Warns regional government studies will break up Halton

A current study of regional government on a county basis may force the break-up of the county, Deputy- Reeve W. Gillies of Oakville warned Halton County Council last week.

Mr. Gillies noted Burlington had recently studied the possibility of city status and Oakville was currently preparing a similar study. He recounted that Peel county representatives were not satisfied with a proposal from that county which would put regional government at the county level.

"We're only doing a survey to present the facts to the county", he noted. "As an individual I don't think Oakville and Burlington will get city status. The Department of Municipal Affairs is showing a definite lack of interest in granting city status", he declared.

Campbellville plans own fire substation

Nassagaweya Council learned Monday of a plan for the Village of Campbellville to set up a substation for the Milton Fire Department. Trustees of the village Robert Elliott and Gordon Agnew explained they had a suitable building adjacent to Early's Garage and asked permission to put a 1,000 gallon water tank on a truck.

Mr. Elliott said the first 10 minutes of any fire was crucial, and although the Milton brigade has always been prompt a small brigade right on hand could be very helpful.

Mr. Agnew pointed out fire insurance rates would drop for a five mile radius of the village if they had a substation to the Milton Department.

A committee from council was appointed to meet with a delegation from the new brigade and a representative from the Ontario Firefighters Association to set up the substation.

The Oakville deputy proposed a meeting of all members of the county council to receive the views of members. "If we go for a single county unit, all we would be doing is shoring up the county government and I don't think it can be done", he declared.

Reeve H. Hinton of Acton defended the county committee's ability to prepare background information for submission to the county
