LEMON-COCOANUT SOUFFLE BREAD PUDDING

- 1 package lemon pudding or pie filling
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1/4 cup white sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 cups soft enriched white bread crumbs
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1/3 cup flaked cocoanut
- 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine

Busy days make lots of extra demands on the homemaker's time and energy. Spring housecleaning, gardening and an increase in social activities leave less time for food preparation before each meal. Yet even on busy days, the family's appetite demands a dinner dessert. And here's the answer in a tasty, textured casserole pudding.

Lemon-Cocoanut Souffle Bread Pudding is made with convenience foods. A packaged lemon pudding becomes a lemon souffle by adding beaten egg yolks and whites. This mixture is topped with enriched bread crumbs, cleverly combined with cocoanut and brown sugar. After baking for only 15 minutes the result is a dessert attractive and appetizing enough for family or guests.

baking dish. Combine soft bread crumbs, brown sugar and cocoanut, and sprinkle over pudding mixture. Drizzle melted butter over topping and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until topping is lightly browned — about 15 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings. And for the main course try this "Seven Layer Dinner" served with hot rolls and a tossed salad.

SEVEN LAYER DINNER

- In a large casserole or small roasting pan add the following layer by layer:
- 1 layer thinly sliced potatoes
  - 1 layer sliced onions
  - 1 layer sliced carrots
  - 1/2 cup uncooked rice
  - 1 tin peas and liquid
  - 1 lb. pork sausage made in patties
  - 1 tin tomato soup
  - 1 tin water
- Bake at 350 deg. for 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Dip off fat and turn sausage at half time.

—It's warming up to be a lively Federal election battle in Halton. Political activity is already well into high gear.

Ottawa in Tulip Time

by Nancy Cleaver

Ottawa is a beautiful city at any time in the year. Once we motored through it, after visiting the Parliament Buildings, on a golden summer day. We have been there in the Autumn when the maples were aflame with color and we have seen it covered with a mantle of snow. But best of all we have visited Canada's Capital during the Tulip Festival in May. This colorful event is one of Canada's greatest tourist attractions, second only to Niagara Falls.

There we saw many of the million tulips in bloom, the largest public display on this continent. There are 29 main beds along Ottawa's Tulip Route of 33 miles through the heart of the city, along the Driveway past the Governor General's Residence, in Rockcliffe Park and out to the experimental farm.

Named by Turks
The wild tulips received their name because to the Turks they resembled turbans. The Federal Commission has planted large beds around the Parliament Buildings and monuments and on the slopes and curves of the roads so that they can be easily seen by both motorists and pedestrians. There are over two hundred varieties of tulips. The other flowering bulbs have not been forgotten and there are a million and half blooms of these, mainly daffodils and crocuses.

Tulips were planted in Ottawa over 60 years ago. But it was not until after World War II that Canada's Capital became famous for her Tulip Festival. Queen Juliana of the Netherlands sent a gift of bulbs to Ottawa as a thank-you gift for the haven this city had been to her and her family during the war. She pledged additional bulbs each year during her life time. The people of the Netherlands added more bulbs to her gift, to show their appreciation for all the Canadians had done to liberate their beloved country from the Nazis.

Film on Flowers
The new National Film Board "Ottawa - Canada's Capital" is a charming picture taken at Festival Time. An excellent second film to accompany it is "Springtime in Holland". This takes the viewers on a tour past the Netherlands fields of flowering bulbs and can be borrowed through many Film Councils — Courtesy Associated Bulb Growers of Holland.

One thing the dazzling beauty of Ottawa's Tulip Festival has done is that it has made Canadians more flower conscious. The only place in Canada where flowering bulbs can be produced for commercial marketing is in certain areas of British Columbia. The great bulk of our bulbs is imported from the Netherlands. In the Spring, after the long winter, tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocuses, scilla, grape hyacinths are most welcome.

A visit to our Federal Capital, especially during Festival time, is a never-to-be forgotten joy for a Canadian of any age. Do take your son or daughter to visit your provincial capital! Some time in your life, if at all possible, plan to make this Ottawa visit when the spring flowers are at their best.

Take Children
When we lived in the East, we took our three children when they were public school age to visit first their provincial capital and later to Ottawa. This was very worth while.

The English poet, A. E. Houseman wrote in "Later Poems" these lines referring to cherry blossoms!
"And since to look at things in bloom
Sixty Springs were little room
About the woodland I will go,

FLOWER POT APRON: Here is a pretty apron for gardening as well as for the kitchen. Its confection requires only one yard of cotton for the apron, 1/4 yard of green cotton for the leaves. The pattern gives you the exact size of the appliques to facilitate your work. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Needlework Department of The Canadian Champion and ask for Leaflet No. E-1169.

Niagara Rail Trip on Sunday

This weekend dozens of Milton families are expected to be touring Niagara Falls, with transportation supplied by a special Canadian National Railways family day excursion train.

Advance ticket sales and enquiries were quite numerous in Milton, CN's passenger sales representative Jim Buckley told The Champion. Residents of Milton and district, who will take the train from here at 9.30 a.m., will be joined by excursionists from Burlington and Hamilton before arriving at the falls later in the morning.

CNR has pared the cost down to a minimum because the return

To see the cherry clothed in snow —
Perhaps if he had visited Ottawa in May he might have substituted for the last two lines words something like this.
"About the Driveway I will go,
To see the tulips where they grow!"

SLOW DOWN

The days are flying by so fast,
It really is a crime,
That we never ever have enough
Of that precious "thing" called "time".

Time we need to do the things
We never seem to get done,
Because we are always in a hurry.

We're forever on the run,
Even our weekly papers
Are several days ahead,
When we haven't even had a chance

To get last week's paper read,
Then we have daylight saving time.

But even that doesn't help a bit,
Because we never seem to have a
chance

To make the most of it,
I can't help but wonder, why we hurry so?

Why can't we take life a little easier?

"Put on the brakes and travel slow".

We rush around all speeded up,
Hurrying through each day,
If we'd only stop and think
awhile,

We would see it doesn't pay,
So why not relax and enjoy your life,

We'd be much farther ahead,
Why hurry to an early grave,
For you know we're a long time dead.

—Edith Sharpe.
