Those two stalwart banner-carriers marching in front of the Acton Citizens' Band in Saturday's Santa Claus parade were Champion carriers Kathy McLean and Paul Lewis. The signs announced the band was sponsored by this newspaper. Paul and Kathy said they enjoyed the march and being in the limelight, but boy, was it cold!

Two Milton people were recently named directors of the Oakville Real Estate Board. June Warner of June Warner Real Estate Ltd. and Terry Sanderson of A. E. LePage are directors this year. Ted Rose of Oakville is president this year.

Gerry Foxall, chairman of the winning theme float constructed by Milton Boy Scouts in Saturday's Santa Claus parade, didn't want to take all the credit for the work. He had a big crew of helpers. They included Alan Alton, Barb Cannon, Vickey Foxall, Clark Gilbert, Steven Godsoe, Elinor Koshurba, Kevin Koshurba, Gordon Hume, Dave McKeown, Ted Pierpoint "and many more," he said.

Congratulations to several members of Milton Optimist Club, who recently received perfect attendance tabs. Bill McGinnis heads the list at 10 years, followed by Barry Eberly and Bob Ives at seven years, Ron Hudd six years, Dennis K-wasnicki two years, and John McCluskey and Bob McAughey at one year each.

Whoops! How could we? A photo caption in last week's paper incorrectly identified Lynn Brown as Lynn Merritt. Sorry about that. Lynn hasn't been using her maiden name for many years. The editor takes full blame for the mistake. Sorry, Lynn.

Clifford and Mary Brown were pretty happy this week, after their family hosted them to a dinner at the Plainsman Restaurant in honor of their 45th wedding anniversary. The Browns lived on Highway 25 three miles north of town until they retired from farming and moved into town seven years ago.

They have a family of five — Barbara in Toronto, George of Powassan, Donald of Arthur, Doug of Milton and Audrey (Mrs. Jim Peddie) of Milton, also 15 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Congratulations, folks, from all your friends in the community.

Six Milton men were among those honored by Canadian Meter Company at the annual 25-Year Service Guild dinner held in the Sheraton-Connaught Hotel in Hamilton Friday evening.

Joe Morgan, Ray Cooke, Peter Yonev and Herb Sullivan of the firm's Milton plant joined the 25-year club this year. Other local long-service employees included 32-year man Pat Callan and retired company president John Ostler who served 39 years with the company. Canadian Meter now has 23 members in this exclusive club.

First snow flurry causes accidents

Milton's first snow flurries Monday resulted in several car accidents on area roads and highways but no serious injuries resulted, according to both Halton Regional Police and Milton OPP. "The accidents did not cause that much of a problem," stated staff Sergeant Eric Bullock of the Milton regional police precinct. Both police forces reported some accidents occurred during the afternoon rush hour, with a couple more during the night. Less than one inch of snow fell Monday.

Burlington influence

Outgoing Halton Hills regional councillor Garnet McKenzie had a few words to say about the influence of Burlington representatives. Speaking at the public works committee meeting Wednesday Nov. 15, McKenzie said it was his impression Burlington councillors were always trying to have the region do things as they are done in Burlington.

Although Burlington representatives denied this, further on in the discussion, a man from the city prefaced his remarks, "In Burlington." Quipped McKenzie, "Here we go again."

THE WALLS CAME TUMBLING DOWN: The side wall of Jim's Billiards on Main St. fell into an excavation at noon hour Saturday, after weekend rains weakened the ground beneath the concrete floor supporting the rear section of the pool hall. Neighboring store owner Ben Crisci had excavated a 20 foot hole beside the pool hall, to extend his stores south toward Mary St. and had built up 13 blocks of a concrete block wall beside the pool room, when the wall came tumbling down. The rear wall of the Crisci building, shown at right, was already removed and was not part of Saturday's costly collapse.

Litter problem grows

Dear Editor:

After coming home from work Wednesday and picking up a large handful of candy wrappers, potato chip bags and pop cans off my front lawn for the hundredth time, I have reached the end of my tolerance.

Since the Beckers store moved into Dorset Park in May, Dorset Park has become a huge litter pile. The Kingsman Park, all the playgrounds, vacant land and most lawns are pig sties.

I am astounded that in 1978 with years and years of public education not to litter, that this littering can be so bad. Surely the parents of Dorset Park children can teach their kids not to throw litter on public and private land. It seems obvious that no one is going to pick it up.

It's time that Milton organized a mass clean-up in Dorset Park. Perhaps our new town council will act on this before the snow falls, because no one but the town will pick up garbage from town parks, vacant lawns and roads.

Homeowners, please do your share and educate your children.

Money in kitty

Ticket sales and public donations for this year's Milton Santa Claus parade have covered expenses and are expected to help towards next year's parade, according to parade committee official Deborah Van Hatten. Ticket sales for a draw in aid of the event totalled $1,857, with a further $2,996 received in donations from service clubs, businesses and community individuals.

Total expenses for the parade came to $4,225. The committee still expects to pay for additional parade costs, said Mrs. Van Hatten, but she added officials expect to have approximately $200 in the kitty for next year's event.

Electorate shies from casting votes

Approximately 44 per cent of 16,067 people eligible to cast ballots in last week's municipal election did so. However, the majority didn't.

One man said he didn't know the candidates.

"If I were to go," he said, "I would end up voting for the one whose name sounded the best."

A woman said she couldn't be bothered because the poll was too far from her home and she didn't want to walk in the rain.

For defeated incumbent Jim Kerr holding the election on the 13th day of the month was definitely bad news.

It was made worse when he was informed he was the 13th person to cast his ballot at his poll.
