Why Hamsters?

Experiment in Human Cancer

How can you experiment with human cancers without experimenting with human beings? This is the problem being attacked by two young University of Western Ontario scientists, Dr. D. P. Swartz and Dr. R. C. Buck, with human cancer tissue provided by Dr. Ivan Smith, Director of the London Cancer Clinic. Both men are receiving grants for their work from the National Cancer Institute of Canada. Each is approaching the subject from an entirely different way from the other.

A great deal of experimental work is and has been going on, in laboratories all over the world, with transplantable and induced animal tumors. The techniques are routine. A tumor that may have been growing for years and endured many transplants is planted into the body of a rat or mouse. Or the animal may be fed a potent chemical that will cause a cancer to grow in the liver or elsewhere. Or a cancer-causing chemical such as tobacco tar may be painted on the shaved back of the animal. More recently, tumors have been transferred by the injection of fluids containing virus like substances.

More for Humans
These methods are, in fact, the very backbone of cancer research, and a great deal of useful information has been gained from their use. However, many scientists feel that—since the goal of research is to cure cancer in humans—more attention should be given to human tumors.

The difficulties are obvious. You just can't induce cancers in human beings. So, Dr. Swartz is working on a method of transplanting tumors taken from the genital tract of human patients into the cheek pouches of hamsters. "In this way we can manipulate the conditions of growth and study the endocrine and metabolic aspects of it," he points out.

radiation. This unfortunately breaks down resistance to the point where the animals pick up the slightest infection. Also, when kept in cages, hamsters have a tendency to eat each other. "However, we are making progress," Dr. Swartz explains.

Dr. Buck is approaching the study of human cancer tissue in a different way. As a cytologist professor he is interested in the physical changes in cells when they become cancerous. So he looks at tissue provided by Dr. Smith through an electron microscope which was purchased with funds supplied by the National Cancer Institute of Canada. This machine magnifies cell images to the size of footballs and reveals many parts impossible to see with the conventional light microscope.

Halton L.O.L. Officers Named
Halton County Orange Lodge elected Bro. Gordon Leonard of Oakville as County Master at their meeting recently in the I.O.O.F. Hall in Milton.
Deputy Master is Bro. William Milligan, Bronte; chaplain, Bro. C. Norton, Oakville; recording secretary, Bro. A. Green, Acton; financial secretary, Bro. F. Ouce, Acton; treasurer, Bro. P. Hall, Milton.
Marshall, Bro. D. Ashwell, Burlington; first lecturer, Bro. E. Graf, Burlington; second lecturer, Bro. E. Jordan, Oakville; first committeeman, Bro. J. Wilson, Hornby; Tyler, Bro. H. Gordon, Acton; immediate past County Master, Bro. G. Collins, Campbellville Lodge.
The election and installation were conducted by P.C.M. Bro. Lev Samson, Hornby.

Why hamsters? In the first place, the hamster's natural resistance to "foreign tissue" is less than that of rats or mice. Also the hamster pouch is easy to get at both for transplanting and for the day-by-day observation of the tumor's progress.

Cannibals
There are difficulties, too. Before the hamster body will accept human tissue at all it must first be treated with cortisone or

You can join in the battle against one of man's greatest enemies by supporting the campaign of the Canadian Cancer Society.

Each Thursday, Ellen Ramsay visits the bank to pick up the company payroll. On Friday she visits on her own behalf... to deposit her savings. On both occasions she receives prompt, personal attention.

In the country, busy insurance man Tom Welch very rarely visits his bank. He does all his banking conveniently by mail. But he gets the same friendly, efficient service.

Requirements may differ but, at The Canadian Bank of Commerce, the service remains constant... and as broad and enterprising in concept as Canada itself. Clear across the country, in rural communities and in big urban centres, The Canadian Bank of Commerce serves its many customers with that sincerity which makes banking a pleasure.
