Cooks Blend Christmas Pudding

Christmas pudding, complete with proper fixings, including a spot of stout and a drop of rum to blend the flavorings, is now maturing in Canadian National Railways pantries in readiness for the holiday season. When the "zero" day comes next month, Christmas pudding will appear on the menu of System dining cars and station restaurants from coast to coast.

The preparation of Christmas pudding by Canadian National chefs is an annual event observed with complete respect for tradition and the faithful observance of an old English recipe. Despite wartime difficulties all the necessary ingredients were obtained and will be included in the coming issue. Hitherto, the kitchen of a railway dining car has been the scene of the mixing and cooking, but the 1943 edition was prepared in the restaurant facilities at the new Central Station in Montreal. The "mixing" had a martial atmosphere owing to the presence of military cooks desrous of gaining a hint or two concerning pudding in wholesale quantities, information later useful in army kitchens for the forthcoming issue of "Pudding, plum, all ranks, for the use of."

More than three tons of pudding, well over 6,000 pounds, were mixed, steamed and stored in readiness for the holiday season, an amount sufficient for more than 36,000 servings. Domestic tradition requires Christmas pudding to be boiled in a cloth, but railway chefs steam the mixture and for transportation convenience place the product in tins, 5,000 such containers being required this year.
