first tests were taken. The group asked the Unit to take more samples during the winter months and make regular reports.

The land use and reforestation committee was given permission to contact the same committee of the 16 Mile Creek Authority and agricultural representative J. E. Whitlock, to form a deputation to ask Halton County Council's immediate action to fight Dutch Elm disease.

$8 a Meeting

A per diem rate of $8 and car allowance of 10 cents a mile for members of the group was approved by motion. Secretary-treasurer Harold Speers of Lowville, newly appointed to the position, was instructed to inform the various municipalities comprising the group that levies for 1953 are due.

Members Ken Lewis of Bronte and George Atkins of Trafalgar reported a warm reception by Trafalgar Subsidiary Planning Bd. when they appeared to request lands below the Queen Elizabeth highway be rezoned for conservation uses. The board is still studying the proposal which could make the east side of the creek in the area a public park.

Convention Report

Arthur Padbury of Nassagaweya reported on a recent convention of Conservation Officers held in Toronto and relayed valuable information to other members of the group. The meeting lasted four hours.

Retarded Children's Hospital Toured by District Delegates

Three delegates, Mrs. Jean Mitchell of Campbellville, Mrs. Eileen Buckner and Mrs. Ann McGrath of Acton, represented the Milton and District Association for Retarded Children at the fourth annual Institutions Conference held in the Hospital School at Orillia on October 24 and 25.

On Friday the visiting parents and delegates toured the dormitories and classrooms where special training is given to the retarded and handicapped boys and girls, enabling many of them to find a place in the community. Throughout the hospital there were many signs of overcrowding but the dormitories and classrooms were all decorated for Halloween and everywhere there was smiles and laughter. In the evening the children gave a concert including numbers by their famous choir and band.

Waiting List

The opening address on Saturday by C. J. Bowey of Carleton Place put forward the future situation. By 1970 15,000 persons in Ontario alone will require institutional care, based on present population growth and the statistics of mental retardation affecting two per cent of the population.

The hospital school at Orillia accommodates 2,900 and has a waiting list of 1,500. In 1947 it had reached saturation point at 2,470. The school at Smith's Falls now accommodates 2,000 with a waiting list of 700. Two schools at Cedar Springs and Goderich with beds for 1,200 each are due to open in four or five years' time, but will be filled long before. By 1970 there will be urgent need for accommodation for 7,000 retarded persons. Mr. Bowey urged that parents make more use of the special schools and classes available, and communities take more responsibility for the retarded in their own area.

"Education and training as well as health and welfare of these children is the joint responsibility of the community and the province. With the help of Diagnostic Mental Health Clinics established in the communities, many retarded children could remain in the warmer environments of their own homes... especially in early childhood."

Temporary Centre

Dr. C. A. Buck told a luncheon meeting that the Department of Health is considering a research and screening centre where between 50 and 100 children would be accommodated temporarily and their special needs diagnosed. Centres such as this should be within easy reach of suburban areas, benefiting parents, schools and children. Dr. Buck stated work had begun on the new school at Goderich, and a civilian contract given for the one at Cedar Springs.

After luncheon, discussion groups brought forward resolutions on uniform clothing for the Institutions, planned visitations of all interested parties at the discretion of the hospital staff and the recommendations on admission procedures.

Dr. F. C. Hamilton, medical superintendent at Orillia, stated the case of patients on the waiting lists, when severely handicapped children are sometimes kept on these lists for several years whilst less handicapped children are admitted almost immediately under political pressure placed on the governing body.

On this very serious question, the conference made a resolution to be placed before the federal government, that all admissions to the hospitals be submitted to a selection board and considered only on terms of physical and mental seriousness.

The Institutions Conference was attended by 240 parents and delegates from 49 Ontario Associations. Further help or information locally may be obtained from the District Association for Retarded Children, Milton.

Visit to Farm Thrills Sunshine School Pupils

The pupils of the Sunshine School were guests recently at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Ellenton, Appleby Line. In an attempt to impress upon their lives the importance of agriculture, the teachers have been endeavoring to have them make charts of the various farm products which find their place on our table, for our clothing and in our homes. With this idea in mind an invitation to visit this farm and become acquainted with the various farm animals was readily accepted. Most of the pupils had never had an opportunity to be on a farm or in close contact with farm animals.

They first went to view the herd of Holstein cows contentedly grazing in the pasture field. This gave the pupils an object lesson that from these cows they get many dairy products, such as milk, cream, butter and cheese.

Desire to Chase

The team of horses in a nearby field with their heads held high brought to these pupils a desire to chase, and see them gallop off. These horses were at one time our beasts of burden but it was explained they have now been replaced by tractors.

The visit to the stable where they viewed numerous baby calves peacefully sleeping on their thick bed of straw surrounded by their fresh white washed walls gave the pupils the impression of the care and kindness needed in order to grow and develop.

The implement shed with its tractors, threshing machine, grain binders, mowers, rakes, ploughs and various cultivating machines was of special interest to the boys, as they learned what each implement was used for.

Then came a quiz program where they were asked to name a collection of tools which are used on a farm and why they are used. They named spades, shovels, forks, hoes, bits and chisels, saws and others. Some of these could not be identified by name, but were known for their use.

Then at the house where the hostess had prepared a treat of chocolate milk, cookies and candy. Leaving, each child carried a rosy red apple. Jerry Howard voiced the thanks of his teachers and class mates to Mr. and Mrs. Ellenton for the chance to see their farm and for the refreshments. As they filed out to their cars each pupil shook hands with their host and hostess and said a warm "thank you".
