1948 Farm Income Makes Record

Canadian farm prices during 1948 were 20 per cent higher than during 1947, says the latest issue of "The Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada", published by the Economics Division, Marketing Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The Review then points out that since prices of commodities and services used by farmers including living costs, increased by only 16.4 per cent during the same period, the farmers were better off in the long run. Heavier marketings helped to improve their position as well.

The preliminary figure of the net income of Canadian farmers in 1948, is $1,743 million, an all-time record and an increase of 41 per cent over the 1947 figure of $1,235 million.

The overall demand in 1949 is expected to equal that of 1948, according to the Review, although there may be some decline in the export demand for some farm products. Domestic demand for farm products in 1949 may exceed that of 1948 and prices received by farmers are expected to remain at the 1949 levels, though there may be some decline toward the end of 1949.

In spite of strong market demand, hog and cattle slaughtering in the first two months of 1949 were lower than during the first two months of 1948, but lamb slaughtering were up by 50 per cent and prices for all classes of livestock at the beginning of February 1949, were stronger than one year ago.

Although prices were higher sales of fluid milk and cream for the last three months of 1948 were 8 per cent below the same period in 1947. Butter stocks in storage were lower than a year ago, but increased production during the winter months of 1948-49 partly offset this situation. Apple exports showed a 30 per cent increase up to the middle of February, 1949, over last year.

No Superman House Flies

Has a kind of Superman of house flies developed which is immune to DDT? The answer, so far as Canada is concerned, appears to be in the negative.

Sugar in Nectar Varies with Plant

Cross-pollination is essential among a large number of flowers for the purpose of setting seed. The flowers secrete nectar to attract the nectar gathering insects, which are the most effective agents that carry pollen from one plant to another. Honeybees gather nectar from a wide variety of flowers. The amount and concentration of the nectar secreted by a flower may determine the time when visitations will be made. Such flowers secrete nectar in the morning and others in the afternoon or early evening. Pipettes may be used to extract the nectar from individual flowers to determine the amount secreted, and by use of a sugar refractometer, the sugar content may be calculated. This method requires patience and a technique that may vary with each type of flower studied. Collecting honeybees from the flowers being visited, removing their honey stomachs and emptying the contents on a sugar refractometer, has provided a simple method for nectar concentration studies.

Collections were made at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, Man. during 1947 and 1948 says F. Baum. In early blossoming plants it was found that clover nectar contained 43 per cent sugar; willow, 53 per cent; dandelion, 49 per cent; crab-apple, 43 per cent; caragana, 46 per cent; lilac, 56 per cent; delphinium, 48 per cent; mignonette, 30 per cent; California poppy, 62 per cent. A large number of other flowers were found to have similar nectar concentrations. The time of day and existing weather conditions affect the concentration which may be present in the same species of flowers. Collections over a period of years should show the constancy, if any, that may exist in the nectar concentration of any particular type of flowering plants.

Four collections of bees were made daily from alfalfa and sweet clover fields during July. The nectar concentration varied considerably when related to the time factor but did not vary to any extent between sweet clover and alfalfa during the same period. It was, however, noted that more than 85 per cent of the bees working sweet clover had pollen in their corbicula, while only two bees, out of approximately 1,200 collected throughout the month, were found carrying pollen from the alfalfa fields.

LODGE TOPIC

It's odd said the sleeping car conductor, that at a terminal where the super may be watching a heavy train can be started as smoothly as an old lady's limousine. The jolts and jerks are always at the little stops.
The favourite jolt, of course, is at 4 a.m., when they're putting on the diner. The poor sleepers, who've been tossing about, are thoroughly wakened and begin to wonder if some other way of travel wouldn't be better.
This phenomenon of night jolts should be discussed at the lodge—the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and engineers. For a smooth ride should mean more riders who pay cash. And surely that is in the interest of the lodge.

SAFEGUARDING WILD LIFE IN BRITAIN

The first government sponsored body for the study and conservation of wild life in Britain started work recently. A Biological Service with responsibility for protecting the flora and fauna throughout the British Isles was recently announced by Mr. Herbert Morrison in the House of Commons. This is the first step towards carrying out the recommendations of the special Committee on Conservation of Wild Life which reported to the Government last year.

Halton Producers Hold Discussion On Bootleg Milk

milk regardless whether it was bottled, made into ice-cream or chocolates. He suggested the association erect a processing plant which could use up all surplus milk, so the producer could obtain top prices. He further argued there was too much spread between the price paid to the producer and cost to the consumer, adding the farmer was given $4.07 per hundredweight less shipping charges, while the distributor received $3.32 for handling it.
The speaker vigorously denied he was seeking the job of secretary-manager of the Association, but urged farmers to select a competent man from their own ranks.

Continuing his criticism of Mr. Willmott, he said, "you farmers have a right to know what is going on, but you do not. Therefore it is your misfortune. You should know what the secretary is doing, and the directors are lax in permitting him to continue."
In concluding, "the Distributors are running your business, when you should be running your own. I am only endeavouring to bring you, farmers together, to choose men to operate the association you can trust."

Defending the actions of the Toronto Milk Producers Association Kenneth Betzner, of Waterloo, admitted milk had been obtained from an outside source, but had been inspected by Department of Health officials before it was passed on to the consumer. He also said considerable amount had been returned when found it was not up to the standard.

Defending Mr. Willmott, the speaker said the secretary was never told what to do by the distributors, and the directors at all times endeavoured to get the producer's viewpoint on important problems. He said of the six cent increase the farmer received five cents, arguing that Mr. Jolly's statements were doing the producers a lot of harm.

Explaining he had received a 10 per cent reduction in his quota after the increase in price, a farmer in the audience asked the speaker the reason. He stated the decrease would mean he would receive less money, in spite of the increase.
Mr. Betzner said Easter holidays were coming along, and with school closing, and many people in the city going to summer homes over week-ends it would mean less consumption of fluid milk. He said that always occurred in the summer months when production was higher.

During the discussion period, J. E. Houck, secretary of the Toronto Milk Distributors Association said, under the new agreement producers would receive the $4.07 regardless, whether the distributor sold it or not.
A. R. Service, sponsor of the resolution, declared in support, "we must not let our organization become divided into two camps, nor must we have a self-appointed person become a dictator in our organization." Most of the audience supported the resolution, others leaving before the vote was taken.
A. T. Woodley, Halton director opened the meeting. Paul Fisher was chosen chairman.
