

Rural route directory praises mail carriers

Who lived on the rural routes of Halton and Peel in 1935?

Mrs. B. R. Gunby of R.R. 3 Campbellville can tell you—she recently was given a complete rural route directory for the area that was published by a firm in Brampton in that year.

The 52-page booklet contains the name and rural route designation of all post office customers, including those in Norval, Bronte, Oakville, Milton, Hornby, Georgetown, Glen Williams, Campbellville, Freeman and Acton.

Milton advertisers included Owen's Dry Goods, McDuff's Garage, dentist Dr. F. E. Babcock, A. S. Wilimott's feeds, Cavell Battery Service, Milton Flour Mills, C. R. Turner furniture and funeral director, E. Middleton groceries and George E. Elliott barrister, solicitor and notary public.

Dedicated

The book once belonged to Rev. G. F. Kelly, minister of Lowville church at the time.

Fair goes on . . .

Poultry

McKay said the poultry show was a good one. The prize money had been increased and the new entries reflected the interest generated by the increased prize money.

Commenting on the Rotary Club's effort to raise funds for crippled children through the operation of a beer festival, McKay said the idea was a good one and he cause was good as well. He noted the Calgary Carriage Collection was worth seeing itself.

Allan Cutts conducted a children's pony ride and shows once again this year. The midway and concessions under cover did a roaring business during the rain in the afternoon. People sought shelter from the rain and stayed for coffee and eats while they were inside.

"Did our best"

Commenting on the rain, McKay said "we did our best and almost all of the people co-operated to the fullest and made the best out of poor conditions."

McKay recalled heavy rains in 1962 on the day of the fair and noted very few people attended, cutting the revenue of the fair board and making it difficult to meet the expenses and pay the prize money.

Warden Anne MacArthur officially opened the fair. She said the fair had been a highlight in the county for many years and had steadily progressed.

She recalled going to the fair as a child and spoke of the enjoyment she had at that time. She said she had visited this year's fair the night before and was impressed with the competitions which were held.

Plugs match

She reminded the audience of the International Plowing Match coming up in Lambton County this week and reminded those in attendance of the International coming to Halton County next year.

She said her Deputy Reeve Jim Watson and other members of county council had worked hard to help make the plowing match a big success when it comes to Halton in September of 1974.

Fair Board president Jim McKay said the board had expected both Milton Mayor Brian Best and Halton MPP Jim Snow to be on stage, but he guessed they had "chickened out".

Following the fair Mr. McKay learned there had been some confusion about the invitations and neither Best nor Snow were aware of the board's desire to have them on stage.

McKay said he had made the comment in jest and hoped no-one had taken him seriously or had been hurt by his comment.

The fair once again managed to provide something for everybody and covered a wide range of interests. The dog show and midway were of special interest to the younger set while some not-so-young fair goers enjoyed horse races, cattle shows, commercial displays and a visit to see the sheep, goats and pigs.

Busy food booths

The midway with its many rides, games of chance and food booths attracted thousands. Milton's newest service club, the Kinsmen joined Lions and Rotarians at the fair along with many church organizations selling food. Hot meals were served under the grandstand. The special feature provided by the Kinsmen was corn on the cob. Milton Optimist Club and Air Cadets handled the gates and parking.

While hall exhibits were fewer in number, there were still many and they held the interest of visitors for a long time. Delicious baked goods and preserves sent people out of one hall hungrier than when they went in.

The work of women's institutes, schools and individuals in the rug hooking, knitting and sewing divisions were excellent features.

Fine displays

Interesting displays of flowers and art work were arranged in one hall along with tasty looking arrangements of fruit and vegetables. Another hall contained displays of 4-H work in home-making and agriculture.

Halton Centennial Manor, Milton Library Board, Milton Fire Department, St. Paul's United Church, Halton District W.I. Adult Rehabilitation Centre for the Mentally Retarded, Milton Credit Union, Bell Canada and Canada Trust were among the organizations with displays at one hall with commercial booths.

Snowmobiles and new cars dominated the outdoor commercial displays again this year, with snowmobiles outnumbering the 74 cars on a 3:1 ratio.

St. John Ambulance crews treated plenty of bee stings but report no serious injuries.

One spill

Three harness horse races were run on the muddy track, with just one spill.

Two people received minor injuries when the cattle tent blew over. No animals were injured.

Politicians were as evident as pies, pretty girls and pumpkins around the grounds this year. Brad Clements, acclaimed to a Ward Three local council seat in Central Halton, operated an information booth for voters and regional candidate in Ward Three Jim Watson had a booth on the grounds. Other candidates made brief appearances, handed out campaign literature and mingled with voters.

Dancers from the Milton Chapter of the Highland Dancing Association put on a display featuring local children Friday evening at the grandstand, another new feature of the 1973 fair.

Last week The Champion published "thumbnail sketches" on most of the candidates for office in the Central Halton Oct. 1 election. Two candidates were not available at the time and their sketches follow:

TONY GREEN

A self-employed contractor, Tony Green of 5215 First Line, R.R. 1, Milton is challenging incumbents Richard Day and Don Gordon for one of the two Ward One seats on the Central Halton council.

Mr. Green is married and has two teenaged children. He has served on the Oakville Public Utilities Committee for the past 10 years and has been chairman of the PUC the past six years.

GORDON CARTWRIGHT

A foreman at Ford Motor Company, Gordon Cartwright is seeking a seat on council for the second time. He ran unsuccessfully seven or eight years ago.

Gord has lived all his life in this area and attended school in Nelson Township, later moving to Milton. He lives on Maplewood Cres. with his wife and two sons. A third son is married and lives in Milton as well.

Gord is active in Milton Minor Hockey Association and has managed the Atom club for four years. He is 53 years old.

Stokes win

Campbellville's Lloyd Stokes won five firsts and a pair of seconds in the Percheron division of the heavy horse competitions at the fair Saturday.

Also a director of the heavy horse competitions, he noted there were fewer entries this year though prize money had been increased. No Clydesdales and few Belgians competed.

He blames the wet weather for the poor turnout.

"It isn't just the quarter, Fern — it's the fact that it's a non-deductible quarter."

Seniors enjoy trip

A bus trip to Gravenhurst and a boat cruise to Port Carling were enjoyed by 43 Milton Senior Citizens Club members on Tuesday, Sept. 18. They travelled by Milton Bus Lines to Gravenhurst for lunch at a service centre on Highway 11, then on to board the cruise ship Lady Muskoka for a four-hour cruise on beautiful Muskoka Lake. The modern double-decker boat took them among the islands and they viewed the beautiful summer homes around Port Carling.

Silt . . .

(Continued from Page One) rent channelization project. Halton Region Conservation Authority has told Wimpey Homes and Victoria Wood Development Corporation they can install services for a 533 lot area in the north east quadrant, except the silt removal contract was awarded.

Awarding of the tender also allows the town to issue building permits to Victoria Wood for 210 single family housing lots and 85 town house units. Wimpey will have approximately 332 lots released.

Second culvert

Channelization is currently underway north of the Main St. bridge to the CPR culvert. The present culvert there is also to be duplicated to permit increased flow capacity. A major storm sewer from the north east quadrant of the town is expected to be put into use when the present channelization and silt removal projects are completed.

The silt removal project calls for the evening of the bed of the stream, with deepening in some areas to provide a uniform fall.

If your parents had high blood pressure, your chances of getting it are higher than average. Hypertension seems to run in families, the Ontario Heart Foundation says.

Stolen car recovered

A Milton man's car was recovered at Blind River, near Sault Ste. Marie this week after it was stolen from an Ontario St. apartment building parking lot on the weekend.

Two Quebec teenagers have been charged in connection with the theft. They are also charged with a break-in at North End Datsun on the same evening, where a cigarette machine and filing cabinet were forced open. Police said the loss and damage at the service station would total about $150.

Poultry winners

Several members of the Georgetown and Halton Poultry Association placed well in competition at the Canadian National Exhibition.

F. Berry and sons won seven firsts, four seconds, two thirds and one fifth. Alf Waldie won 10 firsts, eight seconds, two thirds, one fourth and one fifth. Clayton Hadfield won a prize for the best silver laced Wyandote in the show and the Sam Lum Trophy.

Don G. Wilson won 16 firsts, 25 seconds, and nine third place prizes. Don Brethet won nine firsts, six seconds, five thirds and two fourths. Ron Postma won three firsts, two seconds, two thirds, six fourths and three fifth place awards.
