—The aluminum trim on Knox Church steeple has had a new coat of paint and shines brightly.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Dear became great grandparents last week. Their first great grandchild, Susan Faith Ferguson, was born on October 24.

—The railway workers who have been stationed at Milton were all confined to their railway cars on Halloween night. These cars were taken some distance out of town.

—Constables McNiven and Bradley of Milton provincials are alternating at filling the vacancy in the Georgetown Police Department, following the departure of Constable George Fyfe.

—Jack Clements, 21, of Milton, caught his right foot in an ice-scoring machine at the frozen foods plant where he works in Stratford. At first hospital authorities were afraid the foot might have to be amputated but X-rays showed there were no fractures.

—Soapy windows lined the main streets on Wednesday morning as an aftermath of Halloween. Most instances of pranks were more annoying than destructive as the odd idea that things must be overturned, moved or hidden to make a successful evening of Halloween, persists.

—A most annoying power cut-off last Sunday came without warning and left those in the district practically helpless from 9.30 till 11 Sunday morning and from 1.30 till 4.30. If only consumers had been aware that a cut-off was in the offing, they could have been prepared for the long break in service.

—Mr. Ken Kinsella, who happened to come into the Champion office at exactly the right moment on Monday, came to the aid of the bookkeeper when, after a terrific crash, she discovered a light socket was in flames. It was too high for her to reach but Mr. Kinsella obligingly raised a pail of water and put the flame out.

Spend as You Go

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

There is something about being elected to parliament, and still more about achieving cabinet rank that does things to the wisdom and modesty of naturally capable and modest men. Individuals, who would readily recognize that a wide experience of business and a full knowledge of its peculiar circumstances, as government officials do not hesitate to step in where more thoughtful angels would fear to tread.

One must admit a certain hesitant admiration for theadroitness of the move to force more of the profits of industry into investor's hands. Patently it was not for love of the investor. It was quite clear that further taxation of industries' profits would meet with stiff opposition so that some other way of achieving the same end had to be found. These adroit politicians quickly recognized that if these profits were in the hands of the investors, they could there be effectively taxed with less disapproval. The reason, of course, was that, whatever the tax, the investor would have on unexpected residue remaining.

This adroit and devious course by which management was jockeyed into a position, where opposition to the proposal would lay them open to the criticism of their stockholders, defeated the purpose of management. The efficiency of a Board of Directors is reflected in the success of an operation. The decisions of the directors result from the long look of men familiar with the business world, conversant with the particular operation. Selected by the shareholders by reason of confidence in their integrity and efficiency, their powers are still curbed by the ability of the stockholder to recall them, should they lose that confidence.

But the wisdom of government stepped in to make all these safeguards of no avail. In the face of the decision of experience that the uncertainty of the future, the unpredictable character of labor's reneuing demands, the fluctuation of inventory prices, the necessary improvements, replacements and additions in plant and equipment demanded substantial reserves, the government said "No! Spend your money." True, that is the customary attitude of governments. But faced with unexpected demands, governments can always assess the public.

Business and industry must earn its profits, its reserves and its security.

It is yet within the bounds of possibility that government may discover that forcing out the financial reserves that it had seemed wise to set up was not the course of wisdom. It may yet be proved that such action has not been in the larger interests of industry, of the shareholder, of the worker, of the public or, of the government. All lose when the foundations of any industry become insecure, because adequate protection has been denied.

Tibetans drink an average of 30 to 50 cups of tea a day.

SCOUTS BUSY PLANTING

Halifax Boy Scouts recently planted 3,000 soft-wood trees on the city's watershed property near the Prospect Road. The work was done in co-operation with the Dept. of Lands and Forests and with the Halifax Public Service Commission. In Oshawa some 8,000 young trees were recently planted by Cubs, Scouts and Rovers at Camp Samac, the Oshawa camp site.
