HALTON MANOR

Red-Letter Night as Dancers Present Big Variety Program

By Miss Muriel Thompson

Saturday night, June 20 was a "red-letter night" at the Manor due to the fact that it was the night on which pupils of the Alarie School of Dancing in Oakville paid their second visit to the Manor. A group of these pupils had come a year ago and had impressed the residents so much with their dancing that their return visit was eagerly anticipated. There were 60 pupils, aged three to 15 years in the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Alarie were both present and they brought their daughter Patricia who was one of the dancers and their son Ross with them. Ross introduced the dancers to the audience and acted as curtain boy. Mrs. Ajeckebrecht, Mrs. Alarie's mother, who supervises the making of the costumes was also a welcome visitor, as were Mrs. G. Moore, her daughters Roxie and Nancy and Mrs. B. Yates, all of whom gave valuable assistance.

Enjoy it All

Over 40 dance routines were presented, but there was so little delay between them and everything was so smooth-flowing that the residents enjoyed every moment.

The program began with the dancing of the can-can by six girls dressed in the traditional can-can costume, this time with bright red dresses and black tights. This was followed by many other dance routines, all of which were performed expertly and for which many beautiful costumes had been designed. The dances were of many types, soft-shoe, tap, ballet, gymnastic, Scottish, and Irish. Some of the costumes had been especially designed for groups of girls representing monkeys, lions, ponies, and their drivers, alley-cats, flowers, boot-blacks, dolls, farmers, brides and bride-grooms and fairies, while solo dancers represented a clown, a butterfly, the sun and the evening star.

Scot Dances

Other routines of Scottish and Irish dances were performed to the music of the bag-pipes played by Poper Gordon MacGregor. A baton twirling display was given by Linda Cooney in the cha-cha baton dance. The closing portion of the program was given over to a celestial ballet, which was accompanied by lovely ballet music. Dancers for this ballet were dressed to represent the Evening Star, little stars, moon maidens, the sun and clouds. The program ended with all the dancers coming on stage and repeating a small portion of their routines.

During refreshment time, when cookies and cold drinks were served, these talented visitors chatted with their very enthusiastic audience. Some of the mothers of the dancers had been so kind as to donate some cookies. All in all it was a very delightful evening and the residents will be looking forward to a third visit.

Church Service

Dr. T. M. Dustan conducted the church service and Mrs. Ray Waters played the organ on Sunday afternoon, June 21.

In view of the fact that the fast-day of St. John the Baptist would be observed on June 24, Dr. Dustan read verses 57-80 of Chapter 1 of St. Luke at the Scripture reading and then delivered an informative and interesting sermon on the life and teaching of St. John.

Dr. Dustan emphasized the fact that St. John was a remarkable man, a man who, though he lived many centuries ago, taught principles that do not change with the years. He was a man of great humility, courage and devotion. He was completely devoted to God and he preached about Christ as the Messiah until he was imprisoned and executed by Herod.

Picnics for Blind

Four women residents of Halton Manor were guests of the Halton-Peel section of the C.N.I.B. at the annual picnic for the blind of these counties held in Lowville Park on Tuesday afternoon, June 23. These ladies were Mrs. R. Tinline and her escort, Mrs. A. Cumming, and Mrs. L. Player and her escort, Miss B. Hartenstein. The ladies were taken to the park through the kindness of Mrs. Hampson and brought home by Miss H. Tremayne, both of Milton.

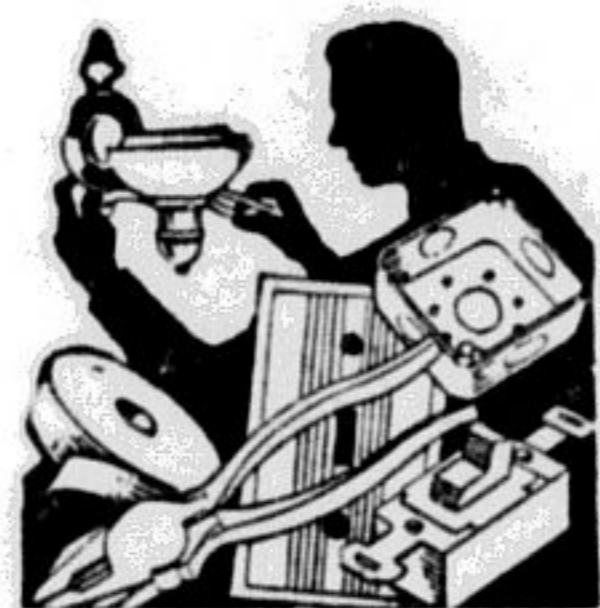

Entertainment was provided by the Burlington Junior Band and Majorettes. Several games and contests were enjoyed. In a game resembling musical chairs, Mrs. Player won a hat. There were a few guessing contests also.

As usual the supper was very tempting and delicious and every one enjoyed the sandwiches, cookies, ice cream and strawberries, tea and coffee.

The two blind guests were presented with parcels of goodies very attractively wrapped in cellophane. Six additional parcels were brought to the Manor for other residents.

NEXT DAY
Nine-year-old Marion, taken by her parents for her first trans-continental rail journey, was thrilled when the train plunged into a long tunnel in the Rockies. When it finally emerged at the other end, Marion exclaimed, "Look, Mom! It's tomorrow!"
