

THE WAIL OF THE PIPES of the Lorne Scots (Peel, Dufferin and Halton Regiment) will be heard in Edinburgh this fall when the band takes part in the massed bands festival. Pipers in front are Pipe Major Joe Sellors, Dudley Ervin, Bruce Kitchen, Don McCallum, Ken Brush, Bill Kress and Harvey Brush. Standing behind them are Sam Harrop, Wayne McCraney, Bus Featherstone, Don McEachern, Jim Murray, Don McKenzie, Jack Pearson and Hank McCraney.

Tips on Photography

More Valuable Than You Think

Get out your camera, and we'll take a good look at it. Chances are, it's a lot better than you think.

"Only a box camera," you may say, or "Just a cheap camera." But many of the finest pictures are made with these cameras, in the hands of people who really know how to use them.

If your box camera, simple folding camera, or simple reflex-type camera is made by a good manufacturer, and is in good working order, it will get excellent pictures under what we call "average conditions".

Sun Distance
These conditions are bright or hazy sunshine, and subjects that are eight feet or more from the camera (even closer, with some simple cameras).

The subjects must not be in rapid motion.

Most outdoor pictures are taken under these conditions, whether you have simple camera or a fine, fast-lens type. The fine camera naturally excels on dull days, and with fast-action subjects, and with color films, and in close-up picture taking.

Flash is Important
However, if your camera is an old type that will not work with a photoflash attachment, it is out of date and you should replace it. Modern flash is so helpful, and so important in snapshotting after dark and indoors, that you should not handicap yourself with an obsolete no-flash camera.

Now, how can you get the most from your camera? I suggest that you practice along these lines:

Practice handling the camera, standing steadily and firmly and releasing the shutter gently. Develop a finger action that doesn't jar the camera when you click the shutter. The steadier the camera, the sharper the picture.

Practice viewing through the finder. Pick out a subject; move up closer, or farther back; move to right or left—until the finder encloses the scene you want, and no more. Consider the finder to be a "picture frame" for that's really what it is. This practice will train your eye to recognize good picture arrangements.

Find out the "nearest distance" for your camera—5 feet, 6 feet, 8 feet— and memorize that distance. An ordinary tape measure will help you. Most people stand too far from the subject, and so there is too much useless "background" and "foreground" in their pictures. If you have lost the instruction book, perhaps your camera shop can tell you the nearest safe distance for your camera.

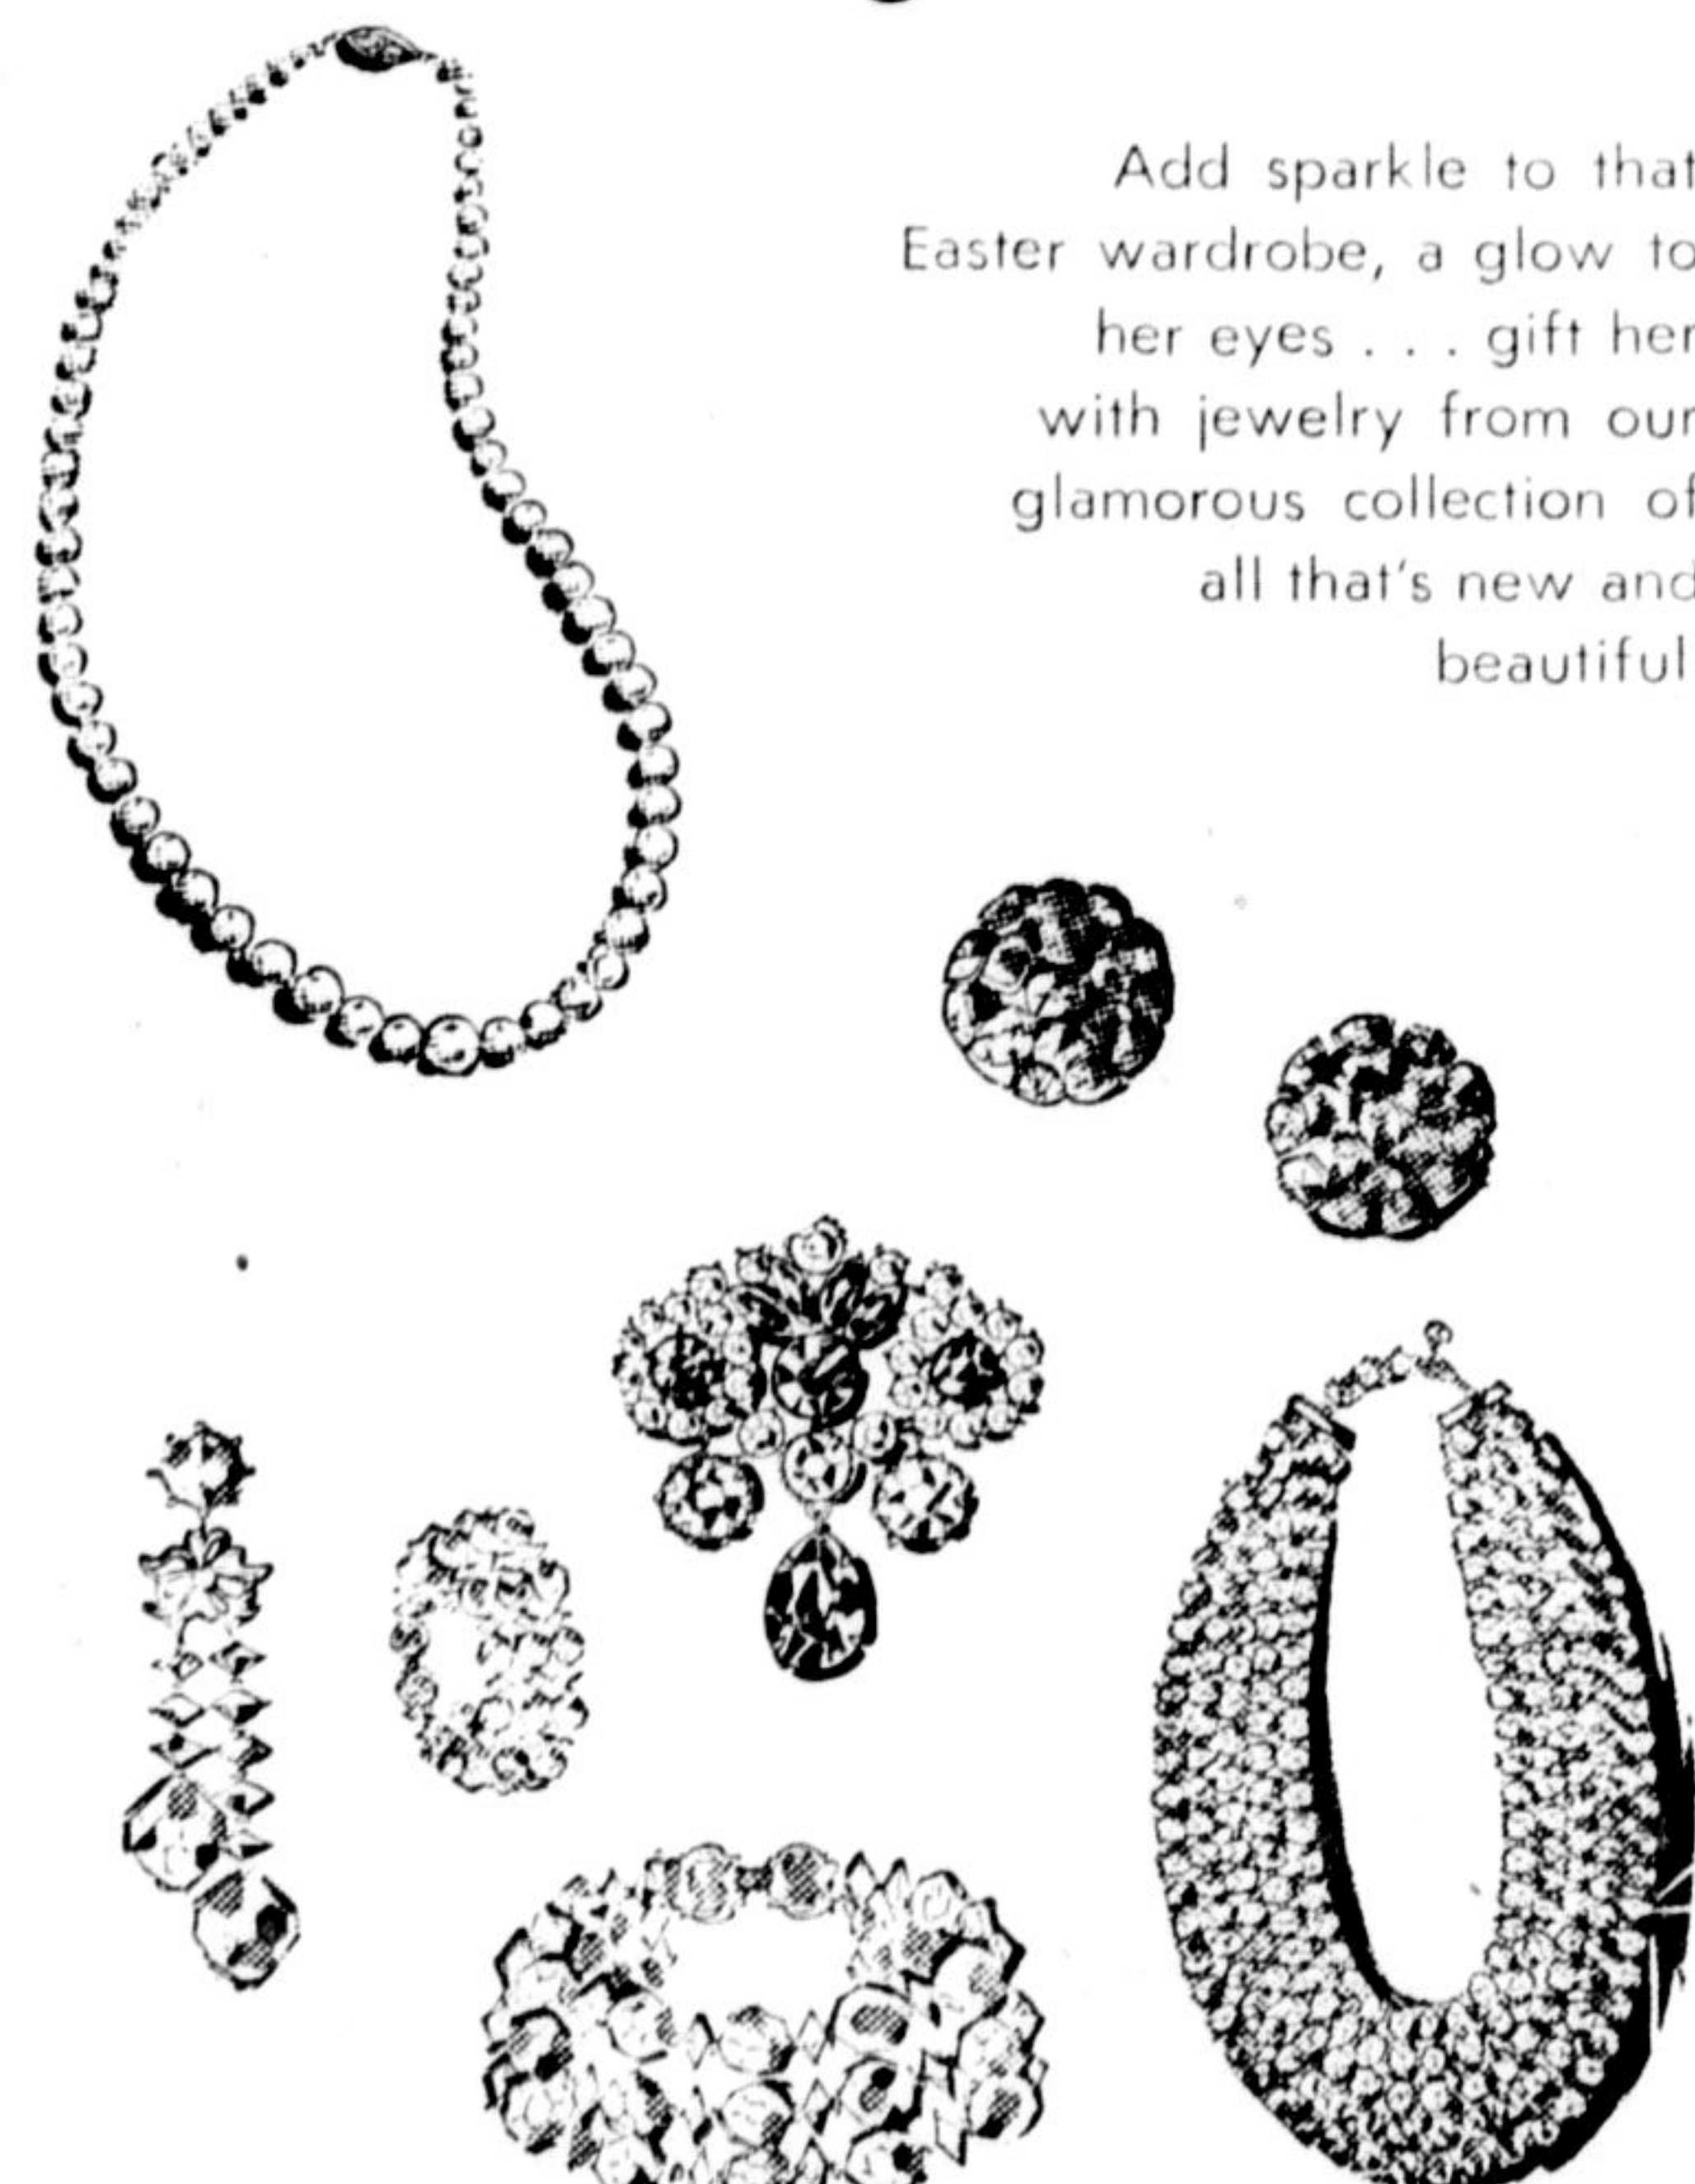

Tie Clips Reward Ranger Camp Safety

To 35 Junior Rangers from last summer's three Junior Ranger camps in the Sault, Ste. Marie district have been sent intimated tie clips as prizes for being members of camps which had no lost time injuries during the season. It is not the first time a tie has been recorded in the Junior Ranger Safety Contest—but, in this instance, it was a three-way tie for first place. Considering that most of the boys, from all parts of the province, had had no previous acquaintance with bush work and its dangers, Lands and Forests Department officials were understandably pleased with the record.

A SIMPLE CAMERA can make great pictures — if you use it properly. This picture could be snapped with any camera.
