W.I. Tours Museum, Admires Fireplace

The history of Milton and Peel counties came alive before an interested audience at the Halton Museum, when the Nassagaweya branch of the Halton Women's Institute met for their June meeting.

After viewing some of the 1,700 items on display, they gathered in front of the attractive stone fireplace for a talk by Major H. J. Newman, who was introduced by Mrs. F. Edwards. As everyone was admiring the fireplace with its iron pots and holders, Major Newman explained the stones from the fireplace were cut by early settlers for their mills and saw mills. Nearly every old mill of the Halton and Peel counties is represented by a stone. One stone was part of an old mill wheel which has been gone over 60 years. On each side of the fireplace are antique window screens.

Used Once More

An old wooden cradle used by four generations was donated to the Museum, and taken back to hold the fifth generation and then returned. Major Newman pointed out an oxen plow that had been used to break the ground for No. 5 highway. The yoke with the plough is 170 years old. A bicycle made in 1840 is on display and is the second development stage of the modern bicycle.

The Alexander farm is ideal for the Museum. It was equipped with light and power 10 or 12 years before Milton had electricity, through the ingenuity of the owner Mr. Alexander.

Enthusiasm Contagious

Everyone was sorry when Major Newman finished his interesting talk. Mrs. J. Henry thanked him and pointed out that his enthusiasm for his work was contagious.

Mrs. Mullin of Haltonville donated an Auction Credit Sale Notice dated 1886 by Ben King, which they found when they were renovating their dining room floor. Mrs. Pyatt gave an old Indian grinding stone that was found in their field at Haltonville. Mrs. J. Henry from Brookville donated a brown pottery ink pot which she learned had been brought over from Ireland by a pioneer. Each donation will be shown with the name of the donor and location.

After the meeting was over, a picnic supper was enjoyed by all on the grounds of the Halton Museum.

Horticultural Notes

Prepared by The Milton and District Horticultural Society

The man who wants a garden fair or small or very big. With flowers growing here and there, Must bend his back and dig.

It matters not what goal you seek, Its secret here reposes, You've got to dig from week to week, To get results or roses.

IRIS CULTURE

Now that your Iris is blooming you can stake them and pick out the ones you want to replant and divide. The best time for planting or dividing is late August or early September. Division should be made in clubs of three blades to produce bloom the following year or you can plant the single rhizomes. When you dig them shake off all loose earth and divide. Prepare your soil since the plants are good feeders and need a rich soil 3 parts top soil and one part peat moss or compost.

SUNNY LOCATION

Iris need a sunny location, select your bed and make holes. In the centre, mound up your soil a little, spread the roots of the rhizomes over this mound, half on each side, cover two inches and press down. For best effect you can set in figure-eight or circle pattern or you can plant in your perennial border. Allow 24 inches between each plant. Saturate the soil with water and keep newly set plants well watered for the next month.

You can divide and replant crowded tulipids this month. Harvest daffodils that are to be dried over summer and replanted in October. Now is a good time to plant the last of your gladioli for the fall shows, most gladioli take from 75 to 85 days to bloom.
