RIGHT AROUND HOME

By SHIRLEY

Making pancakes is one of the oldest forms of baking. Once called "hearth cakes" the various branches of the pancake family are now known by many different names, including crepes, flapjacks, griddle cakes, waffles and hot cakes.

Savory pancakes have always been good nourishing fare well suited to summertime when the family mealmaker doesn't want to spend much time in the kitchen, yet knows a light but interesting main course is indicated.

Hot off the test kitchen's griddle is a completely new type of savory pancake cum hot cake.

Hearty Tomato Hot Cakes have several unusual features, all of which add up to a deliciously different lenten dish for supper, luncheon or brunch. The uncooked batter is quite thick, yet surprisingly it yields light, tender-textured "pancakes" with a moist centre.

With the main liquid ingredient being tomato soup, plus the chopped onion, pickle relish and celery seeds, these are spicy savories which team well with the suggested topping of a salmon-tomato sauce, as well as with sour cream or chili sauce, and sausages or bacon on the side. The sauce itself can also be varied by substituting tuna, crabmeat, diced chicken or ham, as indicated in the recipe.

What do these delicious new hot cakes look like? A rich golden brown jacket encloses the moist goodness of the pink interior.

HEARTY TOMATO HOT CAKES

Yield — 10-12 hotcakes (34 servings)

- 1 can (10-ounce) tomato soup, undiluted
  - 1 cup (1 can approx. 1/2 lb. size) canned salmon
  - 1 1/4 cups once-sifted all-purpose flour OR 1 1/2 cups once-sifted pastry flour
  - 2 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup milk
  - 1 egg
  - 4 teaspoons sweet pickle relish
  - 2 tablespoons very finely chopped onion
  - 1/2 teaspoon celery seed (optional)
  - 2 tablespoons peanut or other vegetable oil
- Measure out 1/2 cup of the un-diluted tomato soup; set aside while preparing following sauce. Place rest of soup in small saucepan. Remove skin and bones from salmon don't drain. Break up salmon, stir into soup in saucepan. Cover; simmer slowly, stirring occasionally.

Meantime, sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Blend milk into reserved 1/2 cup soup. In medium-sized bowl, beat egg well. Gradually blend in milk-soup mixture, relish, onion, celery seed and oil. Add dry ingredients all at once; stir until just blended.

Drop batter about 1/4 cup at a time on heated griddle or lightly greased frying pan. Cook until outer edges are dry and bubbles form on top. Turn and continue cooking until browned on bottom.

Serve piping hot with butter or margarine and the hot salmon-tomato "sauce". The sauce yield is about 1-1/3 cups.

Note: Tuna fish, crabmeat, finely diced cooked chicken or ham are suitable alternates for the canned salmon in the sauce.

Here is the ideal recipe for a quick and easy casserole that we suspect you will resort to again and again, for a light lunch dish, television supper snack or brunch. Bacon Tomato Supper Dish is quickly made from a few very basic ingredients — bread, eggs, bacon, tomatoes and a small wedge Cheddar cheese — and yet it is a dish with a difference, a dish that will establish you as an impromptu cook with flair!

This recipe makes sufficient for four people. Spread six slices of day old bread with two tablespoons of soft butter. Cut the bread into small cubes and spread them on the bottom of a greased six-cup baking dish. Place in layers on top of the bread six bacon rashers and the slices from one medium-sized tomato. Season with half a tablespoon of salt and a dash of pepper. Sprinkle on three-quarters of a cup of grated Cheddar cheese. Mix two slightly beaten eggs with one and a quarter cups of milk and pour them over the cheese. Place in a slow oven preheated to 325 deg. F. and bake for thirty to thirty five minutes — or until custard sets. Serve piping hot.

Library Notes

With Easter still two weeks away this would seem an appropriate time to remind you of books that may be borrowed to help you with your Lenten study and reading.

The Comfortable Pew by Pierre Berton, of course, needs no introduction. The library has two copies and many people have taken advantage of the reserve system to make sure they obtain one of these within a reasonable time.

Also in great demand at the moment is Honest to God by John Robinson, Bishop of Woolich. While both of these books have provoked a great deal of controversy, they cannot truly be compared since, for the layman, Honest to God requires much patient study and very careful thought. On reaching the end of the book one feels that one has missed so many of the finer points of reasoning and that a second reading is necessary to completely comprehend all Bishop Robinson is saying.

No one who has read, and enjoyed, C. S. Lewis' book, The Screwtape Letters to Malcolm: Chiefly on Prayer. In his astrigent style Mr. Lewis talks about relevance of religion to our comfortable and modern scientific age, his judgment is disturbing. At a time when controversial writing on religion is 'popular' these books may find a new audience which was lacking when they were first published. In They Knew Jesus, George Cornell reconstructs the Gospel story and portrays 24 of Christ's contemporaries when they were most vividly aware of his influence on their lives.

Another account of Jesus and His ministry is given by Emily Ludwig in The Son of Man. With deep reverence for familiar characters and events he takes us back to the Palestine of 2000 years ago.

When the magic of the spoken word is transferred to cold print the result is often dry and boring. Not so Peter Marshall's sermons. In The First Easter, a collection edited by his wife, Catherine Marshall, the inspiration is the same as if one were listening to his voice. What emerges is a moving, dramatic narrative of Easter.

The Apostles who obeyed the order to "Go forth into the world and teach..." are described and their journeys, followed by Peter Bamm in The Kingdom of Christ. Beautifully illustrated with color plates and drawings and with annotated maps, this is a fascinating book for those interested in archeology and church history. The Apostle Paul's journeys are brought to life through an on-the-spot description of the lands through which he travelled in Journey After St. Paul by William R. Cannon.

The Horizon History of Christianity by Roland Bainton and others and produced by editors of Horizon magazine, is one of the most beautiful new books the library has acquired for some time. Striking photographs and drawings complement a text that brings together the main threads of Christian history. We hope many people will see and read it during Lent.

Probation Officer Tells Home, School of Work

The March meeting of the J. M. Denves Home and School Association was held in the school on Monday, March 22. Mrs. Mae Johnston, president, opened the meeting with O Canada, after which the minutes of the February meeting were read by Mrs. Edith Clements and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. J. Holmes.

A letter from the Milton Public School Board granting permission to use the kindergarten room for a dance and games night on Monday, April 5, was read. Reports from the games and dance chairmen were given by Mrs. M. B. Hatherley, games convener, and Walter Bell, dance convener. Mr. Bell reported that Mr. Renzetti had been obtained to provide the music. After some discussion, it was decided that tickets would go on sale immediately at 75c and all members of the executive committee would be supplied with tickets.

Following the business period, Mrs. Malcolm Smith sang two musical selections, "In the Garden of Tomorrow" and "Bless This House", accompanied by Mrs. James Ledwith on the piano.

The guest speaker for the evening was Harry Greenwood, Provincial Probation Officer for Halton County since 1957. Mr. Greenwood briefly discussed "What is Probation?", giving the history of probation, the duties of a probation officer and the difference between probation and parole.

He presented some very interesting statistics from a report of the Attorney General's office dated June 1964: the number of probation supervision cases 17,973 (11,702 adults and 6,271 children); husband and wife cases where counselling services were given which did not go into court, 15,566 (involving some 52,000 interviews); probation investigation reports made, 9,042; and pre-release reports, 202. There are at present 219 probation officers in the province, three in Halton County. Mr. Greenwood stated that a probation officer is called on for many things.

G. E. Jackson gave a vote of thanks to Mr. Greenwood for his most interesting talk and to Mrs. Smith for her musical interlude.

Mrs. Presse's class won the attendance award for the third consecutive month.

The evening concluded with lunch served by grade four mothers.
