TARTANS ARE PERENNIAL FAVOURITE IN LONDON, PARIS

Tartan which is never very far from fashion has, nevertheless, positively bounced back into the fashion news, both in London and Paris. There are jackets, short coats and full length coats of it; many coats are lined with it; and there are dozens of handbags and travel-bags made of it. The lure of its bright colours—for no matter what clan tartan is chosen, there is nearly always at least one brilliant colour in it—may be the answer to the almost universal display of muted, neutral shades which were shown in the London fashion houses during spring collections. It is true that occasionally these natural shades were sometimes worn with a single startling bright colour, but on the whole the impression is that grege (a mixture of beige and grey), shades of beige, and sand-colour are the tints most favoured by the dress-makers who will expect their clients to follow them—although dress-makers do not always get what they want. It is interesting to remember that it was about five years or so after World War I that beige first made its appearance not long before the hipless and hideous chemise dress came into vogue.

Paul Revere's Ride to be Surpassed When Gents Mount Hurricane Decks

Edgar V. Bud Smith of Donkey baseball fame, who is bringing his pack of burros, donkeys, mules, jack asses and what have you to Halton Community Centre in July, is a true son of the old west and an authority on burro psychology.

A native of Manitou, Colorado, located at the base of Pikes Peak, Smith as a youngster explored the hills surrounding his home on burro back and always had at least two donkeys among his most prized possessions.

Realizing that donkeys are the most patient, stubborn and ornery critters in the world, Smith hit upon the idea of training two teams of these animals to be used in a baseball game.

Down in Colorado, through the southern states, Bud Smith has met with success but at the Halton Community Centre in July, the boys and business men of Halton County are going to show Smith how these patient, gentle and kind animals should be ridden.

Already some of the men, lined up on one of the teams, to ride "em" have been sneaking off out of the county on the Q. T. taking lessons from a trainer, getting all practised up. They are going to show Bud Smith and the Halton farm lads just how these gentle buckers should be ridden. One of them was heard to remark that Paul Revere will have nothing on him when he gets astride one of these hurricane decks off on a rip roaring ride.

Junior Farmers held their annual picnic in Guelph O.A.C. last week. Milton Juniors had the Girls' Champion Volleyball team, Christine Marshall and Hazel Finnie of this district taking part.

This last week brought the end of the school term and the beginning of vacation for all the younger citizens. At S.S. No. 7 Trafalgar the pupils learning that their teacher, Miss E. McKee would not be with them in September planned a surprise presentation. Immediately following dismissal the children gathered in a circle around Miss McKee. Irene Peacock read a short address and Hertha Brucker and David Royce presented their teacher with a set of matched costume jewellery. Miss McKee expressed her thanks for the lovely gift, also to the 27 scholars for their effort and co-operation during the past year. Several pictures were taken and all bade good-bye to a very fine and capable teacher.

For Economy in Government

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

The phrase "Royal Commission" has come to have a certain meaning for Canadians. The subject of the inquiry, we have learned by experience, will receive a thorough, impartial investigation. Unfortunately, we have also learned by experience that the reports of a Royal commission hearing are easily subjected to the treatment known as "pigeon-holing". Facts may be recommended, but action does not necessarily result.

Thus, casting no reflection on the value of such commission investigations, many of us have questioned in our minds the virtue of the suggestion recently made by the Leader of the Opposition that a Royal commission sit for the purpose of devising means of cutting the cost of government in Canada. The fact that the Minister of Finance has indicated that the government is giving careful consideration to the Opposition suggestion is not likely to give many taxpayers hope that there will be a reduction in this year's proposed $2,400,000,000 federal spending. A course of action that all taxpayers would welcome, and which might result in some immediate government savings, would be to proceed with the Royal commission as quickly as possible but, without delay, to call into action the Public Accounts Committee.

It is almost impossible for our elected representatives to effect any important economies in departmental expenditures when examination of the spending of almost two and a half billion dollars must be made in committee of the whole House. But the Public Accounts Committee was created for the purpose of saving public money by subjecting government accounts to a careful scrutiny. The Committee can call witnesses; it can examine government spending in detail. It does not, but it should, meet every year. Its findings would be available for the close observation of members of the House, who are ultimately responsible to the people for all government spending.

It might be recalled in passing that in the United States during the recent war years, when government spending ran to many billions of dollars and a certain amount of overlapping and waste might have been condoned due to the emergency situation, a certain politician named Harry Truman gained more than casual attention by heading a sort of public accounts committee that ultimately saved the American taxpayers many millions of dollars by its careful examination of the spending of public money. Perhaps it would not be presumptuous to suggest that some Canadian politician, or party, take note of where that springboard led the same Mr. Truman.

Of the two ball games played for the local Red Caps, on Friday night it provided excitement and amusement equal two. Friday night the club was scheduled to battle erdown but the rain washed that duel. Wednesday, last the club travelled to Fergus a seven inning stretch with Victorians and, although rain delayed the game to be called for time the seven innings were leted and Fergus came out with a 9-4 count.

Fergus provided a first which, we find, the team m. But locals got off to a bad start arriving late and misplacing. The umpires got off to start too and ended up in bad shape.

Fergus chalked up six of nine runs in the first inning. Milton waited until the third its three runs. THE DISPOSAL PLANT situated at the easterly end of Fulton Street is shown in the course of construction. Huge excavations were made to house the filtration plant and control room, digestive tank and sludge beds. The building located on top of this massive construction measures 16 feet by 14 feet, and houses the controls for the entire system. Immediately to the east of this building is a circular excavation containing a concrete room for the digestive system. In various sections of town small attractive buildings have been erected to house a pumping system for the sewers. One of these is shown under construction.
