Summer Festival brings many to "discover" Halton Museum

New visitors from Toronto. Georgetown and Oakville were among the 400 people who discovered the Halton County Museum Summer Festival on Sunday af-

Many were first time visitors, pleasantly suprised at what they found. As several of the out-of-town hostesses, "We've seen Kelso from the 401, but just never knew how to find the museum." Local people confided they knew the museum was there but never realized what was in it.

Along with the carriage house, blacksmith shop, craft house and the barn regularly open to the public, musical visitors to the festival. The Milton Girls' Pipe Band opened the afternoon, followed by Oakville Citizens' Band. An organist played while guests enjoyed tea in the main building.

Smith at work Hostesses in their oldfashioned gowns guided visitors in each building and at the rummage sale. Several gave knitting and braiding demonstrations in the craft house, and a blacksmith from Oakville made horseshoes at

A CONCERT in the carriage house by the Oakville Citizens' Band was one of the afternoon's musical entertainments. The Milton Girls' Pipe Band opened the summer festival on the museum lawn before the rain.

DEPENDING ON WHETHER you look from the top or the bottom, you found different things at the rummage sale at the museum summer festival. The old folks appreciated the wheelbarrow full of books, and one of the young folks found a turtle just his size.

TEA WAS SERVED in the main building at the Halton County Museum Summer Festival on Sunday, with an organist accompanying. Brock and Dave Wendover of Palermo enjoyed the restful pause in the day's activities.
