HUGHES CLEAVER

The War Loan Campaign has now opened.

During 1943 about one half of Canada's national income went into direct war uses as compared with 15% of the national income which went into the war effort in the fourth year of the last war. Every dollar of the current income of Canadians that can be safely taken by taxation without causing real distress has been taken and this amount reaches little more than half of our current war costs. The balance of the cost of the war must be raised by voluntary loans. The most important loans to help the war effort are the small personal loans of accumulated savings. Loans by large corporations will be secured without any campaign as there is no safer investment than a government bond.

The small investor who is monthly saving small sums of money usually prefers to keep these in the bank account. This is the money which should go into War Bonds. You run no risk by investing it as in the event of any urgent need your bond can be cashed at par and accrued interest at any time. If you keep the money in the bank you might be tempted to spend it for articles which should not be bought until the war is over. The Government wishes to borrow this money from you rather than borrow it from the banks. By postponing your desire for household goods until the war is won you not only help the war effort but you are doing something which will help employment in the postwar period. You benefit too because your money will buy more goods when goods are plentiful in the post-war period.

BUY ALL THE BONDS YOU CAN BUY NOW AND PLEDGE YOUR FUTURE SAVINGS BY BUYING ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN
