1948 Farm Income Makes Record

Canadian farm prices were 20 per cent higher in 1948, says the latest Current Review of Conditions in Canada by the Economics Division of the Dominion of Agriculture.

The Review then points out that since prices of commodities used by farmers living costs, increased 10 per cent during the year, the farmers were better off than in 1947. Heavier helped to improve their position as well.

The preliminary figure for 1948, is $1,743 million, record and an increase of 20 per cent over the 1947 figure of $1,450 million.

The overall demand for farm products in 1949 is expected to equal that of 1948, according to the Review. There may be some decrease in demand for export products. Domestic demand for farm products in 1949 is expected to be 10 per cent higher than in 1948, and prices are expected to be some decline toward 1949.

In spite of strong market for hog and cattle slaughter first two months of 1949, but during the first two months of 1948, but lamb slaughter up by 50 per cent and prices of livestock at the end of February 1949, were 10 per cent higher than one year ago.

Although prices were of fluid milk and cream last three months of 1949 are 10 per cent below the same period in 1948. Butter stocks in storage are lower than a year ago, and production during the months of 1948-49 partly situation. Apple export 30 per cent increase in middle of February, 1949.

No Superman House Flies

Has a kind of Superman flies developed which is DDT? The answer, so far as is concerned, appears to be negative.

The reports of DDT-resistant flies in certain parts of the U.S. and in Europe, should be unwarranted conclusions. The failure of DDT for control in Canada, says Dr. C. Household and Medical Unit, Science Service, Department of Agriculture. The development of resistance to specific insecticides is not a new phenomenon and the result of natural selection for the survival of the fittest.

The Division of Entomology received no well-authenticated reports of failure of DDT-resistant flies in Canada, nor is it known to what extent DDT-resistant flies actually occur in the U.S. In Canada, the Department of Agriculture has insisted upon a 5 per cent concentration for residual applications. Factors have had to be provided in their direction. It would seem reasonable to expect that lighter dosages, which are used in some of the States, would increase the prospect of resistant flies surviving and producing their kind. Another factor is the shorter summer in Canada, with fewer generations of flies, which would retard the development of DDT-resistant strains.

There seems no evidence of DDT-resistant flies in Canada, and if such a situation arises, it could probably be controlled by a small percentage of other residual insecticides—chlorodane—with the DDT. Twinn strongly recommends continued use of DDT spraying, but adds the emphasis must be given to portance and value of sanitation, including the proper treatment of manure and other fly breeding material. The use of insecticides should be expected to give satisfactory results.
