 clubs gathered for the three-day program.
 The Halton Region Conservation Authority plans to construct a $450,000, 700-foot-long dam north of Kelso to store 1,500 acre feet of water.
 Kenneth Y. Dick, K.C., a lifelong resident of Milton and a local lawyer since 1937, was selected as Judge of the County Court of Oxford County. The announcement was made on the same day Alan B. Sprague was sworn in as Halton's new judge.
 Merchants reached a stalemate on the store hours question, following a Chamber of Commerce questionnaire. More Merchants favored Monday closing than Wednesday afternoon closing, but no clear majority emerged after an extensive poll by the Chamber.
 Thousands of voices raised in song as the 34th annual Halton Music Festival was staged in Acton. Milton schools made a fine showing in the competitions.
 Library week was celebrated, with the Board casting an anxious eye toward future accommodations for Milton library users.
 A water supply was assured for a new industry, Star Steel, locating on a 21-acre site in Esquesing Township.
 Curlers ended the year with a banquet and awards night for the men. Dave Smith's rink won the coveted Higgins trophy.
 Halton's oldest past warden, Charles Readhead passed away in his 93rd year. Mr. Readhead was known for devoting a generous portion of his time in service to others.
 Charting $1,671,800 in expenditures, Councillors set up a five-year capital budget. About half that amount was earmarked for a trunk sewer system to serve the land to be annexed to Milton.
 Coin collections stashed away in local homes began drawing thieves, and two break-ins were reported where coin caches were removed, prompting police to warn collectors to take extra precautions with their valuables.
 The Department of Highways mixed the town's plan for a 32-foot wide Main St. and asked for a 42-foot minimum width.
 Popular Oakville Mayor Allan M. Masson was chosen standard-bearer for the Halton Progressive Conservatives, at their federal nominating convention. Nassagaweya Reeve Bill Coulter was his only opponent.

MAY
 Oakville's new office building was beginning to take shape and Mayor Allan Masson laid the date-stone on May 1.
 Grass fires were plaguing the fire department.
 County government, properly adapted, is the answer to this vague thing called regional government, Dr. Lorne Cumming, former O.M.B. chairman and now a special adviser to the Minister of Municipal Affairs, told a meeting of Halton councillors.
 The town was short 700 calls of the minimum 2,500 needed to institute letter carrier service, council was advised.
 Pretty Moffat lassie Carolyn Hoey was selected Miss Milton Chamber of Commerce for 1965, in competition with 13 other girls.
 A jail escapee enjoyed six hours of freedom before his recapture and return to the county jail in Milton.
 Council initiated establishment of a parks board to govern local parklands, and appointments were soon made to get the board underway.
 Members of the German-Canadian Club of Halton County were forming plans to launch a German language school on Saturdays, beginning in the fall.
 Town council was bandying about the various proposals for a wider and resurfaced Main St., and decided to press their case for a 32-foot width to the Minister of Highways.
 K. Y. Dick was sworn in as Judge of the County Court of Oxford County, in a ceremony at Woodstock.
 Continued studies into a 500-foot dam to flood 75 acres in the Scotch Block area north of Milton, were called for by Halton Region Conservation Authority.
 Town operations during 1964 showed a net surplus of $18,000, the auditor's report revealed and he noted a reduction in the amount of outstanding taxes.
 About 100 Milton students participated in a new venture when they spent a day in the outdoors, planting 400 trees at a reforestation tract near Henby.
 A startling report on Halton's progress showed the county rates first in Ontario in population increase, first in the number of persons earning $6,000 or over a year, in the per capita disposable income, in average family income and in motor vehicle registration.
 County Councillors agreed to increase the hospital grants structure to $6,000 per bed, up $2,000 from the previous grant scale.

JUNE
 The Chamber of Commerce asked council to hold a plebiscite on licensed liquor lounges and the serving of liquor with meals. Council agreed.
 Councillor Charles Fay repeated an old plea for water meters, citing the terrible daily loss of
