Milton's education rate down 3.97 mills

Tough financial planning since the formation of the Halton County Board of Education three years ago has put the board in a favorable position Estimates show mill rate reductions for all municipalities except Acton. Acton's mill rate will go up by half a mill.

Milton will enjoy the greatest reduction in mill rate, dropping 3.97 mills. For a home assessed at $5,000 this represents a tax reduction of $22.

The reduction in the mill rate was made possible when provincial grants were increased to offset increased costs. The board's spending will increase by $3,500,000 this year. Total expenditures will amount to $43,000,000.

Budget committee chairman Bill Priestner suggested many area boards are having to make serious cuts in their budgets to stay within the provincial ceilings on spending.

Solid planning

He said the solid planning in the early days of the Halton Board made it possible for the board to continue their programs without cutting any part of the program or releasing staff.

Director Jim Singleton said the assessment is increasing faster than the student population. That will work in the board's favor for the next few years. But it is unlikely the board will be able to the mill rates in the future.

Tougher next year Priestner suggested the board would be in good shape next year while it would be even tougher for some boards. The following table shows levies and mill rates applicable to each municipality:

Replace old bridge

The narrow concrete bridge on Highway 25 south of Milton will definitely be replaced. Halton East MPP Jim Snow said this week that tenders are being called by the department of transport and communications. for construction of a new bridge structure and approaches. The existing bridge crosses 16 Mile Creek at the south end of what is commonly known as "Willmott's Flats", half a mile south of Britannia Rd.

Lion hunt in C'ville

There's a lion hunt going on in Campbellville and district this week. They're not seeking the African-type lion, but the service club-type.

The Lions Club of Milton is forming a new branch of the Lions in Campbellville and men living in the village and vicinity invited to join. An organizational meeting will be held this Thursday evening, March 23, in the Masonic Hall at Campbellville.

Cliff Bill, one of the village residents who is working with Murray Hood of Milton Lions on forming the club, reports that 10 men are definitely interested in helping to start a Campbellville Lions Club. They need 20 members to obtain a charter.

Youngsters like the sticky stuff

"Tastes good" were the words seven-year-old Phillip George Stokes used to describe a sample of maple syrup he was given at Rattlesnake Point Conservation Area on Thursday.

Phillip was one of 50 youngsters from the grade one and two classes of Kilbride Public School who were given an in-depth tour the park's maple syrup

The youngster received the syrup from Mauno Marttala, forestry technician with the

Allow Oakville firm's bid to service lands

property received permission from Milton Council this week to take the first step toward servicing their lands, after the firm assured council there would be no pressure on the town to allow that area to develop.

F. W. Hurley Holdings, owners of the 85-acre farm at the corner of Steeles Ave. and Third Line formerly owned by Fred Bell, told council they would work out an agreement with Wimpey Homes Ltd. to oversize the services currently being installed the town's north-east quadrant, directly west of the Hurley Holdings' land. Wimpey is this week installing storm sewer services on the former Wilson farm, in preparation for the first homes of what will eventually be a 1,200-lot subdivision of single family homes.

The services will be oversized at the Oakville developers' expenses, a representative of Hurley told council, and there will be no cost to the town. "We would not expect to use those services until our property becomes a part of Milton," he added. "This is industrial land, and at some future date it will be to the town's advantage to have this industrial land serviced."

While Councillor Dr. Ivan Hunter praised the firm for its foresight, Councillor Colin Smillie was against the request Smillie said the town had turned down servicing one industrial site out side the town earlier at the same meeting and this was "a similar deal." He also warned there would be great pressure on the council to extend the services to the Hurley lands at some time in the future.

The motion approving the agreement was approved on a 5-2
