Local employees of Ford in Oakville who were laid off a few weeks ago have been recalled to their jobs. All but 300 of the 4,000 men laid off are back to work after a three week layoff period brought on by a winter slump in car sales.

Predicts death of CORDC

The death of the Central Ontario Regional Development Council by the end of March was predicted by Councillor Art Gibson when he reported on a recent meeting to Nassagaweya Council Monday.

"No one is really listening to what we say", the representative told members.

Nassagaweya and Acton have been supporters of the group since its inception. The area includes the counties of Halton, Peel, York and Ontario.

Councillor Gibson said interest was lagging in the group. "It's unfortunate but in the areas CORDC serves no one wants to listen."
