View irks

A sludge lagoon in the Ashgrove area will not be allowed to become a visual disgrace. Halton Hills Councillor Russ Miller told public works committee he had received calls from residents complaining work to expand a sludge pond in the area, was exposing the lagoon to view from a roadway only 300 feet away. Mr. Miller was told the expansion work was being closely watched and care would be taken so the site, in a small valley, would not be seen from the road.

A WINNING PAIR: Brent Currie of 590 Lord Simcoe Court and his Miniature Schnauzer "Garnet" pose for a victory picture with the McDonald's Restaurant trophy, awarded to the grand champion dog at Milton Fair pet show. Another entrant was earlier announced as the champion, but a check of point totals showed Garnet (who won a first prize in the short-haired class, third in the best groomed class and fourth for costume) was really the big winner of the day. It was the second year in a row Garnet has been champ at the pet show.

Newcomers is underway

The first meeting of Milton Newcomers Club was held at the Milltown Recreation Centre on Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Barb Mallalieu and Marie Sutcliffe introduced the executive. The club provides a chance for those new in town to meet each other, to discuss common problems, to socialize and to learn more about Milton. Judy Silver read slips of paper that had been completed as each woman arrived at the meeting. The slips had name, present address, and interests of each person. These then helped women with common interests to meet each other.

Val Hendrick, handwriting analyst, was introduced. She explained that through analysis of a person's handwriting she is able to discern the person's emotions at the time of the writing. During the social time she analyzed the writing of those present. Everyone was amazed by the accuracy of the readings.

The Chinese auction was won by Cathy Watson. The next meeting will be held at the Optimist Centre Monday, Nov. 5. Anyone wishing further information is asked to call 878-7182.

Powys on

Former Milton deputy reeve Mrs. Marjorie Powys has been recommended as the regional representative on the Sheridan College Board of Directors.

Mrs. Powys was selected from a number of people at last Wednesday's regional administration and finance committee.

Make your Classified Ad work for you!

1 Include the price
 Advertising the price in your ad insures much greater response. Surveys show that a high percentage of potential buyers will not answer an ad which does not quote a price. If you are willing to go lower in price say so. For instance "2,200 or best offer."

2 Give enough information
 Don't try to save money by squeezing your ad into a couple of lines. Give all the pertinent information a buyer requires to distinguish your ad from another in the same category. Using a brand name has drawing power and saves you words of description.

3 Avoid useless phrases
 Do not use long, flowery phrases when short, precise ones will do a better job and save you money. "Power steering and brakes" says the same thing as "smooth glide steering system with power-assisted braking assembly." Avoid statements such as "the price is right". You buyer knows what price is right.

4 Don't use abbreviations
 AT, AC, FB, PS, WSW may be perfectly clear to you, but will your customers understand? Surveys show that a high percentage of readers are not familiar with abbreviations such as "WSW" for white side walls. Spell the details out for them.

5 Make sure you can be reached
 When your ad is running, be at the end of the phone number you gave OR, give your home and office numbers as well OR state the hours during which you can be reached. An unanswered phone can lose a sale!

When you place a Classified Ad in The Champion, you want it to work for you. So, take your time, study these five points and construct a good, strong selling ad. Then, place it where it will be read... in the Classified pages of The Champion. Just call 878-2341 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or drop into our office and our friendly classified staff will be happy to help you.
