TORONTO (CP)—The long spell of hot, dry weather meant trouble for fire rangers throughout Northern Ontario as bush fires raced through the tinder-like forests in widespread areas of the province.

A fire described as the worst in the Algoma district in many years was flaring across the McFadden lumber company's property in the Mississauga section 40 miles north of Blind River.

Two men were under arrest at Haliburton and police said they would lay charges of failing to put out a camp fire after a blaze spread over more than three acres of forest land and threatened the town of Haliburton itself. It took 100 men to bring the fire under control.

Soldiers from Camp Borden were called into action to fight another blaze in Matchedash township near Parry Sound but week-end rain prevented it from spreading. There were also seven fires in the Rainy River district and a number in the Sudbury area. Fires were also reported in the Port Arthur and Fort Frances districts.

A widespread travel ban was imposed by officials of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department as 14 townships in the Timmins-Cochrane area and a large part of the Sudbury district were declared out of bounds to tourists until the fire hazard decreased.

In the Mississauga blaze 230 men with 11 pumps and 2 bulldozers were thrown into action and were attempting to cut a fireline along the southern limits of the fire area. Several small settlements were in danger as a strong northwest wind threatened to carry the flames across the Weneban River where the blaze had been temporarily checked.

For the third time in its history the University of Toronto has growing pains. Twice before, in 1906 and 1929, the university has had a sudden upsurge in enrollment and facilities, but this year's boom promises to eclipse the institution's previous growth.

Enrollment, down to 5,500 during the war years, soared to 11,000 in 1945 and promises to reach the 18,000 mark this fall. Officials say the university will never again reach its wartime low water mark when, incidentally, it was still the largest in the British Empire.

Coupled with the increased enrollment is a marked expansion of educational facilities. New departments are being opened and planned and salaries of professors are being increased. New buildings are being built and widespread renovations are in progress. More scholarships now are available with still more expected.

A department of Russian studies is almost complete and a course in diplomatic relations will open this fall. A school of industrial relations was opened during the summer and a school of journalism is in prospect.

The "big class" in engineering in 1919-20 numbered 300 students. This year the engineering faculty will have 10 times that number with first and second-year students studying at the newly-opened Ajax division, a former munitions plant 23 miles east of Toronto. About half of this year's expected students will be former servicemen, numbering more than the university's entire pre-war registration.

Britain Needs Silage Boost

Would Offset Threatened Animal Feed Shortage

LONDON (CP)—British farmers are being asked to follow the example of Canadian and United States dairy farms and make greater use of silage to compensate in part for reduced supplies of feeding stuffs this winter. The agriculture ministry is drawing farmers' attention to a publication, "Milk in North America," published by the Stationery Office. It contains the findings of a British delegation which toured eastern Canada and United States dairy farms.

The delegation noted that on every North American dairy farm the silo was a piece of standard equipment and was used extensively. Silage-making has fallen off in the United Kingdom in recent years, possibly due to labor shortages.

The ministry suggested farmers sow crops like turnips, rye and barley for fall or winter harvesting and as silage, and also plan catch crops to be sown after arable silage crops have been gathered.

Well-grown kale or cabbage transplants have been found to yield well after an arable hay crop, it said.

Council voted to leave the matter of appointing an engineer for the town for the installation of sewerage disposal system over to a later meeting when more consideration can be given the matter.

Councillor Crawford reported that the county assessor was to have his forms ready within the week and then Assessor F. McNiven would be able to make a start to assess according to the new system as sponsored by the County Council.

The matter of painting and making minor repairs to the arena was left for the Arena Committee to attend to.

At the close of council meeting Mayor Dawson showed to Councillors and officials pictures in natural color taken while on his trip to the coast.

Ancient Iron Work Stands Time Test

600 Year-Old Metal in Cathedral Spire Still in Good Condition

SALISBURY, England (CP)—Though original wrought iron-work now over 600 years old continues to bind Salisbury Cathedral's renowned 404-foot spire, other iron-work added to reinforce the structure in the 18th and 19th centuries is rapidly being corroded an examination has shown.

The masonry is being split by acute rusting of the later additions, a consulting architect told a meeting of Friends of Salisbury Cathedral, but there is still no indication of movement or deflection in spire. Members of the Iron and Steel Institute who recently visited the Cathedral were "surprised" at the way the original unpainted metal has outlasted painted iron added centuries later.

The architect's report on the overall condition of the cathedral was said to be "reassuring."

St. James' Anglican Church, Port Colborne, decorated with baskets of multi-colored gladioli and white hydrangea was the scene of a wedding of interest to local and district residents recently, when Beryl Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Davies, Port Colborne, became the bride of Peter Barker Pickersgill, St. Catharines, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Pickersgill, Campbellville. Rev. H. G. L. Baugh officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown made from her brother's parachute and fashioned with a basque bodice and richly gathered skirt sweeping into a circular train. The bodice was styled with puffed sleeves and a deep portrait neckline, encrusted with a bertha of heirloom lace. Her full length veil was caught to her head with a chaplet of matching heirloom lace. She carried white gladioli and baby's breath.

Mrs. C. I. Park, New York, was matron of honor, wearing yellow taffeta dress with long torso and bustle, three quarter length sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Her headdress was of yellow tulle. She carried a bouquet of gladioli in pastel shades and baby's breath.

Miss Eleanor Currie, Niagara Falls, as bridesmaid wore ice blue taffeta and blue flower headdress and carried pastel gladioli and baby's breath.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Rathfon Inn. Receiving with the bride party were the mother of the bride attired in a gown of silk sheer in violet shades on white, styled with a bustle effect, a flower hat in the same shades and an orchid corsage with sweet peas, and the mother of the bridegroom, who chose a silk print ensemble, Baku hat, beige accessories and a corsage similar to that of Mrs. Davies.

For the wedding trip to the Muskoka district the bride wore a dress of navy and white silk jersey and red accessories. On their return they plan to reside in St. Catharines. SAY NEWS RATIONED BY PAPER SHORTAGE

EDINBURGH (CP)—Continued restriction of newsprint supplies for British papers was criticized at the annual meeting of the National Society of Electro-Typers and Stereotypers.

"There has never been a time since the introduction of popular newspapers when the public has been so inadequately informed of details of proposed legislation," the report said.

Continued restriction would have a serious effect on employment and the rehabilitation of returned men, it was added. Therefore the society would continue to press for larger imports of newsprint "balanced with the claims of other imports."

FAMILY OF RAILROADERS: A record, believed unique in the history of Canadian railroads, is that of Ernest Legare, of Montreal, and his seven sons, all employees of the operating department on the Laurentian division and all on the Montreal-Mont Laurier run of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The father, who joined the C.P.R. in 1907 is a locomotive engineer and is himself one of eight brothers, all of whom have worked or are working for the company. He and one of his brothers still are railroading, two are dead, three have been retired on pension and one has left the railroad to establish his own business. Five of these brothers and four of Ernest Legare's sisters have children in C.P.R. employ and altogether there are more than 40 members of the Legare family on the company payroll in and around Montreal. Pictured here are Mr. Legare and his sons, left to right: Front Row—Gerard, fireman; Romeo, engineer; the father; Fernand, youngest of the family, fireman; Back Row—Edouard, brakeman; Roland, brakeman; Marcel, engineer, and Roger, engineer.
