Wrong turn in fog

Car demolished by train

A 210 foot trip along the main line of the CPR tracks near Given Road Milton ended in the demolition of Miss Katherine MacDonald's 1968 Volvo last Tuesday. The car was ruined when it was smashed by a train. No one was in the car at the time.

Miss MacDonald became lost in heavy fog on her way home from Guelph. She followed a truck, turned when it turned and eventually came to Milton's Main Street. She crossed Ontario St. and drove along Given Road, crossed one set of tracks, a siding, then turned and went 210 feet down the main line beside the Pigment and Chemical plant.

They left the car on the tracks and went for help. Night shift employees John Munroe and Pat Rhynold from Pigment and Chemical Co. tried to remove the car but only got it half way off when the train came along.

Margaret Hogg of Burlington was the only passenger. Constable Michael Stasiuk of the Oakville Police Force investigated.
