It's time to treat crabgrass plants

By Burke McNeill
Spring is the time when crabgrass should be treated. It is recommended that pre-emergence herbicides should be applied in the spring before the crabgrass can germinate, preferably before May 1, and definitely not later than May 15.
Dacthal or Betasan, applied as a spray or as a prepared granular mixture with fertilizer, are some of the best control agents available. Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food Publication 529, Weed Control in Lawns, lists other chemicals that may be used, as does Publication 75, Guide to Chemical Weed Control.
Read labels
To ensure proper application of these herbicides, consumers should read these publications as well as the label on the container of chemical. Recommendations generally suggest a range of rates for control, depending on soil type and degree of crabgrass infestation. The higher rate is recommended where previous applications have failed. A thick competitive lawn will help reduce crabgrass infestations.

Householders with relatively small lawns should obtain chemicals in the granular form. Larger lawns are best treated with a sprayer.
Constable busy
The busiest man on the Milton OPP detachment force may be accident prevention officer, Constable Jim Redpath. During the past week he spoke to the First Milton Cub Pack and conducted a tour of the department's headquarters.
The constable also conducted a snowmobile seminar at the Flamboro Centre Senior Public School and spoke to the driver education class at Milton District High School.
