

AN ENGINEER'S point of view (top) differs from an onlooker. While an onlooker would be impressed by the massive steamer, engineer Vic Hall looks over the top past a dial, whistles and controlling rods. Mr. Hall was one of the steam enthusiasts who gathered on the farm of Ed Wilkinson on the Sixth Line Friday to do some old time threshing.

Deputy Chief James Harding of the Halton Regional Police force is keeping his men hopping with new administrative changes.

Staff Sergeant John Barrett, recently introduced as Milton's new police precinct head, is being moved back to his former Georgetown station.

The latest move was prompted by the promotion of Burlington Sergeant Paul Chapman to the status of staff sergeant. He arrives in two weeks in Milton as the new precinct head.

There are two more new faces in the Milton police station. Sergeant Arthur B. Trihart, formerly of Burlington police district, replaces Sergeant John Black who has been transferred from Milton to Georgetown.

Constable Robert Fitt is newly arrived in town. He recently joined the Halton Regional Police department after serving a number of years with the Calgary Police Department.

Auditions

Milton Players, currently preparing to present the comedy "Goodnight Mrs. Puffin" this October, is holding final auditions tonight (Wednesday) at the old fire hall, Main St.

Those interested in working in the play or other areas than acting are urged to turn out. Coffee and snacks will be served.

Winner of the club's logo competition will be announced next week.

Young performers entertain crowd

It was late Saturday afternoon and nearing the end of a two-and-a-half hour talent show sponsored by Milton Music.

But the crowds were not dispersing. Instead teens, parents and shoppers alike gathered in the middle of Main St. listening to the strains of old Beatle hits.

On a platform outside a local shop, a 12-year-old boy was giving his best on the drums, and he was good.

WATERLOO GRAD
Neil Francis Hayward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hayward of Milton, is a recent graduate of Waterloo University with an honors degree in Environmental Studies. He has accepted a position with the Niagara Escarpment Commission, as a planner.

Singing the old melodies was 14-year-old John Vizzini. He was accompanied by guitarists, Eugene Orlando, 14, and his brother Joe Orlando, 14.

The local band which was well received, drew a good round of applause. At the ringside, family and friends of "The Flavours" band members cheered the group along.

The group has been playing professionally for a year and a half, according to Charlie Gracci, the 21-year-old brother of young drummer Tony.

He is proud of his brother. Tony has been playing drums for the past six years. He took lessons in the beginning but is now playing "on his own", he said.

Charlie was a former member of the band, but now acts as coach to the group and accompanies them on their engagements to weddings and other social occasions.

The band plays on, dishing out some old rock and roll numbers, and even some of the old-timers stop, listen and smile, watching the young group have fun entertaining the crowd.

ORGANIZING FUND RAISING for Halton Women's Place are Judy Wallace (left) of Milton, Stella Perkins of Oakville, the fund-raising chairman, and Mary Gooch of Milton. The three were among the women who met at Grace Anglican Church Hall last Wednesday to discuss fundraising plans for Halton Women's Place, an abused women's shelter, which is projected to be located in Milton.

Halton Women's Place fund raisers prepare

Financing plans for Halton Women's Place were discussed at a meeting of Milton women at Grace Anglican Church Hall Wednesday, Aug. 15.

The sale of buttons will continue. These say Halton Women's Place.

They will be sold at the Milton Mall Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 and at the Milton Fall Fair Sept. 21-23.

Fall projects include a fur fashion show, toy party, hockey and school book sales, an auction, pot luck supper and a concert by the Milton Women's Choir.

A draw on a doll house will be held during the fair.

Ball point pens with the women's shelter name will be sold.

Two fashion shows are planned. One will be at Oakville Centre and the other in Burlington. Both will be Sept. 12.

Twelve women attended the second of two meetings held by the supporters of Halton Women's Place.

Halton Women's Place will be a shelter for abused women in Halton. It is projected to be located in the police station after the police have vacated it for the health building which is being modified.

double."

As for the well owners, Mr. Johnson said he can easily understand why they prefer not to be tied to a municipal water system.

"I know how they feel. I've got a well of my own. I am content to use my well and that's the way I like it."

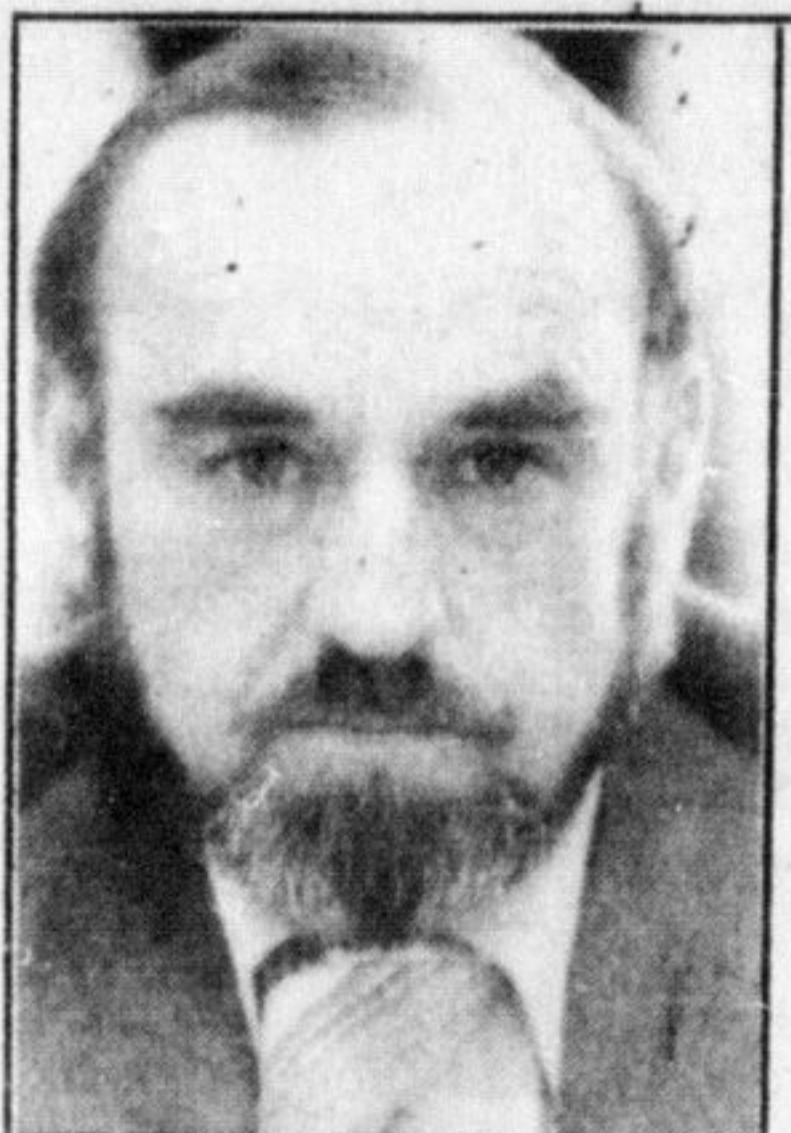

"And should it ever come that we have fluoridation in our water, the well is insurance against people having to drink water with fluoride in it if they don't want to."

"And even if they were made to hook up because development might pollute the water, is the region going to reimburse them for the cost of putting down their own well?"

"I don't think so. If they want a well, then leave them alone," he said.

Mr. Johnson attempted to get the problem introduced last Wednesday at the regular meeting of the Halton Region council but was told that a special meeting would be held Monday to discuss the problem.

The meeting was held but a region spokesman said it would not appear on today's agenda of the regular meeting of the public works committee.

"I'm going to that meeting," Mr. Johnson told The Champion, "and I'm going to get it brought up so I can find out what is going to be done for these people."

Dairy Princess to CNE Saturday

Halton's 1978-79 Dairy Princess, 19-year-old Marie Murray of Acton, will compete in the CNE Ontario Dairy Princess competition this Saturday evening.

The contest gets underway at 6 p.m. in the CNE Coliseum. If she wins her preliminary round, Marie will return to the semi-finals either Wednesday or Thursday, Aug. 29 or 30. Finals will be held Friday, Aug. 31.

Organizers report there are 41 girls in the contest, representing regional areas. They hope a large crowd will attend from Halton, to cheer for Marie in Friday's preliminary round.

Heatline located

Last week The Champion ran an article on Heatline, a federal government telephone service which will answer questions on insulating homes and conserving energy.

Unfortunately, the phone number was omitted and the newspaper had several enquiries about it. The number is toll-free, 1-800-267-9563.
