CALGARY ALBERTAN PRAISES WEEKLIES

CALGARY, Alberta (CP) — Paying tribute to the weekly press of Canada, the Calgary Albertan said in a recent editorial that "the grass roots press-the country weekliescan always be sure of a professional, and therefore sincere and informed, tribute in the offices of their larger brethren, the dailies."

The editorial went on to ask if the people they serve have the same appreciation of them.

"The editor of the country weekly is a hard-working, valuable and toooften undervalued member of his community.

"He is a chronicler of its life, of its deaths and births, its daily round and occasional calamity . . he has a sympathetic ear for everybody's troubles and everybody's joys. He is behind a goodly portion of all progressive public action, and at the same time takes great pains not to inflict private wrong or suffering.

"He is more intimately a part of the life of his community than any other type of writer or editor can become. His reward is not the admiration of his professional brotherhood, but in the progress of his town, and the affection of its people.

"His loyalty to his community is reflected by its loyalty to him, and many a four-page weekly set and printed by the editor himself, though its circulation may be small indeed, sends to the far corners of the earth, to old townsfolk in California, Florida, England and the Antipodes and other distant places, a proportion of that circulation which the biggest city dailies never hope to equal."
