The big question one heard yesterday? How can Georgetown get away with it? They were beaten, Milton won group honors, and just because the O.H.A. doesn't like the set up, have Milton eliminated in a sudden death affair.

Even if the locals are defeated, they know they won the championship in two straight games.

As this column has said before, the Paperowners have a good club, and on the play during those few short minutes in the third, the locals weakened sufficiently to lose the contest.

Fans were pleased to see that perennial player, Mike Cox, in uniform again. It was hard to ask him to be in there at his best, after such a long lay-off, but he was in there pitching just the same.

Fans are trying to figure out the bulletin on hockey results published in daily papers which says "Georgetown 4, Milton 2 (Georgetown wins round 9-8)". There's one for the calculating machine to solve.

Dame rumor has it that Georgetown are not through the maze as yet. It seems that Milton officials have sufficient ground to protest the Tuesday game, even on technicalities. And the O.H.A. seem to like pushing teams around on such offenses.

Which leads up to an exclusive story, of a Georgetown player accepting a bet for gain, on the first Milton-Georgetown game, a week ago. Who would have ever thought players in amateur ranks would bet on themselves. A few short weeks ago, such a scandal was brought to light in the National Hockey League, and one would have thought it would have been a lesson to those in the Simon Pure ranks as well.

Yes, this writer has checked and re-checked the story, at first thinking it was only a rumor but alas, the rumor vanished into thin air, as the party who received the five-to-one bet from a Georgetown player made sure he collected it. On top of that another person witnessed the deal. Each of those involved has assured the writer their willingness to make the facts known to the proper authorities at the proper time.

One can expect such tactics in professional sport, and when investigation is made, the culprits are punished. If such is the case in amateur sport, one can only say, the sport has sadly sunk into the doldrums. Officials of the O.H.A. should take immediate action, and all information as unearthed by the writer will be made known to the proper authorities at the proper time.

Obituary

F. J. POLLARD

Funeral services were held on Tuesday for Frederick James Pollard, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Albert Johnson, Rebecca Street, Oakville, following a prolonged illness. Born in Surrey England, he came to Canada 42 years ago. Prior to coming to Oakville, he was employed at the Dale estate, Brampton. A veteran of the Boer War, he enlisted also in the First Great War.

He is survived by two daughters Mrs. Johnson, Oakville and Mrs. Linton Nayler, Milton, three sons Lloyd, Oakville and Henry and Frederick Pollard, Brampton; a stepdaughter, Mrs. O. Cousins, and a stepson, Norman Lundy, both of Brampton.

It's a fact! It takes from 3 to 11 times as much distance to stop a car when pavements are slick and slippery. So, motorists, give yourself plenty of room to stop by keeping well behind the car ahead. Take your time in winter time.
