

THIS LARGE HOME is being built in Campbellville Estates, a new subdivision catering to larger homes. The subdivision is located south of Campbellville on top of the hill south of the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks.

THIS SIGN indicates the entrance to the new Campbellville Estates subdivision. Gus Goutouski of Halton Real Estate, the firm handling the sale of the lots, said 16 of the 37 lots have been sold to date.

Redecorate on your shoestring; use imagination

Trying to redecorate on a limited budget? There are a host of things you can do with a little imagination and inventiveness.

First, scour your closets, attic, basement and storage areas for old treasures, things you put away till 'the time was ripe'.

Those printed linen dish towels you could never bring yourself to soil may make lovely wall-hangings; a bright, hand embroidered shawl will drape gracefully on the back of a sofa or plush chair.

If you're handy with the embroidery needle, consider getting to work on some throw pillows or chair cushions. You can pass your leisure time constructively and refurbish your home to boot.

If the den is beginning to look a bit gloomy, consider repainting. If the whole room seems like too much of a challenge, do just the window frames and molding in a color that will complement and vivify the rest of the room.

Energy Efficient . . .

(Continued from page 1) it's close to schools and shopping. The exterior of the home is half brick, half aluminum siding and has aluminum soffits and eaves for easy maintenance.

Campbellville homes in new subdivision

Nestled in behind the sharp face of the Niagara Escarpment, yet lying on gently rolling, wooded land, Campbellville Estates is starting to take shape.

Construction on some of the homes in the subdivision has begun, and others will follow.

The name "estates" is an apt description of the homes within that subdivision. The homes are enormous, in comparison to the normal image of a subdivision home.

The houses lie on two-acre lots with plenty of trees. The lot size and forestry afford the privacy and roominess expected in a veritable mansion.

Yet the homes are not so isolated that the homeowner need ever be alone.
