Four Milton Groups to Celebrate International Credit Union Day

Tomorrow, Thursday October 21, is International Credit Union Day and the four credit unions in Milton are emphasizing their theme, "opportunity, security and service for all" as the widely-celebrated day rolls around.

The self-help credit union movement, through Credit Union Day, marks credit union progress in more than 70 nations in a celebration uniting millions of people throughout the free world.

Milton's four credit unions are Holy Rosary Parish, P. L. Robertson, Ontario Steel Products and the Meter Makers at Canadian Meter. J. Frijters, manager of the Holy Rosary Parish C.U., said this week that 1,000 Miltonians are members of the credit union movement—about 900 of them members of the four local C.U.s, and the other 100 members of credit unions in out-of-town plants such as Ford, American Motors, Westinghouse, and others.

There are 34 credit unions in Halton County, with 10,000 members and assets totalling $6,700,000.

Total assets of Milton's four credit unions is over half a million dollars.

About three and three-quarter million Canadians are members of the country's credit unions. There are 4,700 credit unions organized in Canada, majority of them in Ontario. Their popularity is explained by the fact a credit union is a non-profit organization, owned and operated by its membership, and any profits are turned back to members through dividend payments. Credit Unions have a variety of services, many operate almost like a bank, with chequing accounts available.

To mark the 1965 International Credit Union Day, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson has issued a special message congratulating the members in Canada
