came in contact that her memory is still revered and loved. Mesdames Cox, Lamb and Wilford assisted by impersonating three native women, giving a dramatic tribute to this beloved teacher and evangelist. Miss Shipley. The meeting closed by singing and benediction by the president.

Amusing table-top pictures are fun to plan—easy to shoot. Use any camera and a supplementary "close-up" lens.

OUR house has suddenly become a workshop for table-top pictures. For the past five or six evenings, Jack and Ann have been busy with fascinating little set-ups, and I've never seen anybody have more fun with a camera.

They're clever at it, too—thinking up "table-top" ideas, and finding household materials for the scenes. The nursery has been raided for small toys, and almost all the statuettes in Grandma's whatnot have been borrowed, to pose in pictures. Pictures have also come out of the icebox and vegetable bin—quaint animals and figures made of carrots, or potatoes, with toothpick legs, and tufts of cotton for tails.

I've made my contribution to the fun; I'm all out of pipe cleaners, cleaners, and you can twist them into the most amazing little figures—just perfect for use in table-top scenes.

Our table top activity started one evening last week, right after dinner, when Jack began popping questions at me, "Uncle John," he demanded, "what does plus-three mean on a lens?"

"It's just a rating," I said. "Put a plus-three supplementary lens in front of your camera lens, and you can have the camera only about thirteen inches from a subject. Plus-two, about twenty inches; plus-one, about forty inches. And even closer with your camera, because it's a focusing model. So, you get larger images."

"That's good," said Jack, "because I got me a plus-three and a plus-two today. They don't cost much, and the clerk said they were easy to use. What can I shoot with them?"
"Oh," I said, "any small subject—nature subjects, flowers, table-top scenes—" That was as far as I managed to go. The table-top idea aroused his curiosity, and I didn't finish the newspaper that evening. Instead, we built snow scenes, with an old carpet draped over some boxes for hills, and ice-cream salt for snow. To add life, we put in a couple of toy figures borrowed from the nursery. Effective? The scenes were perfect!
"I'd enjoy table-top shooting, and here's all there is to it. Arrange your scene, put the camera on a firm support at just the right distance to suit the supplementary lens you're using—and shoot. If your camera has a fast lens, stop it down to f/11, for better sharpness all through the scene. Exposure?—It's just the same as for any other shot under the same light conditions. Indoors, use photo bulbs and high speed film, as for regular snapshots at night."
It's fun to plan these "table-top" scenes—easy to shoot them—and they do lend spice to your picture album.
