The value of a Christmas without commercialism may have been learned by some students at W. I. Dick. Pupils in Principal John Lenz' grade five class exchanged gifts last week.

However the gifts weren't purchased at a store. All the presents were of the home-made variety. Some youngsters presented their counterparts with a copy of a poem or article they had written. Mr. Lenz received a plate of fudge.

Students in the grade five class at W.I. Dick School have been studying communications and newspapers recently, and last week they produced their first school newspaper, called "School Bulletin."

The 10-page paper includes editorials, feature stories, interviews, cartoons, several pages of food articles and recipes, plus a few puzzles. Teacher Mrs. K. Erskine said everyone in the class contributed something for the "Bulletin", and all the students enjoyed the project.

—Stores in Milton were bustling with activity Friday and Saturday, as last-minute Christmas shoppers filled their lists.
