Esquesing Council briefs

Should "shop around" for loans

Patterson Esquesing Council should "shop around" for better bank interest rates when it borrows money.

He told council their system of borrowing all funds from one local bank was outdated, during Monday's meeting of the council. Members approved a by-law to borrow $378,064 at six per cent interest from the Bank of Commerce pending the sale of debentures on the Stewarttown school addition.

"It is high time we changed the system and checked with other banks and trust companies for competitive interest ates," he told councillors. 'Don't tell me the interest rates are the same, because they are not."

Reeve George Leslie said it was an established practice to do all the township business with one bank. In other business:

 County appointed deputy clerk Delmar French as temporary weed inspector and authorized him to give warnings to at least five property owners whose lands are over-run with weeds. If the owners do not cut them within seven days, he is empowered to send a man in to cut them and put the charges on the owner's tax bill. In previous years, Esquesing used the services of the county weed inspector, but he retired this year and a new one has vet to be appointed. Members concurred in the actions of the township school board in accepting a $14,936 tender for the addition of two portable rooms at Pineview school, and decided to ask the Ontario Municipal Board for jection to a garden centre pro- cil. permission to spread payments over three years.

 A leaking roof in the township administration building was discussed and councillor James Goodlet promised to provide a sealant within the next week.

 Further discussion on a township fire department ended in a decision to request a copy of the plans of the Nobleton fire hall from the man who designed it. Members had visited Nobleton to see the fire hall and felt it suited the township's needs.

 No action was taken on an invitation to join the Central Ontario Regional Development Council.

township administration building was rented to the school board for another year.

 A citizen's offer to make Limehouse and Stewarttown was referred to the county lages are on county roads.

Members expressed no ob-posed for lot 7, con. 7, by William Coveyduc, but warned the applicant he should obtain approval from the Department of Highways before proceeding. Accounts paid included one fox killed, five ambulance calls for township residents, 10 dog pickups, and township purchases for the past month.

 Councillors discussed an application from Dirk Poot to • The basement room in the build a 2,280 square foot semidetached house on lot 23, con. 6. The house would interfere with a proposed township road but councillors have not signs for the entrances to yet decided when the new roadway will be built. In the meantime, the applicant was roads committee, as both vil- urged to gain Health Unit approval for the proposed tile bed and report back to coun-

BELL

by Arnold Blachford, your telephone manager

You could call this little yarn "Handwriting on the wall." It seems that a subscriber's voice was becoming very familiar to the Information Operator. The same woman kept calling, fairly often, asking for a different number each time. Sensing that she was being recognized, the lady apologized and explained to the Operator. "I'm sorry to keep calling you so often, but they just papered my room and covered up all my numbers!" The lady had the right idea, to save time and avoid number errors, it's a good idea to jot down frequently called numbers. But we think a Personal Directory for such numbers is much handier . . . and much less likely to be wall-papered! If you would like a Personal Directory for your frequently called numbers, just give us a call at 878-2301 and we'll be happy to send you one, free of charge.

It's easier for your friends and associates to contact you when your printed business cards and letterheads or personal stationery give your complete name and address. That includes your complete telephone "address" - not just your telephone number, but your area code as well. More and more busy men and women are finding it valuable to have their area codes printed on letterheads and business cards. It makes it so much easier for business associates to reach them quickly by telephone when necessary. Even if all your correspondence is personal and you don't use printed stationery, it's still a good idea to let your friends know your area code along with your phone number. And to know the complete telephone "address" of your distant friends. Of course, using the area code is a must if you are able to dial your own long distance calls and you are phoning to a place outside your own area. Where one of our Operators must place the call for you, giving her the area code helps her to speed your call along its way.

Now here's a unique experience in telephoning — calling porpoise-to-porpoise! I heard recently of a porpoiseto-porpoise long distance telephone call which combined communications technology with marine biology. Participants in the conversation were "Speedy", a trained porpoise at Marineland of the Pacific and "Splash," his counterpart at Marineland of Florida. The two porpoises squeaked, chirped and whistled to one another over the 2,500 miles of telephone lines that separated them. Each appeared to listen intently to the other with only occasional intercuptions. Fortunately, a porpoise is a mammal, so no one should accuse me of telling a fish story.
