

Approve rezoning for Credit Union

Milton Planning Board last week concurred with a rezoning of lands to a C-1 commercial use, to allow Milton Community Credit Union to launch a major expansion of their building at 44 Main St.

The Credit Union, presently occupying a 30 by 60 foot office, plans expansion to the south and east boundaries of the lot to make the building 60 by 80 feet. To comply with parking requirements, the Credit Union will enclose the Bowes St. creek at the west side of their property to allow parking on the balance of the approximately 130 by 160 foot lot. Sixteen parking spaces are necessary.

No through traffic is proposed to Mary St., it was pointed out, although parking is proposed for property bordering Mary St.

Overdrawn
In other business, the Board learned it was $210 overdrawn on its budget at the end of November. Consulting fees which were higher than expected were blamed for the overdraw.

Members decided to hold two regular meetings each month in the new year, one to hear deputations and one to make decisions on applications and policies. The work of the board has been growing rapidly in the past year. The 1973 inaugural was set for Jan. 17.

Says stores too close objects to rezoning

Objections to rezoning by-laws were filed with the town at Milton Council's meeting last week.

Council acknowledged the objection of W. M. Thomson to the rezoning to permit a three storey building at the corner of Mill and Bronte. He maintained the building would be too close to his property line and the three storey height would exclude sunlight from his property.

Currently a two storey building would be permitted under the existing zoning but the developers proposed a three storey building. It would have commercial use on the main floor and residential on the top two floors.

Council confirmed its position, agreeing the by-law was valid and continued with its application to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Notices of objection were also filed with council against a development of town houses proposed for an area on the west side of Bronte St. Opponents maintained parking, frontage, front yard, side yards and rear yards were inadequate. They also maintained the additional runoff would aggravate flooding further south.

Council decided to ask the developer to meet with the administration committee and suggest he might also like to meet with those who object to his plan before proceeding on the plan.

Sees provincial cuts affecting HRCA program

Halton Region Conservation Authority Chairman Barry Humphreys forecast tough times ahead when he told the executive committee of the authority that Queen's Park had announced a crackdown on spending, specifically on administration.

The province has announced an increase of $65,000 will have to cover all 37 authorities in the province. That will work out to something in the order of $1,500 or $2,000 for a region the size of Halton's.

They are wrong
Chairman Humphreys charged the province was wrong in choosing to cut costs in that particular area. "We have one of the smallest staffs, one of the poorest office facilities. This is narrow thinking and it hasn't been properly considered," he told the executive committee Wednesday.

Vice Chairman Allan Wright noted the shift in priorities at the provincial level was towards transportation. Wright wondered what all of the Toronto money were going to do, once they used the modern transportation facilities to get out of the city, if the conservation areas were going to be cut so harshly.

Member Kelly New of Oakville took a different look at the problem. "We haven't been treated too badly in the past. Others are screaming bloody murder too. We've had our day but the cow went dry." New told his colleagues. He added that he couldn't see why conservation authorities shouldn't be cut if the other areas are being cut as well.

Woman, daughter hurt in freakish accident

A woman and her daughter, standing in a driveway near their home on Highway 25 north of Milton Saturday evening, were both injured when a car slid out of control, struck a tow truck, continued on through a fence and struck them in the driveway.

Mrs. Louise Chalifoux and her five-year-old daughter Carol of R. R. 3 Milton were both treated at Milton District Hospital for cuts and bruises following the freak accident.

The tow truck, owned and driven by Joseph Wayne of Dew-Drop-In Service Station, had just finished towing a stuck car out of a ditch when the accident happened. Police said the truck was facing south-bound on the east shoulder of the road. The northbound car was driven by James R. Turner of Eden Mills.

—Streets of town were quiet over the holiday weekend.
