Valuable escarpment lands given Conservation Authority

"We hope we have shown our concern with the preservation of natural beauty, and the desire to be good citizens and neighbors," James L. Franceschini, president of Dufferin Materials and Construction told local officials attending a unique presentation ceremony on Thursday.

In the ceremony, staged in a grassy field atop the escarpment, on land owned by the Dufferin firm, cheques were exchanged signifying the gift of a valuable piece of escarpment land 300 feet wide and almost two miles in length, from the company to the Halton Region Conservation Authority.

The ceremony was held to impress on government, conservationists and other quarry officials that the quarries CAN be good neighbors and assist in the preservation of escarpment lands. Minister of Energy and Resources Management the Hon. J. R. Simonett, guest speaker at the ceremony called it "an auspicious occasion that marks a new era of co-operation between the limestone industries and Conservation Authorities."

"Much has been said and written about the need to preserve from exploitation the 'last frontier in Ontario,' the Niagara Escarpment, and generally, the quarrying industry has been pictured as the villain in the piece," Mr. Simonett said.

"We hope other quarrying interests would follow the example of this company, which means that very effective preservation of the escarpment would be obtained with very little public interference with a basic industry," he added.

Back in 1959, the Sixteen Mile Creek Conservation Authority, which later merged with the Twelve Mile Authority to form the Halton Region, was concerned when Dufferin Construction optioned the escarpment land alongside an Authority project, the Esqueving Conservation Area on the First Line Esqueving. The Authority was worried about the preservation of the escarpment lands and met with the company, but the company felt the municipal and provincial by-laws were sufficient control.

The Authority attempted to purchase escarpment lands in the area and in 1961 filed an expropriation plan for the strip of land 300 feet deep, along the top of the escarpment. This action would have cut the company's operation in two and the company made a counter-claim for $2,500,000 damages.

Realizing there was an impasse, the company and authority met to work out a solution and the agreement culminated on Thursday was the result. The Authority agreed to purchase the land required at face value of $7,350, and the company donated a similar amount of money to the authority to extend its conservation work.

The agreement deeds 200 feet of land to the Authority, while the company retains the back 100 feet for piling overburden which will later be bulldozed into the empty quarry pit. The company is allowed one cut through the rock face and later, if a second cut is necessary, it will be allowed if the first cut is back-filled. Below the escarpment, a shelter belt will hide the stockpiles of stone from public view.

"May today be the beginning of your dream for the future—a publicly owned escarpment as a green haven surrounding the urban sprawl of the Golden Horseshoe," Mr. Simonett said.

Allan H. Masson of Halton Region Conservation Authority exchanged cheques with Mr. Franceschini. Other speakers included Halton M.P.P. George Kerr and Halton Warden and Nassagaweya Reeve William Coulter who called the presentation "another step in the right direction."

Later the 55 guests took a bus tour of the quarry operation and visited the neighboring Esqueving Conservation Area which was a bush and pond started by an ardent conservationist, John Moore. The bush contains probably the last stand of virgin timber in Halton County.

A reception followed at Halton Country Inn on the Sixth Line.

Presentations follow ministers "farewell"

Retiring from the active ministry after 11 years as minister of St. Paul's United Church in Milton, Rev. J. L. Graham and Mrs. Graham were honored by the congregation and church organizations on Sunday at the conclusion of his farewell sermon.

Presentations were made by Miss M. Hume on behalf of the United Church Women, and by W. L. McNeil on behalf of the Session, as Mr. Graham bade farewell to his congregation.

The church was full for the service. Several members of Milton Branch 136, Royal Canadian Legion marched to the service with the Milton Girls Pipe Band to pay tribute to their Padre of this past few years.

Mr. Graham will work as a visiting minister at Royal York Road United Church in Toronto, beginning August 14. In the meantime, the Grahams will enjoy a holiday with their family and at their cottage at Leith.

Replacing him will be the Rev. Charles A. Hainer, who comes to Milton from the position of assistant minister in First United Church, Hamilton, where he has been one of three ministers, with particular responsibility in the field of Christian Education.

Mr. Hainer was inducted on Monday, June 19 and will take the pulpit next Sunday for the first time.

Mr. Graham's final sermon was entitled "God". He warmly welcomed the Legionnaires and praised all veterans who served their God and country in warfare, ending with a hope for lasting peace and an end to the conflicts that dot the earth.

He called on the congregation to serve Mr. Hainer with "the same loyalty and devotion you have shown me for the past 11 years."

Speaking for the Session at the conclusion of the service, Mr. McNeil praised Mr. Graham's accomplishments throughout his ministry, his sincerity of purpose and devotion to the church, his forthright expression of his views, his sense of humor and his firm convictions. "The church has grown and the youth work has expanded under your paternal guidance and advice," he said, praising both the minister and his wife for their leadership in the church, its organizations and the community.

"These have been 11 very very happy years," Mr. Graham replied. He thanked all for their kindness and especially the organization leaders from the church for their faithfulness to office.

"I do thank you all, for all that you have been and are, and all that you will be in the future. May God bless this congregation."

Sunday afternoon an informal reception was held in the Christian Education Centre for members of the church and visitors from other churches to say farewell to the popular couple.

Three from Halton attend conference

By Mrs. K. Williams, Home Economist

On June 27, 28, 29 and 30 the Annual Girls' Conference for 4-H Homemaking Club members will be held at the University of Guelph. Two hundred delegates from all over Ontario will meet together and take part in group discussions and listen to speakers on the theme "You and Canada's Centennial."

Halton County 4-H Homemaking Clubs will have three delegates representing them at Guelph. The girls are: Mary Lou Brown, R.R. 1 Limehouse, Norma Moffat, R.R. 2, Rockwood and Laurie Allison, R.R. 1 Campbellville.

There will be many special speakers during the three and a half day session, including Dr. Ethel Chapman from Toronto and Mrs. E. Small, president, Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Big picnic for Kelso

Crowds are building steadily on weekend visits to the popular Kelso Conservation Area near Milton. On the past weekend, drivers of 660 cars paid admission, and Saturday's attendance was swelled by 1,000 people attending a Toronto industry's annual picnic.

Attendance on the past five weekends has ranged from 300 to 900 cars per weekend, and Kelso superintendent Ross Johnson reports the 400 acre parksite is busy through the week as well. To date over 200 season's passes have been sold, a record since the park opened.

—Barbecues are popping up in people's yards.

—Painting of the white lines on the local highways is underway this week.

Township birthday . . .

Financially, the weekend was an overwhelming success. Gate receipts Friday and Saturday totalled $1,285 which more than cleared the $1,000 estimated out-of-pocket expenses of the celebration. Officials estimated Friday's and Saturday's crowds at 1,000 each day.

Edward Agnew of Campbellville photographed the entire weekend and ended up with about 200 pictures of the events. His father, Gordon Agnew, and a souvenir committee are considering putting all the photos in a booklet that would also contain pictures of present-day Nassagaweya and some of the township's history, and releasing copies of the book to the public later in the year.

Staff reporters and photographers attended the weekend festivities and their stories and pictures will be found elsewhere in this week's issue.
