

'Didn't like my dogs' says dog club founder

It would seem that the Metropolitan Dog Show was not very kind to Steve French.

Steve was one of a group of dog owners who formed a husky dog club in this area 10 years ago, and in celebration of the anniversary, the group decided to combine their entries in the Met, as it was called, with the dinner and anniversary banquet.

The banquet was held at the Seaview Hotel and had about 150 former and current members as well as most of the founding members, and went over very well, according to Mr. French.

But it was a different story when it came to the dog show itself.

As Mr. French put it in an eloquent and succinct manner, "the judges didn't like my dogs. They liked somebody else's dogs."

It would have been a fitting climax to the show for Mr. French to have placed highly in the Siberian Husky class at The Met, but it was not to be.

Of the 230 entries in that class at the show, Mr. French's dogs didn't even come close to winning. He was philosophical about the performance, though, saying "That's the way it goes."

So far so good on Drury: M of E

Queen's Park gave Halton's Board of Education an indication that all's well so far with plans to expand E. C. Drury school at Milton.

Halton director of education Em Lavender presented a report on the need to add rooms to the school such as a horticulture room and green house, auto shop and drafting room.

Nineteen rooms of the present structure are to be shared plus some physical education and cafeteria space. The school is also used for the deaf.

Halton is to seek Ministry of Education and also Government Services ministry approval concerning facilities at E. C. Drury High School.

Lavender also presented a letter from the Ministry of Government Services stating it will recommend the financing the Halton board suggested previously. Government services also indicated it has the support of the Ministry of Education.

Hallowe'en dip for 4-H

By Donna Stewart

The Hornby North Senior "Miserable Metrics" 4-H Homemaking club held the fifth meeting at the home of Annette Reid. The junior members were at this meeting, but had their own separate business and demonstrations.

Cathy Routledge was nominated and elected to be the hostess for this week. The roll call was answered with each girl stating how they used the tea bicuit recipe in another recipe.

Pink Velvet was demonstrated by Donna Stewart.

The junior members invited all to their Hallowe'en party, but the seniors decided to have their own at the home of Marcia McPherson. Members will have pizza and punch followed by a swim in Marcia's pool.

Debbie Routledge made Cod Italiano.

The meeting was finished by each member tasting the prepared food along with tea, coffee or milk.
