Teens Speak Up

Everyone seems to be airing their views at present as to what flag design should be representative of our Dominion of Canada. In making my own personal contribution I thought perhaps the Stars and Stripes with a large green Maple Leaf in the centre would be quite eye catching. For some reason or another most people seem to shun my colorful suggestion.

What views do our teenagers have? Well, some comments I received go something as follows:

R. H. — "Canada and its people are young, but in another sense they're both slow. We should have had a flag a long time ago. I like Mr. Pearson's choice of design, but I don't like the design of the Maple Leaves."

D. B. — "I like the Union Jack."

J. C. — "It doesn't really matter to me what kind of flag we have. What's wrong with the Union Jack? We are ruled by the Crown of England, aren't we?"

G. T. — "I think the young people in high school and college should be given the chance to say what they would like, after all, we are the citizens of tomorrow. It's time Canada had its own flag and I like the P.M.'s choice."

D. S. — "I don't like Mr. Pearson's choice. I think we should have something like the Red Ensign, except in place of the Union

Jack in the corner they should have a Maple Leaf.
L. B. — "I don't know, I just think we should have a flag of our own."

P. J. — "I think they're making a big blow about nothing. Our father's fought for the freedom of Canada under the Red Ensign, so why not leave it at that?"

C. R. — "I don't really know, I guess Mr. Pearson's choice is alright, I mean you can't please everyone, can you?"

Everyone has their own ideas about Canada's flag, even this columnist. I can't say I'm in agreement with the P.M.'s choice of design. However, as one teen put it, "You can't please everyone, can you?"

Certainly I think Canada should have her own flag, but I think too, Mr. Pearson could have come up with something that at least looks like a Maple Leaf instead of something that looks like a duck's footprint, don't you?

Platter Chatter

Jimmy Rogers, a young man absent from the popular charts for some time now, has just had a disc released by Dot Records called "The World I Used to Know." The tune is a ballad and might very well be a top 10 contender. The record, in my opinion, rates good and should be a good seller.

Another star long overdue is Tommy Rae. Recording on Spar-ton, Tommy could very well have another "Sheila" hit with this latest effort called "Carol". The instrumental backing of the recording is good, while the lyrics, on the other hand, could be better. With the strong backing, the record should make the top 20 at least. Rating on this one is fair.

Terry (Suspicion) Stafford, recording for Reo Records, is making another bid for stardom with his new recording called "I'll Touch a Star". The only star Terry will touch with this recording is the kind you buy in the five and dime. This recording is a poor follow-up to his last hit recording called "Suspicion". I can't see this one coming anywhere close and I would rate it as poor.

"My Boy Lollipop" is the name of Mercury Records' latest release. The record is big, while the name is Small, Millie Small, that is. Millie is a new-comer to the field of popular music and this recording (her first) could very well end up in the top 10 in no time. The record has good backing and carries the kind of beat the teens like. I like it and therefore see fit to rate it as good.

Somewhat of a change of pace comes to popular music charts this week in the nature of Barbra Streisand. Taken from the Broadway show "Funny Girl" in which Miss Streisand stars, the song is called "People".

The recording is on Columbia and as mentioned, it is somewhat a change of pace from people like Presley and The Beatles. It's a song sung as on-ly Barbra Streisand could sing it and the kids like it. I like it, but just how far it will go re-mains to be seen. Regardless, I rate this one as excellent.

One or two others worthy of mention this week include "Tell Me Why" by Bobby Vinton on Epic Records, "I Get Around" by the Beach Boys on Capitol, and "Once Upon a Time" by Mary Wells and Marvin Gaye.

BEST SELLER
The best selling record in Milton last week was "I'm the One" by Gerry and The Pacemakers on Capitol.

Milton Stomp

The executive of Milton's Teen Dance, The Stomp, announced this week that there will be a dance on Saturday night of this week (May 30). Gary Neilson reported the dance was one of a couple planned for the summer period. This might be a good weekend to attend the Stomp, what with all the studying you have all been doing — and I'm sure everyone has been studying.

Why not give yourselves a break this weekend and come out and say hello? It has been reported that regulations concerning dress will be relaxed somewhat for this dance due to the more recent hot and sticky weather we've been having.

Dress, then, will be informal or as the dance executive said, dress to be comfortable.

If any of the boys would care to change it in their Bermuda shorts, you're quite welcome! Headline guests for Saturday's dance will be Toronto's Ardels. See you at the dance.

— Teen of the Week —

By Jim Gildea

Once again it's "teen of the week" time and this week our spotlight falls on a very pretty Gail Thomas.

Gail is a Grade 12 student of Milton high school who a few weeks ago was named Miss Milton Chamber of Commerce for 1964, during the Chamber-sponsored Carnival Week.

Gail has been quite active lately, what with the recent contest, fashion shows in which she modelled, and her more recent exploit, a trip to Ottawa and Montreal. In commenting on her trip, which is made each year by the grade 12 students of Milton High, she reported that one of many highlights was a formal introduction to Dr. H. Harley, M.P. for Halton.

Name to Live Up To

In questioning Gail on her winning the Miss Chamber of Commerce title, I asked if this had caused any sudden boost in her popularity. In reply she stated,

"I couldn't say that it has. It hasn't changed me personally if that's what you mean. The only thing different now is that I feel I have a name to live up to, I mean more in respect to the town of Milton than to myself."

Fishing, swimming, baseball and tennis are Gail's most popular sporting activities. When it comes to food, she is a connoisseur of Oriental food.

As for her future, Gail reports that she decided a long time ago when she was in Grade five. "I have always wanted to be a teacher, even when I was in public school, I guess the idea never left me."

Teach Here

Gail plans to attend Teachers' College and when she has completed her course she hopes to return to teach in Milton.

Quite active in the local Girl Guide organization, Gail is working to achieve her Gold Cord. This award is the highest credit given in Guides, and is equal in standing to the award credited a Queen Scout.

Certainly, if merits for this award were credited on charm and personality, Gail would have no trouble whatsoever.

E.Y. Good Guy

Asked her taste in music, she reported herself an E.Y. Good Guy. "I like rock 'n' roll, especially The Beatles and the Dave Clark Five. Which are better? They're both much the same but I think the Dave Clark Five are better looking."

Gail hopes to have a summer job by the time school gets out for the summer vacation period. She says "my cost of living is going up, so I have to get a job to help finance my expenses." I wouldn't want to give my readers the idea Gail is a wasteful spender, so let me explain the above statement was made in humor, of which Gail has plenty.

In case any of you pay a visit to Montreal this summer, Gail reports that the hotel where Liz and Richard were recently married has now become a point of historical interest. The hotel is now recognized and pointed out to all visitors who take the daily conducted tours of the city.
