

13 Contest Six Council Seats Mayor, Two Trustees Acclaimed

Continued from Page One conducted like his own business. Bruce MacNab, also nominated for mayor, indicated he would remain with the Hospital Board and would not run for mayor. He strongly criticized the increasing powers of the Ontario Municipal Board and the resultant loss of municipal autonomy. He suggested something should be done on annexation and trying to retain local autonomy.

May Be Warden
Speaking to his nomination for Reeve, R. C. Cunningham commented that "we may not have done all we would like to do" but noted the problems of municipal financing. He suggested he stood on opportunity of receiving the warden's appointment if returned and assured citizens he would "do all in my power to continue the progress of the town."

Art Desjardine, also speaking to the nomination of reeve, noted he had been defeated by three votes last year for the position. He suggested he felt there was not enough Milton power at the county council level noting the loss this year of one high school board appointment and the problem of protecting Victoria Park from construction of a new county building. "If elected I will fight," he challenged reviewing the work of the industrial commission under his chairmanship in securing a new industry. He praised the work of Norm Pearce in this work.

Three Months Later
Mr. Desjardine reviewed discussions with the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the resulting suggestion to council to have a survey of the water potential made. "Three months later council asked for the survey," he explained.

"We need annexation in the worst way," he suggested also noting the importance of more water, and the recreation commission.

Mrs. Mary Pettit, speaking to her nomination as deputy reeve, thanked the clerical staff and town groups for their co-operation and work during the year. She suggested citizens too seldom take time off to be thankful for what they have. She noted the completion of highway 401, the opening of the hospital, the addition to Halton Manor and other town facilities. She noted the town had the finest type of young people. "Let us build for them."

Need Strong Representation
J. M. Ledwith, speaking to the same nomination, suggested Milton needed strong representation on County Council with nine other municipalities to work with. "It's a shame the park (plan to build a county building in Victoria Park) ever got as far as it did". He suggested the town give the county the triangular park area at the entrance to town where there would be adequate parking and room for expansion. "We need water and we need effort and hard work to bring industry to town. A highway alone won't do it," the former mayor stressed. He promised if elected he would do his best "to work hard and use common sense to see that Milton keeps going forward."

Ivan Slossor, a present councillor, suggested the responsibility of serving on a town administration should be shared and he would, after two years not be seeking re-election. He wished the candidates success.

16 Nominees
Speakers for the nomination—16 in total—to council were then called on.

Bryn Cross suggested the past and present councils had done a good job of keeping the town at its present level. He emphasized he would like to see a detailed study of the Pearce report and would like to see the plan put into effect as a 10 year plan for the development of Milton. He outlined the need for the town to develop industrial land for resale to industry.

Glyn Roberts, a present councillor, noted the interim auditor's report showed a slight surplus on the year's operations. He expressed his pleasure at serving on the Arena Board and the fact that the by-law to create the Recreation Commission was being prepared.

"Finally Woke Up"
"The town finally woke up."

Roy Stuart declared as he noted it was the first time he had seen such good competition for the municipal positions. He noted he had been the first person three years ago to recommend a recreation commission and it had now been found desirable. Three years ago he had also said the town would have to go out and seek industry and water.

More Water
Ron Harris noted he would stay with the Hospital Board but he concurred in the need for water and annexation. He recalled taking an industrialist around town some time ago and the town was unable to meet the water requirements.

A. V. Skinner acknowledged that "whoever is elected has a tough job". "There is so much to be done. Annexation and water are the keys to industry," he concluded.

Don Merritt noted he was not sure of his qualification and would not comment at the moment.

Interest in Education
Speaking to her nomination for school trustee Mrs. Kernighan noted two reasons for her interest. She pointed out she had children attending the local schools and the need for a woman on the school board to present the woman's point of view when decisions are made.

Alex Cooke, acclaimed to the east ward seat on the school board, reported on recent additions to the schools and the possibility of having to make more additions shortly.

Like to Do A Lot
Charles Johnson, a present councillor, reported the installation of the new street lights and the council's firm stand against rezoning of the Victoria Park area. "There are a lot of things we would like to do but the auditor and the Ontario Municipal Board have put clamps on what money can be spent. They tell us the debenture debt is at the limit."

Mr. Johnson also explained the town would have to establish its own police force to take effect in 1961 since the Ontario Provincial Police, the town has been advised, will not be available after that date. "There's always a lot to be done. Milton is not a Utopia but it must have looked pretty good to all the good people who have come here," he concluded.

"Great Future"
Norm Pearce suggested Milton has a great future. "You all know my feelings on expansion of the town. I will do my best to see the recommendations of my report enacted if elected." He praised the

Contests Sent

David Green indicated his intention of contesting the north ward seat explaining his feeling that reports of high school graduations begin in public school. He noted he would work to have one administrator for both public school and high school systems.

H. P. Johnson expressed his interest in education and stressed the importance of basic education. "I want to see the end of the day when it is necessary to send children out of town to receive their high school education." He was acclaimed to the south ward seat.

Reports on Work
C. A. Martin spoke briefly on the Sixteen Mile Creek Conservation Authority outlining plans to acquire land for the construction of a 1000 acre foot water storage area that would improve the flow in Sixteen Mile Creek and would augment the supply going through town.

Mr. Martin also reported on the opening of the new Milton District Hospital and plans to admit the first patients on December 7.

Many were Lost
Constable Jim Bradley of Milton O.P.P. said many of the "explorers"

Sightseers jammed Milton streets when they drove west from Toronto, then had to go either north or south on Highway 25 at the end of Highway 401. Most came south, and the result was a traffic bottleneck at the Main-Martin Sts. stoplights in Milton. Traffic at several times throughout Sunday afternoon—the peak of the tourist onslaught—was backed up from the stoplight to the railway tracks on Martin St.

Highway Opens New Firm Lands Sewer Contract

A local contracting firm landed its first big contract—a $92,230 sanitary sewers installation in Cooksville—this week.

S. Filipowski, of Terra Cotta Contracting Co. Limited, Martin St., said the job will be done for the Township of Toronto. Hayward and Pickett have been hired to provide gravel, and Andy McCarthy has been awarded a sub-contract for sewers.

Chartered Oct. 7
Mr. Filipowski said his firm received a charter October 7. Plans are being made for a company of office, garage and storage shed in the district.

Some didn't realize it ended at Milton—others knew it but didn't know how to get back to Toronto.

Since Sunday, too, police report heavier traffic flowing steadily through town on Highway 25.
