Hay and Pasture Situation Gloomy

Prospects for hay and pasture in most sections of Halton are the worst in many years. On the heavier soils we would estimate that 90 per cent of the alfalfa and clover is finished. Coupled with that growth of the grasses to date has been meagre to say the least. However, there is no use "crying over spilt milk"—the point is, what is the best thing to do under the circumstances. Frankly, we have never been overly enthusiastic about annual hay crops, but in a year like this "beggars can't be choosers". On most farms, some Sudan grass or Sudan and oats for pasture would seem to be almost a "must". They are the best annual pasture crops that we know of. Personally we would sow half of the intended acreage for annual pasture, to a mixture of two bushels of Oats and 20 lbs. of Sudan grass—the other half would be sown to straight Sudan at 25 to 30 lbs. per acre. In both cases seeding should take place at corn planting time—preferably the last week in May to the first week of June. Sudan is noted for its ability to stand dry weather but it will take 6 to 8 weeks before it will be ready for pasture. Cattle love it and we know of no annual crop that will produce as much pasture during August and until it is frozen off, as the same Sudan. In a year such as this, with hay likely to be even scarcer than a year ago, one might be well advised to grow some Sudan for hay. True it will be a bulky crop and perhaps not too easy to cure, nor too palatable, but at least one would have some feed. Some of our cattle particularly the young cattle are coming out pretty thin this spring and we feel confident that a lot of them would welcome the opportunity of eating Sudan grass hay right now.

Under favourable conditions, two bus. of oats and a bus. of peas makes a fair emergency hay crop. Then there is millet or soybeans. Neither crop is too easy to cure, with millet about the equal of timothy in feeding value. Soybeans, being a legume, makes a good quality of hay for dairy cattle. If soybeans should be decided on, select one of the later, taller growing varieties such as A. K., Lincoln, Richland, or Harman.

Some of the fall wheat too, looks pretty sick. In our opinion some of the poorer fields could be harrowed to advantage—then go on with the disc drill, and drill in perhaps a bushel of barley or early oats plus some clover and grass seed and some extra fertilizer. Depending on weather conditions, a follow up with the packer might be good business.

Sure any of these crops are a bit of a gamble and you'll have to make your own decision in the end. However, may we suggest that you try and make up your mind at once and then place your order with your dealer. Unless we miss our guess there is going to be a lot of people around June 1st wanting to know where they can get Sudan grass, millet, soybeans etc. Give your dealer a chance—order now.
