Seek Volunteers for New Show

A public meeting tonight (Thursday) at the home of producer Sam Graham, 348 Williams Ave., is expected to give initial boost to a musical variety show for Milton next Spring.

Mr. Graham, producer of "Flying High" shows in Toronto in recent years, is sure there's enough talent in Milton and district to give the town a real name in show business, and soon hopes to have a production crew and cast to make it a reality.

He plans to recruit a production team plus a cast of 100 in the 16 to 25 year age group, and put on a two-hour show filled with singing, dancing and skits by next April.

He's also planning to prepare a Centennial historical pageant for the town in 1967, using his annual shows as the nucleus for the project.

Tonight's meeting at 8 o'clock will see films and pictures and hear recordings of the music in recent "Flying High" shows. Mr. Graham and his assistant Ken Bilton will be available to answer any questions and fit volunteers into parts in the production.
