RIGHT AROUND HOME

by Shirley

Little red schools on a country road. And house on a city street. Alike are echoing once again To the marching of eager feet. Faces with freckles and faces with smiles. Sometimes a tear in an eye. Now and again there's a new little girl.

Or a little boy starting to cry. And so it will be as children all over the country start back to school. For some it will be the beginning of an adventure as they leave home for first time to start school. For others it is a continuation of growing and learning so they someday will be able to take their place as men and women in the community.

With the beginning of school comes the problem of lunches. We hope these few suggestions will help you plan your lunches whether for a lunch box or for children coming home.

Cheese and Bacon Special
1 4 oz. pkg. pimento cheese
1 4 oz. pkg. cream cheese

1/2 tsp. minced onion
6 slices crisp cooked bacon.
Cream cheese together thoroughly. Blend in onion. Crumble bacon and add to cheese mixture. This is delicious on rye or cracked wheat bread. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Ham and Pineapple Special
1 cup minced ham
1 4 oz. pkg. pineapple cheese spread

1/2 cup chopped peanuts
1 tbs. lemon juice
Blend all ingredients. Good on raisin bread. Makes about 2 cups.

For variety in sandwiches use different types of bread or if your family gets tired of bread try bun sandwiches. Dinner rolls, hot dog buns, hamburger buns or fruit buns can be used instead of bread.

A few little extras will add interest to any lunch box. Celery, carrot sticks, green or yellow beans will keep fresh and crisp if wrapped in foil.

Pickles, raisins, peanuts, dates, cheese, potato chips are a few things which will add variety to the lunch box.

Everyone looks for something sweet in their lunch. Cookies or squares are the easiest to pack and the best to stay fresh.

Banana Oatmeal Cookies

1 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
3/4 tsp. cinnamon
3/4 cup shortening
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup mashed banana
1 1/2 cups rolled oats
1/2 cup chopped cashews
Sift flour, sugar, baking soda, salt and spices into a mixing bowl. Cut in shortening. Add beaten egg, bananas, rolled oats and nuts. Beat until well blended. Drop by teaspoonfuls about 1 1/2 inches apart, on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees about 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove from pan immediately. Makes 3 1/2 dozen.

"The people come from local contract maintenance firms and will work eight hours at housecleaning in the home."

For Parents Only

First Baby

by Nancy Cleaver

Do you remember when your first-born was put into your arms? There are few moments in all of life which can compare with this experience. There are none greater!

Mother forgets the long months of waiting, the hours of child birth in the joy of feeling this warm, vibrant little bundle, with the soft hair, the long lashes sweeping the delicate pink cheek, the miniature nose and mouth. She slips one of her fingers into a tiny, shell-like palm, and baby's fingers close tightly around hers.

Father Relieved

"I had no idea a new-baby was so small!" a young father said recently. "But when I looked through the hospital nursery glass at my son asleep in the tiny crib, did I ever feel big!"

Many a father is almost as relieved as a mother that the baby is safely here — and is perfect in every way. If father had been counting on a boy, and a daughter arrives, any sense of disappointment disappears. Little girl babies have ways of casting a spell over their fond fathers!

One of the loveliest of good wishes for a child's future appeared in "Antony, A Record of Youth" by the Earl of Lytton. Antony writes these lines to Lady Gage, after the birth of her son. "May all the best things in the world be his always, and life fall on his shoulders like a brave, rich and beautiful cloak."

Good Example

"The best things in the world" — all parents want just that for their children, and whether or not boys and girls will receive this heritage depends to a great extent upon the character and ideals of the parents. The mother or father must try to be what they want their children to become, because example is so much more effective than precept.

A well-adjusted, happy, successful individual usually comes from a home where parents enjoy their children. It is not easy to enter imaginatively into their joys and sorrows and try to understand the reasons for desirable or undesirable behavior. A good parent views problems objectively and not with a personal or emotional bias.

In a recent book, Mary Lincoln, Biography of a Marriage, by R. P. Randall, there is a chapter, Four Dollars a Week, of the early married life of the future president of the United States.

Bond Together

The author writes: "One can picture the anxiety in the deep-set eyes at the birth of his first-born, and then their lighting with the joy of fatherhood. A basic human experience had come to the Lincolns to bind them together; two heads bent over the perennial miracle of a newborn baby, flesh of their flesh." From this time on the name Molly disappears from the record. Sometimes Lincoln called her playful pet names like Puss, child-wife or Little Woman, but mostly after this he called her Mother.

Freda Newton Bunner, a Canadian poet who is the mother of three children, has echoed the emotions of many parents as they look down on the lovely little form of their baby in these thoughtful lines which are quoted by special permission.

New-Born

This is our child—at last! The dream of yesterday is past. And now he lies—a person—in my arms.

What have we done? What have we done!

Brought a new soul to birth. To face a lifetime on this earth. All lies ahead. And what's ahead? Oh God! What glory, or what dread?

What can we do? We are not wise enough, we two, To guide this precious life we have begun.

"God show the way!" We both must pray— We both each day.
