BANTAM WYANDOTTES NEW POULTRY BREED

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new race of bantam poultry is being born in Vancouver where William Stibbards, retired building contractor is experimenting with new breeds of pigmy poultry. At his tom-thumb poultry farm here Mr. Stibbards is working with 300 birds embracing 20 standard varieties of pint-sized fowl.

In the Stibbards pens are prize full-size Wyandotte cockerels some of which average more than eight pounds. Nearby are tiny replicas of the same birds—weighing little more than 20 ounces.

The big Wyandottes were crossed with bantams and the smallest progeny picked out and bred to smaller types until the true bantam Wyandotte became a breed.

Mr. Stibbards said he believes that he has on his farm some of the finest silver variety of Sebrights in the west. They are tiny silvery birds with markings which make it appear they have been covered with a shawl of black lace.

In other pens are champions of all the best known bantam breeds including Silkie, Black and Buff Cochins, Dark Cornish, Black Rosecombs, White and Golden Wyandottes.

HEAVY RAINFALL

LEATHERBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Southwestern Alberta is one of the brightest spots on the prairie agricultural map, favored by nearly a foot of rain in many areas in April and May—more than double the long-time average. Livestock are showing benefits from improved grass growth.

FROG-LEG FAMINE LOOMS

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—Lambton County's frog-leg harvest was unprofitable this year. District Indians who catch and sell the delicacy to large hotels throughout the continent report cool weather drove frogs into the grass where they were difficult to locate.

Tiny Village Slated For Invasion Centre

French Hamlet Prepared For Nazi Headquarters But Never Used

VREGNY, France (CP)—This quiet farming village, a tiny speck on the map, was destined for an important place in the world history the Axis was making—Supreme Headquarters for Germany's invasion of Britain.

Millions of marks and the work of thousands of slave laborers were poured into the construction of one of the most elaborate, heavily fortified and adroitly camouflaged areas—35 by 45 miles—in all of Hitler's conquered territory. But it never was used. Abandoned before the advancing U.S. armies last year, the German crew had time only to burst the breeches of the guns, and rip out the power installations.

An old chateau was set up as Heinrich Himmler's headquarters, and the Germans utilized the surrounding pastoral scene, which they left untouched. But they reinforced the chateau, modernized the interior, and built and camouflaged a huge air raid shelter nearby.

Barracks, shelters, pillboxes, fox holes, car parks and gun positions are covered with chicken-wire hung with plastic leaves and plastic flowers. Some of the leaves also were made from squares of French newspapers, compressed, cut and then painted the color of natural scenery.

Continental Europe Needs Food Imports

The outlook for local food supplies and requirements in Continental Europe, according to the recent report issued by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations, definitely indicates a large import need for the remaining month (July) of the current consumption year (August 1, 1944 to July 31, 1945) and for the subsequent twelve months. The United Nations, states the report, face a situation which holds no prospect of improvement. Continental Europe's supply of food from domestic sources in the consumption year 1945-46 will be the smallest since the outbreak of war. The decline from the 1944-45 level may amount from 5 to 10 per cent. for the Continent as a whole. But total supplies do not tell the whole story—distribution is equally important.

In view of these circumstances, especially the prospective decline in the production of food for the consumption year 1945-46 and a net deterioration in the effectiveness of agricultural and distribution controls, import requirements for a liberated Continental Europe will be large. Considering these requirements, not in terms of probable effective demand or availability of supplies and shipping but only in terms of the quantity necessary to bring about some improvement in liberated countries and prevent large-scale starvation in enemy countries, a total of about 12 million short tons of food would be needed for the Continent in 1945-46. This total could consist largely of wheat, but should also include substantial quantities of fats and animal protein foods as well as sugar.

TESTING GAUGE

An important aid to mass precision production in United Kingdom industry is an inspection gauge of the caliper type which not only tests product parts, but automatically registers the exact divergence from the normal of the parts which are being tested.

The ordinary type of gauge merely shows whether or not the parts are close enough to the required dimensions to be usable. The new gauge, called the Indi-Gauge, also gives a reading from which the necessary tooling alterations can be made immediately, when any tendency of divergence from the normal appears.

Method of operation is simple—After the gauge is set for use a spring plunger is moved vertically, with a magnification of 50 to 1. This rotates the pivot—on which the indicating finger rests—causing the latter to move over the scale. This scale is so finely graded that readings of 0.0002 inches can easily be made. Tests equivalent to one million gauging operations have shown that the resultant wear did not exceed a permissible tolerance.

BRITAIN'S NURSES GET NEW UNIFORMS

LONDON (CP)—Britain's 90,000 nurses are to get a break in the clothing line.

A new uniform is being designed to answer nurses requests for a dress distinguishable from that worn by voluntary and part-time nurses and which at the same time will be smart and practical.

Present plans call for a uniform of white silk poplin with heavy epaulettes for the generally trained nurse, green epaulettes for mental and cornflower blue epaulettes for the assistant. A navy cape and wedge cap will be added.

Student nurses' uniforms call for short-sleeved, double breasted overalls with belt and detachable buttons.

Opposition to the new-type uniforms is expected from many of the big voluntary hospitals whose uniforms have become traditional.

with France's hereditary enemy, Germany, and plotting against the security of France.

The 89-year-old hero of Verdun in the First Great War, greeted in the Paris court by catcalls and disorderly uproar, denied the charges and said: "For the French people I went so far as to sacrifice my prestige . . . occupation compelled me to spare the enemy, but I spared him only to spare you yourselves until your territory was liberated."

Before the High Court of Justice and a 24-man jury, more than 90 witnesses will be heard, including former Premier Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, Edouard Herriot and a former French President, Albert Lebrun.

Paul Reynaud, the premier who brought Marshal Petain into the French Government in 1940, in testifying concerning events in France following her defeat by Germany in June 1940, declared that he despised Petain.

Attack Continues

British and American planes and warships continue to pour bombs and shells into Japan in a stunning bombardment which Tokyo says has lasted a day-and-a-half. Disregarding bad weather, the combined Allied sea and air forces have attacked the Japanese all the way from southern Honshu to Hokkaido.

According to a Tokyo report Allied warships shuttled back to the southern approaches to the Japanese capital, opening with its guns early to-day on Kanagawa prefecture. U. S. Admiral Mimitz so far has only announced a pre-dawn bombardment by a cruiser and destroyer flotilla around the Kushimoto seaplane base 250 miles south of the Kanagawa area.

During Tuesday Allied forces claimed the destruction or damage of 40 Japanese vessels, including 11 warships and 109 planes.

LIMEHOUSE

Mrs. W. Mitchell and Miss Doris are holidaying in Detroit, Michigan.

Miss Inez Scott and Miss Grace Beerman holidayed at Chesley last week.

Mr. Harvey Norton is making satisfactory progress in Guelph General Hospital following an operation two weeks ago.

Mr. Glendon Scott is at camp with the Lorne Scots.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowden and children of Windsor spent the week-end with Miss Ivans and Mrs. Gale.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hamilton and children, of Uxbridge, visited his brother Mr. Ken. Hamilton and family a couple of days last week.

Miss Marie Roe, of Georgetown, visited her aunt, Mrs. E. Miller last week.

A pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick on Friday when friends and neighbors gathered to wish the Hill family happiness in their new home in Acton and to present them with a gift of remembrance from Limehouse. After a few games of progressive euchre at which Mrs. E. Miller and A. Benton were highest scorers, an address was read and Mr. and Mrs. Hill were presented with an end table and table lamp on behalf of the community. On behalf of the Women's Institute Mrs. Ellerby called Mrs. Hill forward and Mrs. Gisby presented her with a gift of pictures in appreciation of her help in the work of that organization. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hill replied expressing thanks and stating that practically all their life in Canada having been spent in the village made it still seem to be home even though they had moved away. After lunch a few dances were enjoyed bringing another enjoyable gathering to a close.

FOUGHT MALARIA WITH A BAG OF MOSQUITOES

EPSOM England (CP)—P. G. Shute is a man who, in his job as assistant malaria officer for the Ministry of Health, fought this war with a bag of 1,000 mosquitoes.

During the Italian campaign the German "flood and infect" method of warfare was downing thousands of Allied soldiers with malaria and the situation became so serious that the progress of the war was affected. Shute gathered 1,000 non-infected, British-reared mosquitoes, put them in a canvas bag, and flew to Italy, to carry out experiments in malaria cures.

In army hospitals he asked the malaria-infested men if they would let the mosquitoes bite them and sick as they were, they volunteered. Back in England, Shute had healthy British soldiers, all volunteers, bitten by the now-infected mosquitoes and when the men contracted the disease, he tried out his new drugs.

One of these was Mepacrine, but the others still are secret. The experiment was highly successful and the malaria rate in Italy was reduced.
